GRECO-BULGARIAN HOSTILITIES IS CALLED OFF

TODAY

12 Generals, 12.
More Wall St. Cheer.
Religion As Crime Cure.
Leading to the Church.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

Col. Mitchell will be tried by twelve solemn generals for breach of discipline, which really means for criticizing the stupidly incompetent management of the air forces of the United States. Will the twelve solemn generals condemn or dismiss Col. Mitchell for telling the truth, and if they do, what will the President do about it?

One fact may comfort Col. Mitchell, whatever happens. The people are with him. If some nation well equipped with flying machines should attack this country and bombard a few of our cities, destroying them with ease and dispatch, those twelve generals would not cut much figure. And President Coolidge, moved by public opinion, would end the trial and put Mitchell in charge of aerial defense.

The twelve warriors presiding at Mitchell's trial, include six brigadier generals and six major generals. How much do the twelve, put together, know about flying? That's what interests the people of the United States that pay the salaries of the twelve generals, of Col. Mitchell and of President Coolidge.

Another cheerful day in Wall street, a two-and-one-half-million-share day, exact figures 2,517,700. There was excitement, nerve strain and howling around many "posts." Brokers welcomed a wide market, showing that everybody is coming in.

Steels up, oil up, motors and rails up, stocks that had been quiet suddenly came to life and sold twenty-five or thirty thousand shares, instead of just a handful.

Well, it's a rich country. Europe has decided to keep the peace for a while. Our billions will come back from Europe gradually.

Secretary Mellon is planning income tax cuts for the big man and the little man, including increase in the exempt allowance for children and other dependents. The average man's income, as Z. G. Simmons points out, is doubled. The wealth of the United States has hardly been touched.

The iron wall keeps out immigration and makes United States citizenship worth in dignity all that the ancient Roman citizenship was worth, and a great deal more in hard cash. We are a fortunate people. Let's hope we shall have brains enough to get in condition, ready to protect from outside attack all that we have.

President Coolidge tells the council of Congregational churches that in the crime wave following the war we must rely on religion as the only remedy. The President knows of "no source of moral power other than that which comes from religion."

He expects the clergy in charge of religion to display unusual vigor and efficiency.

Detailed suggestions for curing crime with religion would be interesting. Prayer might check the hijacker, bootlegger, burglar, hold-up man, if he could be made to realize that twenty-five or thirty million were praying against him.

It is not decrying the powers of

HOUSECLEANING MADE EASIER

Keeping the house clean rather than making it clean is the first step in simplifying housekeeping. You will find that keeping dirt out of the house, or preventive housecleaning, is well worth the effort.

The methods to be employed are set forth in the booklet which this Bureau has for free distribution. The system suggested is based on the well tested experience of practical housekeepers and on the results of scientific studies in labor-saving in the household.

PETRICH, BORDER TOWN, IS REPORTED IN FLAMES AS SOFIA CAPITULATES

Athens Troops Have Removed Enemies From Hellenic Posts and Enter Bulgar Territory and Will Remain There Until Incident is Closed Through Diplomatic Channels.

COMMUNITY IN ASHES MAY BE PRICE OF WAR THAT WAS NEVER FAIRLY BEGUN

Greek Government is Informed That Bulgaria Agrees to Demands for Indemnity for Soldiers Killed in Frontier Fighting — Serbian Acts to Prevent Flank Attack.

ATHENS, Oct. 23.—War operations on the Bulgarian frontier have ended and the incident is closed, from a military viewpoint, according to the view of the Greek government.

Greek troops have removed Bulgarians from Greek posts and have entered Bulgarian territory and will remain there until the incident is closed through diplomatic channels, it was stated today by government spokesmen.

No official statement has been forthcoming as to the casualties in the military operations.

Reports that Bulgaria has accepted the Greek demands have not been confirmed here.

Serbian Troops Massed.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—A town in ashes may be the price of a war that never was fairly begun, it appeared today.

Graeco-Bulgarian border troubles had been averted today by Bulgaria's complete capitulation to Greece's demands, but Petrich, the border town which was the target of the Greek advance, was reported in flames, according to advices from Athens.

The Bulgarian representative at Athens informed Premier Pangalos that Bulgaria agreed to the Greek demands for 2,008,800 gold francs indemnity for Greek soldiers killed in the border fighting and an apology from Sofia, according to Express dispatches.

Some advices from Athens declared that Perich already was occupied by Greek forces, but the information generally credited said the Greek bombardment continued and that the Bulgarian town was in flames.

A message from Belgrade said that Serbian troops were massed on the border to prevent either Greek or Bulgarian troops from making a flank attack through Serbian territory.

GENEVA, Oct. 23.—Greek troops have penetrated Bulgarian territory along a thirty-two kilometre line and have advanced ten kilometre from the frontier along this line, declared a second note of protest received by the league of nations this afternoon from Bulgaria.

"Our Best People" Hit for Serving and Consuming Rum

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Prohibition never will be adequately enforced so long as "our best people" consider it "smart and stylish" to serve and consume drinks procured in violation of the law.

That represents the opinion of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, in charge of prohibition cases. Mrs. Willebrandt expressed it before the national council of Congregational churches.

"People who patronize and associate with bootleggers," she said, "are afflicted with sleeping sickness where the law is concerned."

Continuous Bible Reading Service is Planned by Pastor

Another continuous Bible reading service will be conducted at the First Baptist church at the Sunday evening service, Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor, announced today.

Twenty young people have been enlisted to read the book of Matthew. One hour and fifteen minutes has been allotted for the reading.

Before the service, Rev. O'Brien will submit a list of questions, answers to which are to be found in the book. Music will be furnished by an orchestra of three pieces and a choir of young people.

BOY DIES AFTER EATING SANDWICH

[illegible], Oct. 23.—Coroner A. [illegible] today was to perform an autopsy to determine the cause of the mysterious death last night of Nick Laskovitz, 14, in Mount Sinai hospital.

Laskovitz, a public school pupil, became ill yesterday after returning from school. He told his family he had eaten a sandwich given him by a friend. He died in convulsions shortly after being taken to the hospital.

PRISONER HELD FOR $25 FINE ESCAPES FROM JAIL CORRIDOR

Stonewall Bowen Darts Across Bridge Into West Virginia.

VAGRANT, CLAIM

Dashes Through Door as Desk Sergeant Empties Water.

Stonewall Bowen, 24, arrested yesterday and fined $25 on a charge of vagrancy, escaped from the city jail and fled across the Ohio river bridge to Chester today.

Bowen made his getaway after Desk Sergeant George Toland gave him permission to step into the city hall corridor. As Toland went into an adjoining room to empty a bucket of water, Bowen dashed through the hall to the street.

The desk sergeant ran to the street in time to see Bowen sprinting east along Third street toward the bridge. Toland later learned Bowen stopped long enough to pay his toll at the bridge tollhouse, but, according to the toll-keeper, he "appeared to be in a big hurry."

Bowen was arrested yesterday by Chief o' Police McDermott in a downtown pool room. The chief had warned him several months ago to get a job and quit loafing in pool rooms.

When the chief ordered him out of the pool room, it is alleged he became insulting. He was then arrested and taken to jail. Upon arraignment before Mayor Brown he was fined on a charge of vagrancy and committed to jail on a bread and water diet.

Police said at noon that Bowen will be committed to the county jail at Lisbon if he is apprehended.

COL. MITCHELL'S ARREST ORDERED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The war department today ordered that Col. William Mitchell be placed under technical arrest on next Tuesday, the day before he is court-martialed for his caustic criticism of the army and navy air services.

Mitchell already is under orders not to leave Washington. When placed under arrest, he will be unable to issue orders to any person in the army. Mitchell will not be confined, but will be permitted to live at his hotel pending the outcome of the court-martial trial.

"BABY BANDITS" MAKE $514 HAUL

CLEVELAND, Oct. 23.—Frank Pierce, a salesman, was attacked by two "baby bandits," who took $514 away from him in addition to checks totaling $112, he told police today. He said the youths were about 16.

Other overnight robberies which have become so usual that they now seem banal, were marked only by one instance where the bandit masked himself with oils and greases.

PASTOR, RE-MARRIED TWO WEEKS AFTER DIVORCE, REINSTATED BY PRESBYTERY

Rev. W. W. MacEwan, Formerly of East Liverpool, Wins Fight Against Suspension in Carlisle, Pa.

Rev. W. W. MacEwan, former pastor of the Orchard Grove Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, and later of the Second Presbyterian church here, was reinstated yesterday as a member of the Butler, Pa., presbytery, after six months' suspension.

This action was authorized by a commission in connection with the annual session of the synod of Pennsylvania in Carlisle. Members of the Butler presbytery, who suspended Rev. Mr. MacEwan because he had remarried two weeks after he had divorced his first wife, announced that they would carry their fight to the next convention of the general assembly of the church.

Rev. Mr. MacEwan has been living in Rankin, Pa., but of recent years has held no charge in the Presbyterian church. However, he retained his membership in the Butler presbytery. About a year ago the Pennsylvania courts are said to have granted him a divorce from his wife on the ground of desertion, and two weeks later he remarried another woman. Holding such an act as unbecoming to a minister of the Gospel the presbytery immediately ordered his suspension.

Rev. Mr. MacEwan went to the meeting of the synod this week, determined to vindicate himself. The matter was referred to a commission,

Newspaper Publisher Attacks State Proposals in Addressing Exchange Club in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 23.—Flaying particularly the proposed four-year state office term and the classification amendment, Charles L. Knight, publisher of the Akron Beacon-Journal, addressed the Exchange club here today. He warned Ohio voters to have care how they set their "Xs" to three different proposals to amend the constitution of the state at the November elections.

Referring to the term extender amendment, Knight said: "Until government gives us better results than it has in recent years, the people of Ohio will not saddle upon themselves for a period of four years, those who, in a great majority of cases, they would glady get rid of in less than half that time if they could."

"It is a serious matter when we propose to tax any kind of property at different rates," Knight continued. "The amendment proposed gives the legislature power to fix any rate it sees fit on intangibles."

Knight said we had no proof that the legislature would keep the attractive rates adopted at first and added:

"The tomb of the Smith law is a perpetual warning to misplace no confidence in that quarter. The gasoline tax and the reappraisal law of the last session inspire one with no abiding confidence in legislatures on matters of tax rates."

Knight said he had suggested to Robert Taft a sales tax that would place the burden on those who buy most and could most afford it.

Rev. Dr. Edwin Kirby Will Occupy Pulpit Here on Sunday

Rev. Dr. Edwin Kirby, Elyria and formerly of this city, will occupy the pulpit of the First Methodist Episcopal church here at both the Sunday morning and evening services.

Rev. Dr. Frank G. Fowler will fill the pulpit of Dr. Kirby's church at Elyria for the two Sunday services.

Ruling by Crabbe Blow at Roadside Courts of Justice

COLUMBUS, Oct. 23.—Justices of the peace cannot impose fines on motorists who are first offenders against speed laws, according to a ruling made today by Attorney General C. C. Crabbe.

"Even when a motorist pleads guilty," Crabbe stated, "the justice can only bind him over to a court of competent jurisdiction for trial."

Mrs. Belle Carey Dies in Cleveland; Funeral Saturday

Mrs. Belle Carey, 86, widow of the late Joseph Carey, died yesterday in the home of her daughter, Mrs. T. C. Swain, Cleveland, following a stroke of paralysis.

Mrs. Carey, formerly of East Liverpool, went to Cleveland two weeks ago to visit her daughter. She was a lifelong member of the United Presbyterian church and one of the oldest members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, being one of the original "crusaders" of the organization.

She is survived by the following children: D. J. McBride, Tiffin; Mrs. Clara Carson, Bergholz; Mrs. T. C. Swain, Cleveland; Mrs. E. E. Chambers and Joseph T. Carey, both of East Liverpool.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. E. Chambers, 1115 Ohio avenue, East End. Rev. L. J. Davison, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, will have charge. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

The body may be viewed tonight at the Chambers home.

RALPH COLEMAN NAMES PAL IN "GAS" STATION ROBBERY HERE

OFF TO MANSFIELD

Police Seek Alleged Accomplice in Park Way Job.

Ralph Eugene Coleman, 21, convicted of complicity in the hold-up of the Park Way gasoline filling station, May 16, last, has confessed and named an alleged confederate, Sheriff George Wright, of Lisbon, said today.

Asked Gloeckner to Change Bill

The confession, according to the sheriff, was made Thursday as Wright was taking Coleman to the Mansfield reformatory to serve an indeterminate sentence of 10 to 25 years, imposed Wednesday by Common Pleas Judge James G. Moore.

Coleman, the sheriff said, declared he acted as a lookout in the roadway while his "pal" entered the filling station and held up Edward Gloeckner, the owner. Approximately $300 was obtained in the robbery.

The convicted youth told the sheriff, it is claimed, that he first entered the filling station and asked Gloeckner to change a $5 bill. Gloeckner took the change from a money drawer under the counter. Coleman then joined his "pal," who, it is alleged, awaited him on the opposite side of the road.

Alleged "Pal" Missing.

The confederate, who has left the city and for whom a warrant has been issued, then entered the gasoline station, and, at the point of a revolver, demanded that Gloeckner turn over his money, the sheriff said Coleman declared.

During the trial early this week, Coleman set up an alibi as a defense, claiming he was working in Monaca, Pa., on the night of the robbery.

Police claim the convicted lad did not leave East Liverpool until May 18, two days after the hold-up.

Until his purported confession yesterday, Coleman had insisted he was innocent, although Gloeckner identified him as the party to whom he had given the change on the night of the hold-up. The jury took 11 ballots before he was found guilty. One of the jurors holding out for acquittal, believing the defendant was the victim of a frame-up.

According to the police young Coleman will not be eligible for parole until he had served at least 10 years in the state institution.

In company with Miles Decker of Salem, who was given from one to fifteen years in the reformatory for the theft of an automobile, Coleman was taken to Mansfield.

STUDENTS AID COLLEGE DRIVE

Muskingum Graduates Will Seek Funds in City.

Graduates and former students of Muskingum college, New Concord, residing in Columbiana county, will take part in the financial campaign to add $500,000 to the school's endowment fund, which will be conducted November 2-10, inclusive.

W. Frank Lunsford, of East Liverpool, is chairman of the district drive. Other members of the committee include S. E. Daw and Stewart Parker, Wellsville; A. A. Hart, Salineville; Miss Jean Carson, Bergholz; Lloyd Fife, Lisbon; Miss Helen Paxton, East Palestine and Harold C. Smith, Georgetown, Pa.

Rev. Dr. Hugh E. Kelsey, St. Louis, former pastor of the First United Presbyterian church here, will confer with members of the local committee at the Y. M. C. A. at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Lunsford will preside.

While no quota has been alloted any district each alumnus is asked to contribute $264. Not only former students of the school but friends of the institution will be asked to aid in the campaign.

"ENORMOUS POSSIBILITIES" SEEN IN INVENTION TO MEET INTERFERENCE IN RADIO BROADCASTING

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH.
(Copyright, 1925, by I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—A remarkable invention by John Hays Hammond, Jr., son of the widely known capitalist-engineer, by which it is possible to transmit from a single machine eight separate radio signals on the same wave length, has been examined by navy experts, and while they believe "it has enormous possibilities," it has been found impracticable for service use at present, it was learned today.

Officials who studied the Hammond device expressed the opinion that its operation on wave lengths between 200 and 600, where most broadcasting takes place, would complicate rather than solve the present congestion in radio communication channels.

They pointed out, however, that the Hammond invention operates on very low wave lengths, or high frequencies, now employed exclusively for special or experimental purposes. Its possible application to the higher wave lengths was studied since it is the relief of over-crowding in this channel that is necessary to meet the interference problem.

Use "Sub-Frequencies."

Briefly, experts said, the Hammond machine makes possible the broadcasting on a single wave length of eight separate signals through the use of a district set of "sub-frequencies."

Therefore, it would be theoretically possible to combine eight stations and transmit the various programs of each simultaneously seven channels for the use of other stations. If successful it would mean that over 4,500 stations would operate where but 600 are now on the air.

Experts explained that the device operates with a single "carrier wave," but with eight sub-frequencies, superimposed on the original wave.

They declared that a receiving set to "catch" broadcast programs from the multiple-signal machine would require not only one detector with its tube, coil and set of dials for the carrier wave, but a second detector and accessories to get the sub-frequency signal. This receiving set would be extremely complicated to build and operate.

Objection to Multiple Machine.

None of the 5,000,000 commercial sets in operation in the United States would be capable of receiving the multiple signals, but experts consider it possible that with proper development or receivers and broadcasting stations, multiple broadcasting may ultimately prove a solution of interference.

The ordinary receiver tuning in on a multiple signal station would get a heterodyne squeal, similar to that noticed when two or more stations are operating on the same wave length. The carrier wave could be picked up but not the sub-frequencies.

A second objection found by experts was in the creation by the multiple signal machine of a greater number of harmonics. A station operation on a given wave creates a first harmonic or "undertone" at half its wave length.

"If eight signals are being transmitted on a 500-metre wave eight harmonics are created at 250 metres, causing just eight times the present interference," an expert said.

Officials said that the Hammond device is aimed at doing in the air what has been accomplished on telegraph and telephone cables, where a number of different signals are sent simultaneously on the same wire. No harmonic difficulty is found on wire transmission.

The suppression of harmonics is one of the big problems of radio engineering which has not yet been worked out successfully. Elimination of these curious "undertones" will go a long way toward meeting the interference problem officials said.

London Hairdresser Must Know "Clogris" To be Real Barber

LONDON.—The days of the barber whose only qualifications for his calling was the fact that he could juggle a pair of scissors are over. The complete hairdresser nowadays has to know all about such things as physiology, physics, chemistry, anatomy, pharmacology, bacteriology, hygiene, and several other subjects.

English barbers and their assistants now attend calsses at which they are ectured to by leading doctors and xperts on all these subjects, and an xamination is held to determine whether the scholars are proficient nough in these things to be "the omplete barber."

It is the aim of the organizers of this scheme to have at least one trained man in every barber shop, and legislation is to be sought to make this compulsory.

It is probable that the barber who passes the examinations will be too swelled headed to ever want to barber, and it is less probable that the peculiar attribute of all barbers, small talk, will be a thing of the past.

"GEORGIA TUG" JAILED AFTER TOUR DE LUXE

Russia's Newest Swindler Poses as Republic's Chief.

BAFFLED POLICE

Trapped When Asked to Autograph Real President's Photo.

MOSCOW.—Russia's nerviest swindler, Khasanoff Tourgun Youldashevitch, alias "Georgia Tug," is back in jail after a series of exploits which added new luster to his criminal reputation and left crestfallen Soviet government officials wondering how he did it.

Tug got his moniker from residence in a Georgian penitentiary, where he was serving a six-year term for swindling when the government, in an expansive mood, pardoned everybody not convicted of murder or counter-revolution.

Dead broke when he left the Georgian prison, Tug counted on his excellent front and oriental good looks to get by without a ticket on the train to Yalta, in the Crimea. When the conductor came to collect, Tug told him: "I've lost my ticket along with my valise. Must have been stolen. But I'm Feisul Khodzhaiev, president of the Uzbeckistan republic, and when we get to Yalta the mayor will pay my fare."

The game worked, and Tug, on alighting in Yalta, decided to work it further. He called on the Mayor, who a little flustrated at the honor of receiving the president of the Uzbeckistan republic, insisted on lending him $60 to finish his trip to Moscow.

From then on, Tug's tour became a tour de luxe. The Yalta mayor proved a piker compared to the mayor of Novorrossisk, Tug's next stop. At Novorrossisk the mayor lent him $100.

But this time Tug's line had become so smooth that when he arrived in Polatava, the mayor came through with $150.

Gathering his energy for a real killing, Tug went on to Minsk, capital of White Russia. From a room in the best hotel, he telephoned the president of the Central Executive Committee of White Russia, and had that dignitary hasten hotfoot to the relief of the city's distinguished if unfortunate guest. The White Russians are no cheap skates, and when Tug reluctantly revealed his financial embarrassment, the president of the Central Executive Committee forced him to accept a $500 loan.

This was good but not the best. Tug had visions of Moscow. If Minsk was worth $500 surely Moscow ought to produce $1,000. He took a train for Moscow.

But it was a local, and the jaunty president of the Uzbeckistans had to stop over 12 hours in a small city named Gomel, not far from Moscow. Tired of walking about the railroad station, it occurred to Tug that he might at least make expenses.

He called a droshky and drove to the town hall. On the way he reflected he would only ask for $50—just spending money.

"Dear comrade," said the mayor, who left a meeting of the town council and hurried out with extended hands when the name of the president of the Uzbeckistan republic was announced, "of course, we'll fix up that little thing. But do come and let our comrades meet you."

"I think I may miss my train," he said.

RADIO EXPERT SEES END OF INTERFERENCE

Electrical Disturbance One of Chief Sources of Trouble.

CAN OVERCOME IT

Alternating Current Wires Near Set Work Hardship.

WASHINGTON — Among the greatest problems that must be met before radio may reach its maximum value in America is the elimination so far as possible of interference caused by the use of electrical apparatus.

Government scientists and private engineers in co-operation have attacked this radio enigma and officials declare that there is indication that eventually at least partial solution will be found.

Electrical interference is in that category described generally as "man-made," as distinguished from natural —that is static disturbances in the atmosphere, fading of radio signals and other conditions that impede the radio wave.

Up To Radio Users.

"The only general remedy for electrical interference is co-operative effort on the part of users of radio and users or owners of electrical sources of disturbances," Dr. J. H. Dellinger, head of the radio laboratory of the Bureau of Standards, said.

Much of the work in mitigation of this type of interference should be directed at improvement in the operation of electrical devices or supply lines, according to Dellinger.

"However," he added, "there are some electrical devices which, even in perfect working order, cause disturbance which result in interference with radio reception.

"In many cases it is possible to provide filters or shields either at the source of disturbance or at the receiving set.

Dellinger places some of the electrical interference as "practically inevitable and to be regarded, like atmospheric disturbance, as part of the inherent limitation of radio reception."

"In other words," he continued, "the limitation of radio reception is not only the distance and power of the transmitting station and the sensitiveness of the receiving set, but also the omnipotent back ground of slight electrical disturbances which drown out signals below a certain intensity.

Cause of Interference

Among the most frequent causes of interference is the presence of alternating current power wires near the antenna or receiving set. Low frequency voltages, usually 60 cycles, are induced and the resultant current flowing in the receiving circuit causes a humming sound in the telephone receiver, it was pointed out.

"A method of eliminating or at least reducing the magnitude of this interference is to place the antenna as far as possible from wire lines and atr ight angles to them," Dellinger said.

"When the interference cannot be eliminated by such means the proper choice of a receiving set may help. An inductively-coupled (two-circuit) receiving set is less susceptible to such interference than a single circuit set.

"The use of one or more stages of radio frequency amplification should also help to filter out the audio-frequency interference. It has been suggested that the audio-frequency interference might be shunted around a receiving set having a series antenna condenser by connecting between the antenna and ground terminals of the set a high resistance, which will offer lower impedance to the audio-frequency than will the set itself."

Sparking Blamed

Sparking apparatus is given as another important cause of poor reception. Many types of electrical apparatus such as motors, doorbells, buzzers, gasoline engines, X-ray apparatus, violet ray machines, some forms of battery charges, rural telephone ringers, heading pad thermostats and others are mentioned in this class.

Silkworm raising, taken to Greece by refugees from Turkey, has grown to such an extent that this year's crop will exceed 6,000,000 pounds of cocoons, which is nearly twice that of 1920.

This Woman's Recompense

"I was so weak and nervous I could hardly do my housework," says Mrs. Harry Ashcroft of Covington, Ky. "I could not stand because of the bearing-down pains in my back and abdomen. One day I read how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped others and decided to try it. I want to praise this wonderful medicine for the health and strength it has given me and ask other suffering women to try it." This is the one great dependable medicine for woman's ills.

School Revenue Is Needed

The question of keeping the East Liverpool district schools open for the nine-month term is up to the voters of the city proper, Liverpool township and part of the Southwest precinct of St. Clair township.

Their answer will be their judgment upon a proposed three-mill tax levy for a five-year period, which will be submitted at the election on Tuesday, November 3.

Submission of the proposal is a step to avoid a repetition of the situation which confronted the school board a few years ago, when it was necessary to appeal to the state director of education for relief under the provisions of the "weak district" law. Thanks to the policy of economy adopted then, the schools are now being operated upon a pay-as-you-go basis.

As the board of education points out, the proposed three-mill levy will not result in an increase of the taxpayers' annual contribution to the maintenance of the schools. The levy is merely a renewal of the millage voted five years ago, which is needed to pay operating expenses.

Parents and big brothers and sisters, who are interested in maintaining the high standard of the East Liverpool district schools shall not hesitate to support the new levy at the polls next month. It should be approved by an overwhelming vote.

Chance For Scholarship

Columbiana county high school students, do you want a scholarship, worth $4,000, in an Ohio college or university?

Opportunity is knocking at your door as a result of the offer made by Congressman Martin L. Davey, of Kent, who, hoping to impress upon Young America the importance of devoting more attention to forestry, will pay the expenses of a higher education for a student now in high school or a high school graduate.

East Liverpool, Wellsville, Salineville, Lisbon, Salem, East Palestine, Leetonia and other county towns are expected to be represented in an essay-writing contest in which the winner will be awarded the Davey scholarship. Mrs. W. F. Lones, of Wellsville, has been named chairman of the county campaign which is sponsored by the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs.

The contest should not only stimulate the interest of Ohioans in fundamental importance of building up the forest wealth of the state as well as emphasizing the need of action to prevent the devastation of timberlands, but should also prove worthwhile from an educational standpoint.

Come on, boys and girls!

Best Music For All

Speaking of a symphony concert program by one of the country's leading orchestras, broadcast recently contrary to the orchestra's usual policy, a radio editor remarks:

"In view of the widespread appreciation of this program, it is difficult to understand upon what theory the orchestra management can longer refuse to allow the orchestra's music to be broadcast.

"No such opportunity has ever before come to musicians to cultivate popular musical appreciation and advance the cause of music as broadcasting presents today. Even should broadcasting actually interfere with the size of the orchestra's visible audience (a theory which is exploded) broadcasting still ought to be worth while. The orchestra, playing to an empty hall, might be accomplishing better than in the past the purpose for which it is supported."

This last statement is based on the fact that the orchestra referred to, like several others in this country, never makes expenses, but is supported by the contributions of wealthy citizens as a philanthropic institution.

When shall we have endowed musical organizations devoted to radio service, for the good they will do? That is pretty sure to come in time. Meanwhile it is not evident that, on mere commercial grounds, an orchestra depending on popular support has anything to lose by admitting the radio audience to its concerts occasionally.

Picking Up Nails

An Idaho industrial company had a brilliant idea. It hung a big magnet from the rear end of a truck, supplied with current from a storage battery, and swept the roads near its plant, picking up a surprising lot of junk. Then it persuaded the state highway department to try out the device on the Yellowstone Trail.

On seven miles of that famous highway, the magnet gathered up 603 pounds of nails, bolts, tacks and other scrap, most of which might easily have punctured tires. Tourists trailed along after that truck admiringly to watch its work.

The idea will spread. But there is nothing to prevent removing tire-puncturing junk from the road by ordinary means. People are strangely slack about this. Scattered nails, of course, are hard to see. But boards with nails in them, plainly visible to approaching motorists, are always appearing on the road. All the ordinary driver does is to turn out warily and wonder why somebody doesn't kick them off the roadway. Bottles, too, which no magnet will pick up. Who, except an occasional generous and unthanked pedestrian, ever removes glass from the road?

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Thoughts and scenes while strolling around New York: The Netherland and Savoy hotels dark and curtained. Traffic stops. And all chauffeurs light cigarets. Nice boys—except in a shower. Julia Hoyt. Somet hink she's beautiful.

Ex-Ambassador Gerard. Clinging Crecian frocks. Whatever became of the boys who sold corsets? Men with pin striped trousers and braided coats. Pardon my plus fours. Always flowers in Helen Gould's windows. A shawled woman with a bucket following a coal wagon over a cross street.

They say some avenue church weddings cost $50,000. And perhaps $20 for the parson. Then brides read novels, munch chocolates—and consider the futility of life. Winking fish-eyed traffic lights. That is Manhattan—the sign of the wink.

Hot air Soviets on library steps. There's an aura of romance about luggage shops. And what has become of window demonstrators? How do all the small jewelry shops manage to exist? Allwo syndicated writers. The girl whose cameo like purity flashes from the screen. But in real life, O my, my!

That Greek restaurant with bewiskered waiters. And pocketed with strange, sweetish odors. Bruce Barton. The moving sidewalk under 42nd never materialized. It was a good idea. Seedy men warming themselves over hot blasts from subway gratings.

Fried fish stands where they used to sell orange drinks. John the Barber. Sidewalk pearl salesmen. A display of sleds. The giant negro in front of the Strand. The rush up from Wall Street. Brokers airing inhibitions. Pagan, ever pagan Broadway.

Strays and wastrels. Yogis and dreamers. Revolving like chickens on rotissiere spits. Oldest and newest professions. Nobody will believe it but there goes a yoke of oxen. And running hell for leather. What's become of folk who used to call a telegram "a dispatch?"

The open air clothes market on Essex Street draws a curious assortment of humans. Old garments are auctioned off to the sidewalk rabble. Now and then a prospective buyer—properly guarded—goes up an alley to try on the clothes. Bright vets are in demand. But a pair of little worn Oxford baks went for 10 cents.

In prowling about hidden streets, of Greenwich Village I asked a taxi driver to drive past the Cherry Lane playhouse. He scratched his head. "You mean," he inquired, "where all them complex apartments are?"—and perhaps nothing better fited the occupants than his unconscious bit of humor. The theatre resembles a garage in front and only a small hand painted sign over the door establishes it. On a corner is the brick home of Edna St. Vincent Millay, the poet. The front of the little homes centuries about the Cherry Lane theater face tiny court yards with tubbed trees and gardens. These courts cannot be seen from the street. Many new apartments are going up on wide Varick Street and the twisting and turnings of alley entrances are like sections of London. Barrow street where Stefansson, the explorer, hides away is usually as deserted as a country town.

Undeniably there is a restful atmosphere about the village not found elsewhere in town. It is a crow's nest for free thinkers yet they do not press views on neighbors. People go to the village to get away from people and for that reason no one knows his neighbor yet otherwise it has every appearance of the small town.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 23.—During the fiscal year 1924 owners of motor vehicles paid the federal government $158,000,000 in taxes on pleasure cars, trucks and spare parts. During this eight years since they were first imposed in the war emergency these taxes have produced an aggregate revenue of $864 000,000.

The tax on automobiles is five per cent on the wholesale price of new cars. On repair parts the levy is two and one-half per cent. On trucks it is three per cent except for chassis wholesaling for $1,000 and under, and bodies wholesaling for $200 and under. The exception for trucks and the reduction of the tax on parts from five to two and one-half per cent were made by congress last year. At the coming session a determined drive will be made by the organized motorists of the country to have all the federal taxes on motor vehicles wiped out.

In special state license fees and taxes, not including personal property taxes, municipal fees, or gasoline tax, motorists have an annual tax bill of $305,000,000. Leaders of their organization say that motorists are thus made to pay more than their share of the cost of government and that the time has come for them to stand up on their hind legs until they are accorded relief.

"These taxes will come off entirely this year if there is enough yelling done," says Thomas P. Henry, president of the American Automobile association. "They exist because of human inertia. No ane can question that it is unfair and un-American to tax one group of citizens above the rest, but injustice is likely to prevail until some one gets up and does something about it."

President Henry urged every owner of a motor vehicle, and every prospective owner, to get in touch with his congressman and senator and make an appeal for the repeal of the war-time motor taxes. Personal calls and letters are advocated as more efficacious than form letters or resolutions adopted by clubs. It is expected that federal taxes will be reduced $300,000,000 to $400,000,000 by the new congress and motorists are admonished that it will be their own fault if they do not get their share of the reduction.

Arguments To Be Used.

The general argument that has been advanced for retaining the motor taxes is that they yield a big revenue, are easily collected and the automobile owner really does not feel them because they are included in the purchase price of his car and parts. The answer to this is that it was equally true of 35 other industries whose products were specially taxed for war purposes and congress has removed the federal levies on all of them, so why not include the automobile industry?

More specifically the taxes have been justified on the ground that the federal government is assisting in the construction of highways throughout the country and that motorists should expect to be taxed specially to pay for this government undertaking that is directly for their benefit.

That argument is met first with the statement that there is no connection between federal aid road building and the motor taxes because the federal aid policy was adopted a year and a half before the taxes were proposed or levied, and when the taxes were levied it was for the purpose of raising money for the war emergency and not for road building.

Next it is pointed out that motorists are bearing their full share of the cost of good roads through the state license fees and taxes which they pay, and that in any event the total they are assessed by Uncle Sam is more than twice as much as he spends on roads. The government contribution to federal aid roads is $75,000,000 annually, while as has been stated the motor taxes amount to considerably more than $158,000,000 a year. All told the federal treasury has paid out about $400,000,000 in assisting the states in highway development, while it has taken in $864,000,000 from the people who used the roads.

Moreover it is argued that federal appropriations are not made to benefit a particular class of people, although it may happen that they do so, but to benefit the public in general and they are paid for by general taxation of the whole public. The Department of Agriculture with its numerous activities is primarily of benefit to farmers, but the agricultural interests of the country are not assessed a special tax to support it. Shipping interests are not levied on to pay for dredging rivers and harbors and other federal undertakings that directly benefit shipping.

Uncle Sam expends a tidy sum each year in foreign and domestic trade development, but the business interests that profit by this are not asked to pay for it except through their general contributions to the federal treasury.

Then why should the people who use the public highways be required to pay a special tax over and above their general income taxes, corporation taxes, and the like?

The Motorists' Platform.

In the campaign that is being waged for the repeal of the motor taxes the platform that has been adopted by the American Automobile association includes these planks:

No man should pay a special tax because he wants to buy an automobile.

The tax on automobiles is a tax on transportation.

The tax on motor vehicles hits the farmer particularly, because that is often the only means of travel he has.

The federal tax on automobiles is

"Five years ago I was refused life insurance because of my heart symptoms. Doctors said it was caused from a pressure of gas that came from my stomach, but their medicine did not help me and I was getting worse all the time. Three years ago my druggist recommended Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I took a course of it and believe it is the best life insurance anyone can buy. It helped my trouble at once." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Jesse D. Holloway and druggists everywhere.

Would your insurance rebuild it to-day?

If fire swept away your property, do you think that you could rebuild for what it cost you twenty years ago or longer?

It would be impossible to replace your building for anywhere near the amount it originally cost you. How about your insurance? Many people determine the amount of insurance they want to carry by the first cost of their building. They often forget that this same amount would not serve to rebuild if fire swept away their property.

If you have not increased your insurance in the course of several years, you may run the risk of a serious loss. If fire should sweep away your buildings, would your pocket-book have to help your insurance policy replace the loss?

By increasing your policies, which would cost only a little, you could be relieved of this worry. Is it not worth a moment's thought and action?

Mrs. J. R. Thompson Hostess at Shower For Bride-elect

Pink roses and yellow chrysanthemums decorated the home of Mrs. Joseph R. Thompson of East Fifth street, yesterday afternoon, when the members of the Tuesday Musical club were entertained. Progressive bridge was the diversion of the first part of the afternoon.

A feature was a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Sara V. Vodrey, whose engagement to William L. Gardner was recently announced. Many gifts were received by the honor guest.

Luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by her sister, Miss Frances Simmers, Hallowe'en novelties being used in the appointments.

Tendered Miscellaneous Shower.

Honoring Mr. and Mrs. Harry Langdon of Monroe street, who were recently married, a group of young people and friends of the Nazarene church, surprised them Wednesday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Baum, of Sixth street, with a miscellaneous shower. Gifts of linen, cut glass and aluminum were received by the honor guests. The following program, arranged by Rev. Samuel Howe, was given:

Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Roy Thompson, covers being arranged for 79 guests.

W. B. A. Junior Party.

A junior party will be held this afternoon by the Women's Benefit Association in the Sons of Veterans' hall, East Sixth street, after which a business meeting of the association will be held.

Change Date of Party.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Sons of Veterans will give a Hallowe'en masquerade party in the S. of V. hall, East Sixth street, on October 27, instead of October 29, as originally plan-

S. of V. Auxiliary Supper.

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Sons of Veterans will serve a bake bean supper, East Sixth street, Saturday evening, beginning at 5 o'clock. The public is invited to attend.

Danceland Party.

Curran's dancing Academy will entertain with a round and square dancing party Saturday evening in Danceland, East Fifth street. The Curran Danceland orchestra will furnish the music.

Mrs. William Osborne Hostess.

Mrs. William Osborne was hostess to the members of the Golden Rod club Tuesday evening at her home in the Lincoln highway. The social hours were spent with Hallowe'en games and needlework. The home was decorated in yellow and black and Hallowe'en novelties, which were also used in the luncheon appointments. The hostess was assisted in serving by Mrs. Francis Gabbert and Mrs. Clarice Parsons. Places were arranged for 25 guests.

The next meeting will be held in two weeks at the home of Mrs. Charles M. Walker, of Bank street.

Moose Dancing Party.

Exquisite Hats For Winter

$5.00 $7.50 $10.00

An inimitable grace and distinction of line identifies these hats at once as the creation of skilled modistes. "Different" in the effective combination of fabrics — velvet with gold or silver tissues, satin with gleaming metal cloth. Nearly all of the hats in this collection are small, with tho flat close backs that make them so comfortable to wear with the large rolling collars of fur or cloth coats. In an inclusive range of new colors.

SOCIETY

E. B. A. Members Entertained.

Members of the Security Benefit association were entertained with a masquerade ball in the Sons of Veterans' hall, East Sixth street, Wednesday evening. One hundred couples attended.

A smoking set was awarded Donald Bennett, who was dressed as a Mexican, while three pair of individual salt and pepper shakers were given Miss Eleanor Hill, who was dressed as Martha Washington.

Music and dancing were the social diversions.

Next Wednesday evening a class of candidates will be initiated at a meeting of the association, after which dancing will be a diversion.

Bridge Club Meeting.

Members of the Chester Bridge club were guests last evening at the home of Mrs. E. G. Jackson, Carolina avenue, Chester. Three tables were in play. Trophies were awarded Mrs. George Viney and Mrs. Clyde Springer.

Luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. James Hocking.

The next meeting will be held in two weeks at the home of Mrs. Edward McNicol, of Third street, Chester.

Jolly Fellows' Club Dance.

The Jolly Fellows' club will entertain with an informal dancing party Saturday evening in the Eagles' Temple, Broadway. Thomas Sapre's orchestra will furnish the music.

"Hod" Williams and his Manhattan Serenaders will furnish the music for the dancing party to be held Monday evening.

Kozy Klub Session.

Members of the Kozy Klub met Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Mildred Hill, of Pennsylvania avenue, East End. Music, games and dancing were the diversions, after which luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Jessie Hill. Covers were arranged for Misses Alma Pitman, Mary Lowe, Elsie Glynn, Clara Miller, Ruth Robinson, Nina Echols, Marian Smith and Mildred Hill; Messrs, Sam Hildreth, Fred Hildreth, John Rigby, Charles Stull, Virgil Boston and George Rinestine.

The club will meet again in two weeks, the hostess to be announced later.

Wedding Anniversary Celebrated.

Honoring the second wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McLane, a group of friends and relatives were entertained at their home last evening with progressive bridge, two tables being in play. The trophy for the highest score was awarded Warren Mathews.

Luncheon was served by Mrs. McLane, assisted by Mrs. Virgil Roller of Wellsville.

Entertains Ladies' Aid Society.

Mrs. Garland Abshire entertained the Ladies' Aid society of the First Spiritualist church Wednesday evening at her home in Union street. Fancywork and quilting were the pastimes, after which a four-course luncheon was served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be held November 18, the place to be announced later.

L. C. B. A. Gives Masquerade.

The Ladies' Catholic Benevolent Association held its annual masquerade party last evening in the auditorium of the parochial school, West Fifth street, entertaining 100 guests. Cards and dancing were diversions. Trophies were awarded the following for unique and attractive costumes: Mr. Joseph Gape, Mrs. Thomas Russell, Mrs. Joseph Holtzman, Mrs. Thomas Carr, Mrs. Edward Dailey, Misses Martha Larkins, Margaret McKeever and Helen Russell and Gerald Faulk.

Luncheon was served by the social committee, with Miss Teresa McNicol as chairman.

Mrs. J. E. Anderson Entertains.

Mrs. John E. Anderson delightfully entertained the members of the Past Noble Grand association of Ceramic Rebekah lodge at her home in Lincoln avenue, Tuesday evening. The social hours were spent with music, games and needlework, after which luncheon was served by the hostess. Covers were arranged for 12 guests.

The next meeting will be held November 17 at the home of Miss Nettie McBane, of Avondale street.

Birthday Anniversary Observed.

Honoring the sixtieth birthday of W. W. Bassine of Cadmus street, which occurred Saturday, October 17, a 6 o'clock dinner was served by his wife, assisted by Miss Mary Sheldon, of Parkersburg, W. Va. Fall flowers were used in the decorations of the table. The guests were: J. E. Hannah, R. Q. Luther and wife and son, Robert, Miss Mary Sheldon and Miss Mary German.

Laughlin Employees' Ball.

A Hallowe'en masquerade ball will be featured by employes of the six plants of the Homer Laughlin China company in the Eagles' temple, Broadway, between the hours of 8:30 and 12 o'clock tonight. Five prizes will be awarded. Music for the dancing will be furnished by Dorsey Mann and his Swanee Serenaders. Every third dance will be a waltz, while the others will be novelty features. The public is invited.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith and daughter, of Avondale street, left Wednesday for Cleveland, where they are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Follansbee.

Mrs. James Williams, of Phoenix avenue, Chester, spent Wednesday in Pittsburgh.

INHERITS TITLE, STAYS ON RANCH

Lord Cheylesmore Has Become Devoted to Farming in Alberta.

Winnipeg.—The call of the great open spaces is a very real thing to some men. It is to Baron Cheylesmore, third of his line. And thus it is that Western Canada can add another to the list of its titled landowners. This English peer, who recently came into possession of his inheritance, is Francis Ormand Henry Eaton, D. S. O., who succeeds to the peerage as the fourth Lord Cheylesmore.

Happy Valley Ranch.

As Captain Eaton, he arrived in Alberta four years ago and acquired part of the Haunted Lakes ranch near Alix, Alberta, which he has since renamed the Happy Valley ranch. A few weeks ago he succeeded to the title, but the now seasoned Alberta farmer has expressed his intention of continuing his residence on the prairies, rather than return to the old land. He was busy all last month with the harvest on his estate.

Lord Cheylesmore was born June 10, 1893, educated at Eton, Trinity college and Cambridge university. He was a second lieutenant when the war broke out in 1914, having received a military training at Sandhurst. He joined the Grenadier Guards with the British Expeditionary force in Flanders and France in June, 1915, and served with his regiment throughout the war. He was awarded the D. S. O. for conspicuous gallantry at the third battle of Ypres, in July, 1917, and was also promoted, in the field to the rank of captain. He always intended to settle down in some part of the British dominions and he selected western Canada after a year's residence in Alberta.

English Estate.

His English estate does not include any landed property or country seat. It consists largely of city real estate, situated in London, and in such industrial sites as Coventry.

Lord Cheylesmore was a well known rugby football player and track athlete in his Eton and Cambridge days. He is a devoted outdoor sportsman and plays a good game of polo. He says he is not returning to England, but will make his home on his beautiful Alberta holdings. He belongs to the Guards, Whites and Turf clubs in London.

Lord Cheylesmore's tragic death in a motor accident recently found his son in the midst of summer's work. His presence was not required in London and he sent his solicitor to look after the necessary business connected with winding up of the estate.

Haskin's Letter

invading the province of the states. Insofar as motor taxes are needed for road improvement and maintenance the state is the agency to collect them.

The repair parts tax is a tax on misfortune, penalizing a man at a time of unexpected expense.

The war is over. The automobile has paid seven years of special war excise taxes. The surplus in the federal treasury permits elimination. All the federal motor taxes should be taken off at once.

This platform is the expression of sentiment of motor clubs throughout the United States, according to President Henry, and every effort will be made to convince congress that it is reasonable and sound.

It is estimated that the average tax which the purchaser of an automobile pays to the federal government amounts to $29. On a car that wholesales for $400 it would be $20 and such a car would retail at about $500.

"The man who expects to buy a car sometime soon," says the head of the motorists' big organization, "who is buying parts or tires, and who thinks he can use that $29, can accomplish a good deal by calling on his congressman, or writing to him, letting him know how the folks at home feel about it. Congress today is attentive. Its members want to know the public will."

RHEUMATISM

IT'S GONE! That awful agony! Rheumatism can't stand the rich, red blood that S. S. S. helps Nature build.

But rheumatism will bring pain and misery to your joints and muscles just as long as you are without plenty of rich, red blood in your system.

It's the red-blood-cells that S. S. S. helps Nature build that drive out of your system the impurities that cause rheumatism. And until you do build up your blood to where it is pure and rich and red, you simply can't get rid of rheumatism.

S. S. S. means millions of red-blood-cells—means health all over. No more rheumatism. Nights of rest—days of joy, filled with the happiness of accomplishment — made possible by a body brimful of red blooded life, energy and vitality.

That's what the end of rheumatism means—that's what S. S. S. brings to you. Get S. S. S. from your druggist. The larger bottle is more economical.

TWO DELEGATES TO DRY MEET

East Liverpool Men to Attend Chicago Conference.

Rev. Dr. Frank G. Fowler, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church and Frank Crook, retail furniture dealer, are among the 36 delegates from Ohio, named by Governor A. V. Donahey to attend the national enforcement conference, which will be held in Chicago, November 5-9, under the auspices of the Anti-Saloon League of America.

Various phases of bringing about a better enforcement of the liquor laws, national, state nad local, will be discussed.

The Ohio delegation includes three college presidents, eight ministers, many manufacturers, and business men. Among them are Dr. J. Knox Montgomery, president of Muskingum college; Dr. H. C. King, president of Oberlin college; Dr. John W. Hoffman, president of Ohio Wesleyan university, and State Prohibition Commissioner B. F. McDonald.

Among the speakers on the program are United States Senator William E. Borah, Idaho; General L. C. Andrews, national prohibition enforsement chieftain; District Attorney E. A. Olson, Chicago; Commander Dillard of the United States coast guard; R. H. Scott, president of the Leo Automobile company; Andrew Volstead, author of the prohibition enforcement law which bears his name, and others.

Miners' Secretary Denies Charges of Anthracite Chief

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 23.—Thomas Kennedy, secretary and treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, today sent a letter to W. W. Inglis, chairman of the Anthracite operators' Negotiating committee, in which he explained the miners' opposition to arbitration, denied the charges recently made by Inglis that only miners of the affiliated bodies of the American Federation of Labor are opposed to arbitration, and disagreed with the spokesman for the operators in his statement about wages and production.

Kennedy places most of the blame for the use of anthracite substitutes upon the operators, who, he charges, use bituminous coal in mine locomotives, urge railroads they control to use soft coal and have agencies advertise substitutes.

Kenndy declared that today coal is selling in some place for $22 per ton for chestnut size.

BISHOP FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 23.—Funeral services were to be held this afternoon for Rt. Rev. Edward M. Parker, 70, bishop of New Hampshire, who was found dead in a hotel room here yesterday:

Bishop Parker, who was attending the sessions of the Episcopal general convention, apparently had been dead since Wednesday morning, according to the coroner. Mrs. Parker was accompanying home to New Hampshire the body of William McElroy, lay delegate, when Bishop Parker died.

The body of Bishop Parker will be taken to Concord, N. H., tonight for burial.

BLOW FROM FIST KILLS BOY, 18

CANTON, Oct. 23.—George Yarick, 18 high school youth and athlete, was killed last night when struck over the heart by Horton White, 14. Yarick approached a group of younger boys and facing White said:

"Hit be in the chest as hard as you can." White at first refused, but when Yarick insisted, says he struck him with the back of his hand.

A moment later Yarick dropped dead. Coroner T. C. McQuate, after investigation, said he believed Yarick might have had an athletic heart, but will make a postmortem to fully determine the cause of death. He has exonerated young White from all blame and so have Yarick's parents.

SEEK WAR VET AS HOLD-UP MAN

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Federal authorities today sought John J. Phelan, shell-shocked ex-soldier with a police record, as one of 10 men who held up and robbed three messengers of the federal reserve bank here yesterday morning and escaped with $1,000,000 in non-negotiable checks.

Phelan was tentatively identified by Victor Flaska, one of the guards, by means of a police photograph, and his identification partly verified by his companions. Phelan was recently charged with six burglaries, but was sent to the Walter Hines ex-service men's hospital here for treatment. He was later sent to a northern sanitarium.

Bangor, Pa., Pastor Dies in Auto Wreck Near Jerusalem

JERUSALEM, Oct. 23.—Rev. Warner Lentz, aged 35, of Bangor, Pa., was killed and his three months' bride, the former Miss Perisis Schramm of Burlington, Iowa, was slightly injured when an automobile in which they were returning from the Mount of Olives overturned. A guide accompanying the party was also killed and the chauffeur was injured.

Rev. and Mrs. Lentz had intended to leave for Bagdad today with the Presbyterian Mesopotamian mission.

religion, however, to suggest that an efficient police force, refusing its share of the bootleg money, and courts of justice, operating speedily and surely, would help religion to curb crime.

Hard-headed bankers don't like to lend on churches, or theaters. They know nothing about theaters, don't consider them "a business." As for churches, they feel that nobody in particular is responsible and, anyhow, they wouldn't like to foreclose a mortgage on a church. It might bring "bad luck."

. This does not apply to a church organization well managed. The Chase National bank, of New York, has arranged to lend $1,500,000 to the Vatican, to buy a site for the new American Catholic college in Rome. The money is lent below 5 per cent and there won't be any trouble about collecting principal or interest.

It's a long way from the old Genoese bankers that used to finance the pope's enterprises, such as the building of magnificent St. Peter's, to the Chase National bank in lower Broadway in New York city. The empire of finance has come a long way west.

"Tokyo sees danger of war with Russia." That's the heading. Russians are too wise, and so probably are the Japense, to start a real war just now. But if war between white Europe and yellow Asia must come, the Russians might as well undertake it. Revolution arouses enthusiasm, and men for some reason fight well for a new government.

Russia might be glad to prove to Japan that she can't do to Bolshevik Russia what she did so easily to the Russia of czars and drunken or dishonest grand dukes.

Europe, with a face nicely washed, hair brushed, like a little boy appearing at a Sundaly school picnic, is coming for more loans, saying "I am not going to fight any more. Lend me."

There is plenty here to me borrowed. The National City Bank of New York shows deposits exceeding $800,000,000. The Chase National bank nearby has more than $450,000,000.

And as for money in the country, there is a good deal of it.

Attorney Fights Amber-red Light Traffic Regulations

AKRON, Oct. 23.—Attorney Robert Azar, of this city, claims there is no state law giving amber or a red light the power to stop him while driving in the streets. He was fined by Municipal Judge Carl Hoyt for disregarding amber signal at a downtown crossing, and now is carrying the case to common pleas court. He says he will go to the supreme court if necessary.

His appeal sets forth that it is not an offense in Ohio for him to show contempt for red lights at street corners by driving past them.

Pastor Re-Married

which made an extensive investigation, reporting for his reinstatement.

The commission, it is declared, expressed the opinion that the minister had been under suspension for six months which it felt was sufficient punishment. The report carried with it a reprimand for his conduct.

Recently Rev. Mr. MacEwan has been teaching in the public schools in Rankin.

Rev. Mr. MacEwan, when he first entered the ministry was a member of the Methodist Episcopal faith, having had charge of the Orchard Grove Avenue church for many years. He was transferred from East Liverpool and afterwards left the Methodist Episcopal church to become a Presbyterian. He returned to East Liverpool in 1916 and for two years was pastor of the Second Presbyterian church in East End.

Leaving here in 1918, Rev. Mr. MacEwan enlisted with the Y. M. C. A. in welfare work among the American troops. He was sent overseas, returning at the close of the war.

Bulgaria Appeals to League.

GENEVA, Oct. 23.—The secretary of the league of nations today received from Bulgaria a request that the league council immediately intervene in the Greco-Bulgarian embroglio.

"Thrice has Bulgaria invited the Greek government to appoint a mixed commission to determine the responsibilities for the outbreak and Greece has not replied," said the Bulgarian appeal. "Despite the fact that Greek troops have penetrated eight kilometres into Bulgarian territory, the Bulgarian government has ordered its troops to offer no resistance to the invaders."

League Council Meet Called.

PARIS, Oct. 23—The league of nations council was today summoned to meet in Paris at 4:30 Monday to consider Bulgaria's protest against the Greek violation of her territory.

M. Briand, French foreign minister, acting as president of the council, issued the call for the meeting after a telephone communication with Sir Eric Drummond, secretary of the league.

M. Briand sent telegrams to Greece and Bulgaria, urging that hostilities be suspended until the league of nations council has acted.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The motor and high-priced industrial stocks resumed their spectacular movement in the early trading today. With General Motors, Chrysler and Hudson, for the motors, and United States Steel and American Can, for the industrials, pushing forward aggressively, and industrial and specialty stocks advancing substantially above Thursday's closing prices, the bullish movement appeared to have been definitely resumed. Some liquidation appeared in the oil and railroad stocks in the process of "switching" to the industrials, but reactionary movements were rare.

A gain in reserves by the New York federal reserve bank sufficient to move up the ratio of reserves to deposits from 75.4 to 81.9 per cent was a satisfactory explanation of the easier tone displayed in the money market and an evidence of the strong position of the banks. Call money renewed at 4½ per cent for week-end loans. Delegates to the semi-annual meeting of the American Iron and Steel institute spoke in optimistic tones relative to the immediate future of their industry in particular and the prosperity of the country in general.

General Electric jumped 6½ points to 305½, and United States Steel resumed its place at the head of the steel stocks with a 2-point rise to 127½. United Alloys Steel was a leader in the low priced steel shares and Bethlehem rose a point to 43 on the strength of the excellent third quarterly statement submitted by President E. M. Grace.

Karolyi Case May Be Fought Out on Floor of Congress

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The Karolyi case is to be fought out on the floors of congress, it appeared certain today.

Countess Karolyi, wife of the one-time president of the Hungarian Republic, has been instructed to file a new application in Paris for a passport to the United States, emphasizing that the purpose of her visit is solely to be a guest at the home of Ralph Beaver Strassburger, wealthy Norristown, Pa., Republican leader.

If Secretary of State Kellogg persists then in denying her admittance to the country, a bill is to be introduced in the next congress repealing that portion of the immigration act which reposes in the secretary of state autocratic power to bar foreign visitors.

Broken Rail Causes Train Engine to Upset; Man Hurt

WATERLOO, Iowa, Oct. 23.—A broken rail early this morning caused the engine of the fast Great Western train No. 56 to "turn turtle," derailing six coaches. Not one of the scores of passengers was even slightly injured. Engineer James Liddell sustained a minor injury to his foot. The accident happened near Hudson, seven miles from here. The train was bound from Des Moines to the Twin Cities.

Whipped by necessity during the short-production postwar years, Germans increased the efficiency of modern boiler equipment from 55-60 per cent to 65-70 per cent.

Governors of 32 States Ask Repeal of Inheritance Tax

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Governors of 32 states united today in asking congress to abolish the federal tax on inheritances, and return to the various states the right to levy such taxes for their own treasuries.

Except in emergencies, the states have an inherent right to such taxes anyway, the governors contended.

The magnitude and vigor of the drive for repeal of the death tax on big estates was distinctly surprising to the congressional framers of the new law—so much so, in fact, that several members of the committee suggested it might be well to "investigate" the interests behind it.

Representative Rainey (D.) of Illinois, one member of the committee, declared that "for months there has been an intensive and expensive educational campaign on in my district to repeal this law."

"Arguments used against this estate tax are economically unsound," said Rainey, "but they are widely disseminated. I, for one, would like to know where the money comes from to finance this campaign.

Both Chairman Green of Iowa and Representative Garner (D.) of Texas expressed surprise at the growth of the "tax clubs" in their respective states. The Texas and Iowa clubs have had a field day before the committee, urging repeal of the estate tax. Telegrams also have been received from a tax conference at Portland, Oregon, reported to have been attended by representatives of fourteen western and far western states, also urging abolition of the inheritance tax.

DEATH ROLL

Reese Funeral Services.

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret Reese, 73 years old, will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home, 520 West Ninth street. Rev. L. J. Davison, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, will have charge. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery. Friends can view the body this evening.

150 GUESTS FLEE AS HOTEL BURNS

CINCINNATI, Oct. 23.—Fire in the Hotel Newland, 27 West Seventh street, at an early hour this morning drove 150 guests from the building lightly clad. The fire, starting from crossed wires, swept from the base of the elevator shaft to the roof. For a time the building appeared to be doomed, but after an hour the flames were brought under control by the firemen. After a man taking a Turkish bath had noticed smoke coming from the elevator and given an alarm, guests began hurrying from the rooms. Just then the lights went out and the hotel guests had to find their way as best they could, aided by the firemen. Nobody was hurt.

John W. Davis Mum On Politics as he Earns His Living

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—A year ago he made twenty political speeches a day, now he doesn't even think of politics.

This was the observation today of John W. Davis, defeated Democratic nominee in 1924, when asked to comment on the political outlook. Here to plead a case before the supreme court, Davis said:

"I'm trying my best to earn an honest living. I have nothing at all to say about politics."

"Have you any advice for Democrats?" he was asked.

"None whatever," was the cryptic reply.

WOMAN KILLED BY MOTOR CAR

Philadelphia Victim Believed Sister of Judge Allen.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23.—Believed to be the sister of Supreme Court Judge Allen, of Ohio, a woman died early today at the Hahnemann hospital from injuries received shortly before midnight last night, when she was struck by an automobile.

Relatives of Judge Allen's sister, in Cleveland, learned of the accident and immediately wired Philadelphia police to see of the woman's identity could be established.

Officials at the hospital said today there was nothing on the woman's clothing to indicate the city from which she came.

Members of the Allen family telephoned police that the sister of Judge Allen had been traveling but did not know her whereabouts at the present time.

The woman was struck by an automobile driven by John A. McCaulley, of this city. He took her to the hospital where physicians said she had a fractured skull. She died without regaining consciousness.

Home Brew Accessory Staple in Hardware Trade, Says Dealer

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 23.—Home brew accessories have become a staple item in the hardware trade, Charles H. Williams, of Streator, Ill., told delegates to the American Hardware Manufacturers' association convention here.

"The home brew accessory has become as staple in our town as nails," he said, "and it has replaced our saloon accessory trade."

Roslyn, Virginia, Is Threatened by Packing Plant Fire

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The village of Roslyn, on the Virginia side of the Potomac, narrowly escaped being wiped out by a fire that destroyed a packing plant last night. Fire apparatus from the capital was rushed across the New Key bridge to aid the fire fighters of nearby Virginia towns in extinguishing the blaze. The damage was estimated today at $300,000.

Two Naval Airmen Killed When Plane Crashes to Ground

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Two naval aviators, Sidney N. Smith of Norfolk, and Albert M. Summey, of Barberton, O., were killed yesterday at Guantanamo, Cuba, when their plane crashed during maneuvers.

The bodies will be sent back to the United States for burial, the navy department was advised today.

The First Iodine Salt for General Use

When health authorities requested the production of Iodine Salt as a preventive for Goiter, MULKEY'S was first to respond. Bombing Plane With Many U. S. Features Acquired by Britain

LONDON — A wonderful new bombing airplane embodying many United States airplane features is to be added to the British air force squadrons.

It is driven by an American D. 12 engine, and in many ways resembles the old type of Fairey aeroplanes, with which are incorporated certain American ideas which have been evolved from the high speed Curtis racers.

It is claimed that the machine is by far the fastest bombing aeroplane in the world, in fact, it is faster than many two-seater planes possessed by the British air forces. The machine has been built by the Fairey company, without interference from the British air ministry.

Never Heard of Coolidge.

BOSTON—Here's a man who never heard of Calvin Coolidge. James Elliott was brought to the United States marshal's office on a charge of selling drugs.

"Do you know who Calvin Coolidge is?" queried Special Deputy Marshal James A. Tighe. "Calvin Coolidge, Calvin Coolidge," muttered Elliott, racking his brain. "I don't recollect ever having heard the gentleman's name."

WAR VETERANS' BUREAU HELPS DISABLED MEN

Report Shows Notable Progress Made During Year.

CLAIMS SETTLED

New Rating Schedule Evolved; Ready to Operate.

INDIANAPOLIS — The United States Veterans' Bureau has made notable progress during the last year in caring for disabled World war veterans and their dependents, according to the annual report of the national rehabilitation committee of the American Legion.

The report, made public in part today, will be submitted to the legion's national convention at Omaha, Neb. It lists numerous improvements in bureau work for the year, including decentralization of the veterans' bureau, creation of a guardianship service and diagnostic centres, working out of a new rating schedule, a review of all old claims and a new attitude of helpfulness toward the former service man.

"By decentralizing the bureau, action now is taken on claims and ratings in the field, in contact with the claimant," the committee's report states. "This has very materially reduced the number of appeals, so that only a normal load of 918 cases were pending in the central office on June 30, compared with 2,000 a year ago.

"The guardianship service was created in May, to protect the interests of mentally incompetent veterans, aged and incompetent parents and widows and minor children, many of them orphans. This action was taken following disclosures that a number of guardians were misapplying funds. There are 31,000 bureau beneficiaries under guardianship.

"Two diagnostic centers have been established, where baffling cases which have defied diagnosis are sent for observation by specialists and for prescription of proper treatment. A third at or near San Francisco is being considered.

"A new rating schedule has been evolved and will soon be in operation. This schedule, which will take into account a veteran's pre-war occupation in rating his claim, is a great constructive task involving much pioneer work."

Irregular Attendance at Schools Causes Big Waste

Washington—Irregular attendance in the schools throughout the United States caused the waste of approximately $250,000,000 last year, according to an estimate made by the Department of the Interior through the bureau of education.

A study conducted by this bureau of 72,120 country children in 70 counties of 10 states indicates the median number of days of actual attendance of these children was 141.7 days. Half of the children attended school less than seven and one-half months, over one-fourth of the children attended considerably less than five months, and over one-eighth of them attended less than three months. Attendance in consolidated schools was slightly better than in one-teacher schools.

The median daily attendance, 79 and 60 per cent, respectively, was higher in schools providing nine-month terms for their pupils than in those providing seven-month terms, thereby indicating that longer terms usually mean better daily attendance. Pupils with less than 130 days of schooling averaged one and one-half years below grade in reading and spelling ability.

Other studies show poorer attendance among younger than older children. Many people expect this since the older children are more likely to attend school during bad weather. A more probable factor, no doubt, is the erroneous attitude of parents in considering it less serious for the younger children than for the older children to miss school. Trivial excuses such as "went to town," "ran an errand," "got up too late," "had shoes repaired," etc., are worse than none. Closer cooperation between the teacher and the parent should result in better attendance.

The bureau of education in connection with the estimate of waste stated that the effectiveness of a school system depends on the regularity of attendance of the pupils enrolled as well as on such factors as the quality of instruction and the length of school term.

Another Musical Comedy is Booked At Strand Theatre

Another rollicking fun show, "Somewhere in France," Billy Maine's latest offering with musical numbers, comedians and dancing girls and built upon a solid frame work of laughs, will appear at the Stand theatre next week.

There is a plot altho it is not heavy enough to give one trouble in following it. The principals, aided and abetted by the chorus, make the most of every line and situation. The costumes are more numerous and beautiful than those carried by the usual run of attractions of this kind. Billy Maine, the boob doughboy, programmed as "Private Goldbrick," is a riot of fun and the audience is kept in a continual roar at his serious mistakes. He has staged a piece well out of the beaten path of the casual revue in that the locale and the story concerns boys across the pond. It is filled with all kinds of musical comedy diversion. There is enough fun injected in the piece to put it over to a hit anywhere.

Billy Maine is a likeable and attentive type of juvenile comedian in the sensation start of the piece, with a ripe and clever characterization and with lots of original method in his fun making.

"Somewhere in France' gets out of the class of the conventional musical play by having a really true military atmosphere about it, and the settings and plot preserve this idea. It is a clean, wholesome and breezy production styled an "overseas revue." There is not one line, or word or action that is the least bit shady in the entire show.

Fashion Expert Predicts Return of the "Plug Hat"

Omaha, Neb.—American man is probably the best-dressed male. This is the opinion of Charles F. Wetzel of New York, president of the National Association of Merchant Tailors. The top hat and cutaway coat for formal afternoon wear and full dress for evening wear will soon regain the place they occupied in the American social life of a decade ago, Wetzel declared. Mr. Wetzel is on a tour of the country, studying conditions in the tailoring industry.

World Search Made For Ancient Valuables Taken From Monastery

VIENNA — A world search is being conducted by the Vienna police for ancient and valuable manuscripts and miniatures said to have been stolen from the monastery of Salzburg in July.

The police of all the world capitals have been asked to institute inquiries.

Apparently the person who stole the documents was a most discriminating thief, cutting out from the volumes in the monastery all the ornate initials from the valuable works. Inferior matter was ignored.

Folios dealing with the Acension of Christ and other religious subjects were extracted, and from the pages of a particularly ancient volume the thief cut out a number of folios upon which miniatures were engraved.

PRETTY SMART SET GIRL WINS PRINCE OLAF

New York Hostess Fails to Land Norse Son-in-law.

ATTENDS OXFORD

Half Dozen Britishers Sought Hand of Grace Vanderbilt.

LONDON—Rumors are current that the announcement of the engagement of Prince Olaf of Norway to a girl prominent in London society is imminent. Prince Olaf has just returned to London enroute to Oxford to complete his university career.

The announcement is expected to cause considerable heart-burning to a certain New York hostess who has been doing much entertaining in London on behalf of her daughter.

Prince Olaf was a frequent guest at her parties last winter and she was unwise enough to confide her ambitions to one or two acquaintances, and the story of her unfortunate failure is now going the rounds.

Grace Vanderbilt's "But."

Several men in London are disappointed over the announcement of the engagement of Miss Grace Vanderbilt to Prince Dietrichstein of Austria.

Her hand was asked in marriage by at least half a dozen members of the British aristocracy, but they were all told that she "did not feel like marrying at present, but—"

Big French dress houses with establishments in London are frantic at the delays to which their new autumn and winter frocks are being subjected by the British customs, owing to the silk duties imposed by the Churchill budget.

Considerable congestion exists at the channel ports, and everything must take its turn. So the exclusive creations can claim no precedence over silk stockings and unworked materials being sent over by continental manufacturers.

The Duchess of Roxburghe, nee Goelet, of Newport and New York, solved her own little problem with the customs in her own way. She was returning from Paris recently with $3,000 worth of dresses, most of which were of silk. The customs impounded them, stating that they would be sent on when they had been valued and the duty decided upon.

The duchess was due at a season opening ball being given by Mrs. Arthur Wales, of Washington, that night and she had set her heart on wearing one of the new purchases.

Customs officers were adamant, but the duchess finally persuaded them to let her take the frock, provided it was rushed back by motor from London the next day to take its place in bond Whether she used tears or smiles ye remains to be told.

RETURNS FROM SYNOD SESSION

Rev. W. T. McKee Back From Church Meet at Wellsburg.

Rev. W. T. McKee, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, has returned from Wellsburg where he attended the session of the West Virginia synod and Missionary society of the Presbyterian church. He was moderator of the synod last year and was succeeded this year by Rev. S. M. Gibson of Wheeling.

Rev. McKee submitted a report on bills and overtures at the closing session of the synod. John A. Shaw of Toledo submitted the annual report on nominations.

"Program and Field Activities" was the subject of an interesting and detailed report delivered before the synod by Charles Keesor, M. D., of Wheeling. A report of the committee on national missions by Rev. J. M. Potter, pastor of Vance Memorial Presbyterian church of Wheeling, brought the session of the synod to a close yesterday afternoon.

Parkersburg was selected as the next meeting place for both the synod and Missionary society. The latter organization at its final session re-elected the present officers.

PARENT-TEACHERS TO MEET MONDAY

Parent-Teachers association will meet Monday evening in the Central school building. The program will be in charge of E. M. Skipner who will give a demonstration in eighth grade arithmetic. Plans will be made at this session to put the school savings system into effect. A representative of the First National bank will be present and explain details.

CHESTER FACING HARD CONTEST

Chester high school football team is scheduled to meet Toronto tomorrow afternoon at the latter place. The locals have been holding practice sessions during the week and the same lineup that took part in the Wellsville game will probably face Toronto. The team will be accompanied by a large delegation of rooters.

Chester will play Salineville instead of Midland on Saturday, October 31.

DISTRICT RALLY HERE TONIGHT

Representatives of every church are expected to attend the Grant district Sunday school rally to be held this evening in the First Christian church. Rev. W. S. Hamilton, pastor of the New Cumberland Methodist Protestant church, will deliver the principal address.

Hancock county convention will be held in the First Presbyterian church here on Thursday and Friday, November 5-6. The committee in charge is arranging the program.

OFFICERS NAMED AT LODGE MEET

The election of Sir S. Raymond Snyder of Chambersburg, Pa., to the post of supreme commander and the selection of Trenton, N. J., as the site for the 1926 supreme conclave and convention were the high spots of the last session of the 42nd annual gathering of the Knights of Malta, held in the Wheeling Malta temple during the past four days. The convention adjourned late yesterday afternoon and a majority of the visitors left for their homes immediately.

WEIRTON BOY IS STRUCK BY AUTO

Anthony Kolanko, aged 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kolanko, Weirton, was seriously injured early last evening when struck by an automobile in Weirton. The lad is in the Ohio Valley hospital at Steubenville while Weirton police are endeavoring to establish the identity of the driver of the car which struck him.

The boy was crossing the streeet when struck by the machine, said to have been going at a high rate of speed. The driver did not stop and pedestrians rushed to the assistance of the boy. X-ray pictures were taken and will be read today to determine whether or not his skull is fractured.

FEDERAL JUDGE MAKES RULING

State and city officers were given the stamp of approval by Federal Judge W. E. Baker, who, in ruling on the validity of the Roy Morris case of Weirton, decided that arrests may be made by either state or city officers, who in turn, may bring their cases into the federal court for trial.

The court, however, issued a warning to all federal officers that they cannot raid homes without first securing a proper warrant with which to do so, and that they also must have proof that violations exist before they made the raids.

His first ruling, however, means that federal and state officers working together may make a raid and that the state and city officers can bring the defendant into the federal court, where they can appear against them as witnesses and secure conviction in the event that the evidence is sufficient.

The case in question was one in which Senator Ollie Marshall had appeared for Roy Morrison of Weirton, his place having been searched upon a John Doe warrant by federal and state officers.

Senator Marshall cited the ruling of the supreme court in the Angello case and stated that it was improper to make arrests without having a proper warrant, claiming that the John Doe warrant was not proper. The ruling of the court, however, is proof that the John Doe warrant is good where used by state officers.

SUES CITY FOR FEE OF $300

Attorney Boyd Files Action in Justice's Court.

An action to recover $300, attorney's fee, against the city of Wellsville, was filed in the court of Justice John Riley, Main street, yesterday afternoon by Attorney Charles Boyd, fromer city solicitor and aid to ex-Solicitor George D. Ingram during the street car fare controversy.

Mayor Barnes was served with a subpoena yesterday afternoon. The case is scheduled to be heard before Justice Riley on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, October 27.

In a bill submitted to city council recently Attorney Boyd asked a fee of $500 for services he rendered the city in not only the car fare case but the Davidson case, the latter ending in the state supreme court.

The bill was returned to council at Tuesday's meeting because of the lack of funds with which to pay it.

Attorney Boyd's action against the city, however, was for only $300, instead of $500.

REV. ZACKMAN HOLDS REVIVAL

Revival meetings are still in progress in the First Evangelical church here, in charge of Rev. E. L. Zackman, pastor.

Rev. Zackman is preaching at services every evening with the exception of Saturdays.

He delivered a sermon at last night's services on the subject, "For There Is No Difference", from Romans 3:22.

He pointed out that "people will wonder if there is no difference between a temperance man and a drunkard or glutton, or a truthful man and a liar; but of course all these traits are commendable as far as morality is concerned but keeping the law as far as possible will never save anyone. The law of God is our school master, or our looking glass, to reflect our true condition. Lots of so-called moral people are trying to justify themselves by keeping the law. In God's sight, sin is sin, regardless of the quantity". He gave a number of narrative examples of the points he stressed.

C. & P. BOWLERS START SEASON

C. & P. Shops of Wellsville have started their bowling league, composed of the following teams:

Duck league—Engine house, Smith shop, Boiler shop and Store room.

Ten Pin league—Boiler shop, Engine House, Machine shop, Master Mechanic's office.

On Monday night, the Engine house duck team took over the Smith shop in three games. Thursday night the Boiler shop ten pin team defeated the Engine house by taking three straight games.

F. Brown, of the Engine house, rolled the high score, 197. R. Pearch, of the Boiler shop, had high average, with 169½ pins.

This evening the Machine shop and the Master Mechanic's office will lock horns in a ten pin game, to start at 7:30. John Dugan, captain of the Master Mechanic's office team, has got some of the best bowlers in town on his roster and he figures his team will cut a wide swath, but O. S. Dick, leading the Machinists, expects to dispute his claims with an all-star outfit.

CHARLES FLOTO FUNERAL SUNDAY

Funeral services for Charles Floto, well known Wellsville resident who died yesterday morning in Mercy hospital, Pittsburgh, following an illness of pneumonia, will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of a son, John Floto, 926 Main street. The services will be in charge of Rev. R. W. Ustick, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church.

The body will be taken on Monday to Steubenville for burial. It may be viewed at any time prior to the services at the Floto home in Main street.

HIGH GRIDDERS AT LEETONIA

Face Hard Struggle With Seasoned Rivals.

A Wellsville high school grid squad far different from the one that led the last Orange and Black football pilgrimage to Leetonia a few years ago, will return to the north county town tomorrow for the annual battle.

Football fans still recall the scholastic combine that shook up the Leetonians for a 32-2 victory, when the latter eleven was nearing its peak in football prowess, but, contemplating tomorrow's engagement, see anything but a rosy outlook.

A team, which, save for two or three veterans, was practically a green eleven at the outset of the season, will compare its strength on the gridiron with a more or less seasoned Leetonia team.

Leetonia has lost Morbito, its great plunging fullback, the Altomares, End Sammon, one of the best in the country last year, Tackle Kunkle and Guard Guerrier.

But the reserves that have been called in to fill these holes are almost veterans themselves. Only the backfield shows greatly the effects of graduation. But here is Nicolette at quarterback, of last year's team, although Dean and Billet, halves, and Price, full, are newcomers, and, on season's performance, can not be ranked with the Altomares or Morbito.

However, the line shows strength. Every one of the seven regular forwards has passed the rookie stage. Clifford and Mowery hold down the ends; M. Price and Beltempo the tackles; A. Altomare and Ginther, guards, and Bianco, center.

This outfit walloped Salineville a week ago, 21 to 7. The fact that the Salineville eleven could score raises hopes of the Orange and Black.

EARL HILL HOST AT CLASS MEET

Earl Hill was host to members of the Eveready Sunday school class of the First Methodist Protestant church last evening at his home in Clark avenue. The class is taught by Mrs. Minnie Kiggans.

Games and contests were diversions following the regular business session. Prizes were awarded to Norman Householder and Hilbert Hudson, and the consolation to Norman Parr.

WOMEN'S CLASS TO HOLD PARTY

Verdict for D. A. Forbes

A jury in common pleas court at Lisbon has rendered a verdict for $100 and interest, since March 11, 1924, in favor of D. A. Forbes, against Alex Johnson.

The action was for $101.57 for money claimed due to Forbes and collections on old accounts by Johnson, who declared that all agreements had been abided by.

Man Acts as His Own Doctor When He Chops Finger

HAZELTON, Pa.—Persons have been known to witness their own operations after having been treated with local anesthetics but it remained for Ralph Viano to perform his own operation and thus save physicians fees and enable him to weather the effects of the anthracite coal mine suspension.

Ralph was chopping the head from one of his chickens and almost lacerated his finger. Rushing into the house with the lacerated member dangling, he called for a needle and fine thread and then sewed the frayed pieces of skin. He feels no ill effects from the wound.

COUNTY OFFICE FILES CLOGGED

Chattle Mortgages of Long Standing Still on Record.

Laxity on the part of mercantile interests who sell merchandise on the partial payment plan, and then take a chattle mortgage on the goods is clogging the files of the office of County Recorder Paul Smith, it was disclosed today.

Over 10,000 chattle mortgages are said to be still on record that should be cancelled, and these are of years standing. It has been discovered that many firms after a partial payment invoice has been paid in full, no word is sent to the county recorder to cancel the chattle mortgage, and as a result there is a steady accumulation of these papers.

It frequently happens that when the records are being searched and a chattle mortgage is found against certain parties, credit rating is impaired, and then the information comes forth that the chattle mortgage has long since been paid.

"We have thousands of these old chattle mortgages on file that should be cancelled," Recorder Smith said today. "It is not a part of the business of this office to make inquiry whether or not a chattle mortgage has been paid, but it does appear to us that firms who make use of such instructments should notify this office to cancel the mortgage as soon as the claims are paid in full. Our files are clogged with mortgages that we feel have long served their purpose, and which should be taken from the files and returned.

"Furniture concerns, automobile dealers and other dealers who make use of cattle mortgages should always be prompt in cancelling the mortgages as soon as their claims are paid. This cancellation is due those against whom the mortgages have been filed, and it is only good business to cancel the mortgages.

"There is another phase to this situation, and that is this: when people have completed their partial payments in full, and who know they gave a chattle mortgage on the goods, they should go to such dealers and ask for the return of the cancelled mortgage. This cancellation will show on the records of the recorder's office, and the credit to those who gave the chattle mortgage is made clear. Otherwise the credit standing is clouded for the time being.

"There are so many chattle mortgages being filed these days that we are in sore need of room, and should the thousands of old chattle mortgages be ordered cancelled, we would be in very good shape."

The matter of asking dealers for the cancelled mortgage will result in the quick cancellation of many instruments, in the opinion of Recorder Smith. These mortgages are then returned to the people who gave them, and credit title is again made clear.

TWO MORE FARM THEFTS REPORTED

Two more farm robberies have been reported to Sheriff George Wright, one at the farm of H. B. Zimmerman on the Fairfield road in Salem township where 65 head of poultry were stolen, and valued at $100, and another at the farm of Mrs. L. M. Carlisle on the Lisbon-Salineville road, where 40 head of Rhode Island hens were stolen, valued at $75. These thieves are declared to be the same crowd that has been robbing other farm houses of produce, and then taking their stock to a "fence" in Youngstown and disposing of the loot.

Woman Seeks Divorce.

A petition for divorce has been filed in common pleas court by Anna Montgomery, through her counsel Crawford and Cochran of East Liverpool against her husband Joseph Montgomery, residing five miles back in the country from Shadyside, Belmont county. The plaintiff claims that for six years her husband has failed to provide for her.

Non-Support Charged.

Clarence Smith, formerly residing at Ross Meadows, is in the county jail awaiting trial in probate court on a charge of non-support. Recently Smith was taken before Judge James G. Moore on a contempt charge, it being shown the court above that the defendant was then $1,100 back in his payments under a previous order of court growing out of a divorce action filed against Smith by his wife.

Woman Seeks Divorce.

Declaring that she was married at East Liverpool Nov. 23, 1915, May Furnival, through her counsel, Lones, Hill & Davidson of East Liverpool, has filed an action for divorce in common pleas court against her husband, Joseph C. Furnival. Gross neglect of duty is charged.

Action Filed.

An action has been filed in common pleas court by Willis Whinnery of Winona against E. H. Campbell of Salem, wherein the plaintiff claims $230 due him as commission on the sale of cattle valued at $2,300 and due January 14, 1920, and other claims for $50.

Case Settled.

A $35 appeal case growing out of the sale of a radio set, and which was heard by a jury in common pleas No. 2 Thursday was taken from the jury by Judge Walter D. Long and the court instructed the jury to render a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, W. F. Main and against H. M. Hartman.

MERCHANTS PLAN BIG CELEBRATION

Committees have been appointed and preliminary programs are being outlined for the annual Lisbon Merchants Mardi Gras which will be held in Lisbon the afternoon of Oct. 30 and also that night.

During the afternoon a street fair will be featured. Needle craft, pastry and farm products will be featured in all stores, and prizes will be awarded winners for the No. 1 and No. 2 awards.

In the evening there will be a street parade in which several bands will take part. Prizes will be awarded in a costume contest.

The Whitehill 10-piece orchestra from East Liverpool will play during a dance at the Rolloway, following which a number of prizes will be awarded on costumes.

The Merchants Mardi Gras has been a feature in Lisbon for a number of years. Last year, however, the event was combined with the Armistice day celebration, but this year the two events will be separated.

A meeting of the American Legion post has been called to discuss plans for the Armistice day celebration.

Middleton Trustee Denies Reports of Road Fund Transfer

J. A. Rudibaugh, Clarkson, president of the Middleton township board of trustees, today denied the published report that the township seeks to transfer $5,000 collected through the two-mill road levy for the Calcutta-Clarkson road to the new Cope Hollow route of the Youngstown-East Liverpool road.

The fund was set aside when the Sprucevale route was designated for the Youngstown-East Liverpool intercounty highway. Since then the state highway department has designated the Cope Hollow route.

Rudibaugh asserted that it was the intention of the trustees to use this money on the road for which it was originally intended. It will provide an improved highway from Clarkson to a point near the Clarkson Presbyterian church, about one fourth of a mile south of the village.

To Show Sacred Film.

The Reformed church of Lisbon will present the film the Passion Play at the Lisbon opera house Sunday evening. This film was to have been shown in Lisbon Sunday evening, Aug. 329th, but it did not arrive in time. The musical program will be in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bowman of Lisbon.

The morning service at this church Sunday will be in charge of the Rev. Dr. Horning of St. Joseph, Mo., district secretary of the board of Home Missions of the Reformed church.

Motor Truck Stripped.

A motor truck owned by Clayton M. Armstrong, residing on the Lisbon-Highlandtown road was stripped of tires, battery, tools and other movable parts, according to a report made to Sheriff George Wright. The windshield of a touring car was taken from the car at the same time the truck was "stripped."

NOTICE

Marriage Licenses.

Edward Kemp of Philadelphia, Pa., and Thelma Buckley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Buckley of Wellsville, rural delivery, have been granted a marriage license. They were married at the parsonage of the Lisbon United Presbyterian church by the Rev. J. M. Cameron.

The same minister performed the marriage of Robert T. Plant, a chemist residing at Niles and Eleanor Bowen of Salem, but a former resident of Niles.

George W. Williams, a machinist of Salem and Pearl Nusbaum, a nurse, also of Salem, but formerly residing at Van Wert, have been granted a marriage license. They are to be married by the Rev. Collier of Salem.

Leetonia

Leetonia is to have a lecture course this winter under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers' association. The course consists of four numbers, as follows: November 5, the Brown-Mencley company, composed entirely of men; November 27, a lecture by Judge George Allen; February 10, the Rocky Mountain quartet, a novelty singing and instrumental company; March 25, the Glenn Wells company, who will put on a two or three-act play, with a musical prelude of duets, soprano and baritone solos.

Tuesday evening the Leetonia Kiwanis club held a meeting at Perry grange hall, west of Leetonia. Dinner was served by the ladies of the Perry grange. The agricultural committe, consisting of S. H. Sitler, F. W. Flodding and Walter Peet, had charge of the program, which consisted of an address by Mr. Thompson, editor of the Farm and Dairy Journal, who gave an interesting talk. County Commissioner Conrad Berg presented the county bond road issue. The program was further augmented with special music by several members of the Perry grange.

Tuesday evening, October 27, the domestic science class of the high school will serve the dinner to the Kiwanis club at the Northside school building, with the program in charge of the educational committee, of which Wilbur S. Mellinger is chairman.

The Young Women's Missionary society of St. Paul's Lutheran church held an interesting meeting on Tuesday evening in the chapel. The lesson study, "Christ in Race Relations Through Education," was conducted by Mrs. H. C. Brillhart. The president, Mrs. John Wolfgang, presided over the business session. During the social hour which followed the meeting lunch was served.

Mrs. Spencer Jewell and daughter, Mrs. Max Detamore, of Salem, were guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Groner on Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Eva Ashley was a Columbiana business caller Tuesday.

Mrs. William Fenstermaker submitted to an operation Tuesday morning at the Central Clinic hospital, Salem.

Mrs. M. Smith of Chicago is visiting her sister, Mrs. Kate Knowles.

An Encouraging Sign of the Times

Reports recently made by the state of Ohio show that the assets of savings and loan organizations are not only greater than ever before, but are steadily and rapidly growing.

The growth of these institutions indicates that more and more people are being sold on the idea of saving money and investing their savings in the most profitable and safest investment known—the home.

Be An Author:

Our Fountain Pens can be used to write stories now appearing in the Saturday Evening Post, Literary Digest, Atlantic Monthly and the Review-Tribune. All you have to have is one of these pens, an idea and know how to write.

Invalids!

Modern science and invention have done wonders during the last decade in their efforts to make the daily life of the bedridden happier and more comfortable. Druggists naturally are headquarters for sickroom supplies. Why not look over our assortment if you have an invalid at your home.

A Dog And His Flea!

Every respectable, serious-minded dog should support a flea. Some dogs support whole colonies. Many very small dogs seem to devote their entire energy to collecting fleas. Skip Flea (a powder) is very, VERY discouraging to fleas and if sprinkled on a pup or dog tends to make them go away from where they're at.

Cenol!

A blood tonic for insects and bugs of all sorts. Makes them exceedingly ambitious to get away and strike out for themselves. Don't feed this to a pet roach or you'll soon lose him.

Beyond Us

Why anyone with one freckle or a hundred wants to get rid of it or them is not understandable at all; yet many do. So for 96c we will give you what is called FLYTE which allows you to tune out from them.

We Buy New Suspender Buttons!

An odd looking chap with a trick moustache saunters in one of our stores last week and after we'd sat around with him for about eight hours, losing a lot of sleep and getting in bad with the family, he goes away leaving us with a new idea on this business of advertising.

From now on this weekly spasm of writing an ad for Carnahan's over at the Review-Tribune is going to be a pleasure instead of a bore. I'm going to quit this idea of trying to build a cultured, erudite ad and am just going to talk like I do at home. This stranger showed me that if I had the right prices, the right goods, a real willingness to serve, how I told about it made no difference whatever. So instead of taking a day off to write this copy for The Review-Tribune, I'm going to tear off an hour — on wrapping paper too. Oh yes, he said we had to have interesting stores and even a smile on our faces. He further said that the smile should be of the kindly sort, come from a contented heart and not just plastered on for the occasion.

I've looked the prices, the stores, the goods, the smiles all over and I reckon we measure up, so from now on, once a week, on Friday, you can tune in on this page and listen to my concert.

JOHN CARNAHAN.

I'm the inventor of what is NOW known as the pill! As a side issue, I do press agenting. Carnahans' have hired me for their stores and each week I'm supposed to say nice and pleasant things about them.

I don't know Jack so very well yet but so far he gives me a pain! I found him yesterday sobbing over a penholder and an ink bottle, and when I wanted to know wot tell was the matter, he says:

"Just think of all the wonderful things I'm going to make that pen and ink say from now on in these ads! And before today I never appreciated what a mervous thing an ink bottle was!"

Now, wasn't that a heluva condition for a grown-up druggist to get in? I hope he cools off soon for this town sure is lonesome for me especially since Jack won't let me keep my dog. Say there's barely enuf room on this page for me letalone my dog, so between the dog's howls and Jack's sobs, I'm sufferin' plenty, what I mean!

Extra Specials for Saturday

Our average everyday prices are always the lowest. Bargain tables inside our stores will show some real deep cut prices for Saturday only which we do not have the space to tell about here.

Four Famous Movements

An earnest world gives stellar credit to Ingersoll, Ford, Jazz and Rhualo tables. Prices Ingersoll $1.75 to $10.00; Ford $25 to $650 according to Vintage Jazz 5c on up and Rhualo tablets 25c.

Face!

It sounds dumb mabbe but the wise MAN ought to be just as interested in the skin of HIS face as the WOMAN is about hers. A clean, bright skin attracts Men, so why not use the same stuff to make the WOMAN turn around when you're struttin' your stuff?

Police and Fountain News!

Drinks and cops are not supposed to meet. But to keep 'em apart is sure some feat. For the drinks we're selling are not the kind that all you readers have in mind.

The sort we sell, while they have their kick, don't kick you sick like a kick from a bric. They cool your tummy, soothe your mind—Dagone it, folks, they're the ONLY Kind!

Highs Tackle Lisbon In First Contest of County Campaign

Four Regulars and a Reserve Out of Tomorrow's Tilt; Affecting Principally the Backfield; County Seaters, Largely a Veteran Combine, Expected to Show Plenty of Speed and Probably Passing Attack.

East Liverpool high school griders tomorrow begin their offensive on the Columbiana county sector, playing at Lisbon, with the physical aspects of the squad geting worse with such celerity that Coach O. V. Boone, looking forward, not only to the Lisbon tilt but the game with Salem on the following Saturday, has visions of a Blue nad White lineup resembling very much the well known sieve.

No less than four members of the squad will be hors de combat when the team lines up tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock on the county seat gridiron.

McKim, guard, and P. Shaffer, quarter, injured recently; R. Shaffer, halfback, hurt in Saturday's game; Kinsey, guard, ill with influenza; and Todd, on the injured list are the quintet who will not don togs for the battle with the Lisbonites.

Todd is the latest addition to the hospital roster. During scrimmage session Wednesday evening he fractured a bone in one of his hands and it is quite possible that he will be out for a couple of weeks, anyway.

And that's not all.

Next week the quintet will become a septet when Guard Banks and Tackle Bough join the crowd. Both, according to Coach Boone, came out second best in a tussle with school work and they start their football loaf next week.

Kinsey, the two Shaffers and McKim are regulars. Todd is a reserve center.

Todd's absence will not be felt so keenly, inasmuch as Dick Larkins will be on the job. But if Larkins should happen to be forced out of the game, then Boone will be up against it.

Boone will have two good ends on the job, in Perry and Elmer English, as well as a couple of hefty tackles, Bough and Hanes. The one guard post will be well taken care of by Banks, but the other must be tendered either J. Hall or Irwin, both recruits this year. And then there's Larkins at center.

Captain Paul English, as usual, will furnish the big punch in the backfield corps, with Reibel and Allison at halves. Either McCoy or Heddleston will take the quarter post.

The Blue and White will be pitted against a light, but exceptionally fast Lisbon team. Speed, unquestionably, will be shot at the locals in large quantities, with Hum, Neigh and Cornelli as the offensive stars. These three lads have made up three-fourths of the Lisbon eleven's backfield for something like three or four years, and they're getting to know their football pretty well. It would not be surprising, either, to see a strong aerial attack launched against the Ceramic City combine.

STATE EXPECTS TOUGH BATTLE

COLUMBUS, Oct. 23.—With a place in the 1925 Big Ten football sun at stake, each day serves to strengthen the conviction that Saturday's game here in the Ohio stadium between Ohio State and Iowa will be one of the outstanding duels of the season.

Iowa's win over Illinois last Saturday convinced Ohio State followers of at least three things: that the Hawkeyes are just as powerful as earlier reports made out, that they have a fighting combination that never gives up, and that in Kutsch, to say nothing of some of the veterans in the backfield, they have a player who will bear constant watching.

Again it will be a partially revamped Buckeye eleven which will start the game. Bill Jenkins, veteran tackle, who last Saturday missed his first game in two seasons, apparently is destined for the shelf for some weeks longer because of his leg injury. His place was ably filled last week in the Columbia game by Uriwil, who, by the weay, rails from Iowa. Uridil is much lighter and only a sophomore, but his aggressiveness helps to amend for his inexperience.

Elsewhere on the line, John Nichols, the other tackle, is still not in the best of shape. Klein, center, who was hurt on the first play of the Columbia game, is expected to be available again, along with Ullery who replaced him and who was hurt on the second play of the fray.

Makeup of the backfield is a bit uncertain. Last Saturday's combination, something of an emergency quarter, with the veterans Bill Hunt and "Windy" Wendler out of it, functioned pretty well. Wendler probably will be fit to play again but whether he breaks into the lineup is not so certain.

WEST VIRGINIA RIVALS CLASH

Both Mountaineers and Methodists are Confident.

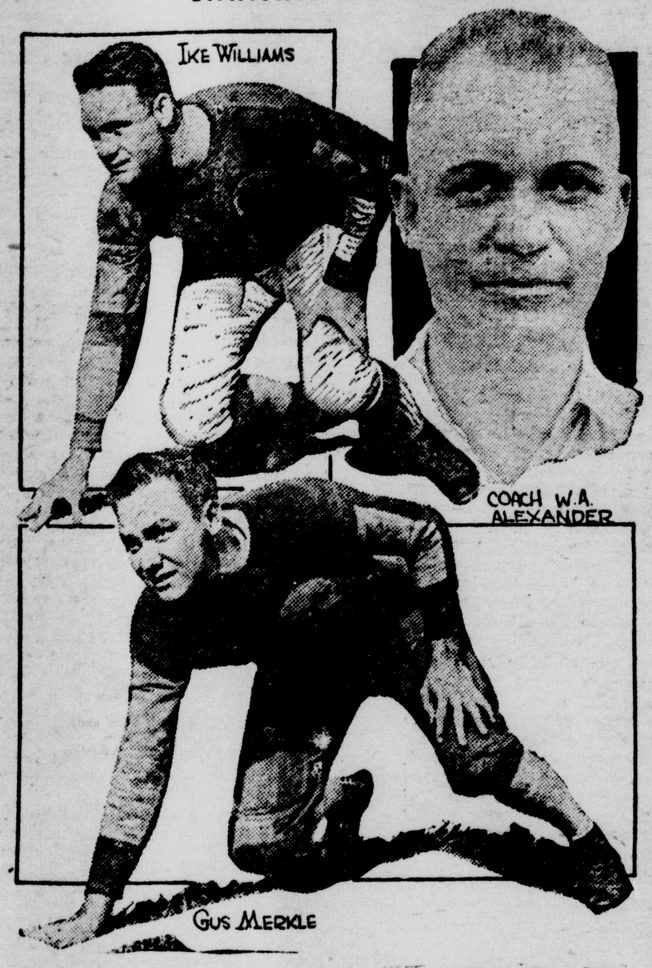
MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 23.—Scarcity of "bear stories" on the eve of the annual West Virginia-West Virginia Wesleyan gridiron battle is a sure sign that both Mountaineers and Methodists are going to have the full strength of their squads available for the clash. If either team had any gloom to spread the public would soon be advised of the facts. The dearth of pessimistic propaganda means that Wesleyan is making no secret of the fact that it expects to win this year, while the Mountaineers are confident that they will be able to turn the Methodists back again. Everything points to a thrilling skirmish when the two elevens lineup in the stadium here Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Eight of the eleven men named in Wesleyan's probable lineup are out-of state students. The three West Virginia products expected to start are Everett Brinkman of Wheeling, Meek of Buckhannon and Bullington of Charleston. Brinkman is listed at left end and Meek and Bullington at the tackles.

Captain "Reo" King, Methodist fullback, is from Apollo, Pa. "Chick" Weihl, quarterback, is from Marietta, O.; "Buck" Kraus is from Akron, O., and the other fullback, "Brownie" Corcoran, a native of Mount Vernon, O.

The center, Scheib, played at Arthur Hill high, Saginaw, Mich., before martriculating at Wesleyan last fall, and the guards, Moore and Kemerer, did their prep work at Pennsylvania schools—Moore at Connellsville high and Kemerer at Duquesne. Dick Alvis, sturdy right end, claims East Liverpool, O., as his home town. All of the probable starters, except Bullington, were letter men at Wesleyan last year and played against West Virginia. When it is taken into consideration that veterans of the ability of Raschella, Garrity, Dietrich, DeLong, Trainer, Reiter and others will be on the bench at the kickoff some idea may be had of Wesleyan's strength.

Georgia Tech's Early Victories Indicate It's Still "Tornado"



Georgia Tech's victory over the always formidable Penn State team and its general makeup indicate that the southern team may still carry the name "Golden Tornado." Above, the coach and two leading stars of the Georgia Tech eleven.

CHICAGO-PENN. EAST'S BIG GAME

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Chicago's invasion of the East, to meet Pennsylvania, is the high spot of tomorrow's football schedule.

Red and Blue supporters are confident that the eleven which sprang a big surprise last week by defeating Yale, will be too much for Chicago but Coach Lou Young has been quoted as declaring he expects the western eleven to furnish the toughest spot on Penn's schedule.

Yale journeys to Providence tomorrow to help Brown break in its new stadium. Rumors have filtered through that Brown will have other new things to show the Eli, notably some plays that are expected to bring about another Yale defeat.

Harvard is facing no pink tea in taking on Dartmouth at Cambridge. Dartmouth hasn't been scored against this year and had rolled up 199 points in crushing all opposition the Crimson supporters, none too happy after after last week's unexpected defeat by Holy Cross, are apprehensive of what may be in store for their eleven tomorrow.

Other big games in the East on Tomorrow's schedule are the Princeton-Colgate, Army-St. Louis and Columbia-Williams clashes.

PIRATES PART WITH PLAYERS

Bigbee, Moore and Culloton Traded in Deal.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 23.—Two heroes of the recent world series, Carson Bigbee and Eddie Moore, infielders, in addition to Bernard Culloton, pitcher, will be sent to the San Francisco Seals under terms of a deal which brings two Pacific Coast players to the Pittsburgh Pirates, it was reported here today.

Hal Rhyne and Paul Warner, youthful sluggers of the Seals, join the Pirates next season, the world champions having paid the San Francisco club $85,000 for their contracts, besides releasing three players to the Seals.

It was Bigbee's clout in the deciding game of the series with Washington that started the victorious rally in the late inning. He filled the utility role during the regular season, however, and got into the world series only as a pinch hitter.

"We're Rotten," Says Gloomy Gil; Maybe, Some Time, He'll Be Right

As a Matter of Fact, Says Walsh, Cornell is Neither Good nor Terrible, Just Like a Young Fellow Trying to Get Along.

This is the fifth of a series of articles by Davis J. Walsh on teams of the east and middle west. The others will follow daily.

By Davis J. Walsh.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 23.—"We're rotten," said Mr. Dobie, without parley, preamble or debate.

One of these times, some team is going to beat Cornell by a score of 56 to 0 and Mr. Dobie will be substantiated in every respect. With good will toward all and favor toward none, the writer hopes this condition of affairs will transpire with all due haste. He has become a bit wearied of Mr. Dobie's phobia, so to speak.

As a matter of fundamental fact, Cornell is neither good nor goshawful. It is just like a young fellow trying to get along.

Of the eleven men who start a football game up this way, seven are sophomores. Mr. Dobie, with his customary eye for detail, is looking ahead. For the moment, he has one good tackle and that is almost enough. Give Mr. Dobie a tackle who knows his business on attack and you usually give him a shotgun with the muzzle pointed in the general direction of somewhere.

"I am sorroy I have a captain," Dobie has been quoted as saying. "Otherwise, I would have only ten men to pick."

This, to the writer, is so much malarky, in view of the fact that the captain in question is Kearney, rated as one of the best tackles in this section last year. They do say, however, that one Baird would have had Kearney's job this year if Kearney hadn't been captain of the outfit. You can give this story what it may be worth, or even less.

The significant fact is that Kearney has started all of the games to date with Hill is a running mate and Baird in reserve. They say that Evens, who has been hurt, is another good tackle.

All of those mentioned, with the exception of Kearney, are sophomores. Other second year men on the Varsity team are Carey, guard; Rapuno, center; Courtright, end and Gassner, Butterfield, Islay and Rosenberg, backs.

By and large, they make quite a football team and Cornell, with its usual shock absorbing schedule, should coast right along to the Pennsylvania game, where it will cease to coast quite abruptly and without further notice.

Dobie expects to lose to Pennsylvania this year, which is nothing unusual. He expects to lose to everybody and sometimes he is right. However, the chances are good at this moment that Cornell will not lose by three touchdowns as it did in 1924, in spite of the ineligibility of Molient, its star plunger.

Its ends, Eddy and Fennell, are experienced but not as good as the 1924 pair. The tackles are better. So are the guards, with Munns, the best man in the center of the 1924 line, still holding forth.

Affeld was a right good center last year, but the boys say he has finished second to Rapuno thus far this season. This either makes Rapuno a remarkable center or the boys remarkable fabricators.

The backfield punch is supplied by Wesser at quarterback with his kicking, running and passing. He was in the 1924 combination and is quite a worthy youth. Islay, Gassner, Carpenter, Fratt, Butterfield, Rosenberg, Hand, Robinhood, Sinclair, Trefts and others also take a whirl at the backfield game.

None of them are really good, none of them are really bad. Even Mr. Dobie would agree with this statement if he wasn't Mr. Dobie.

Fort Wayne to Honor Man Who Planted First Nursery in West.

Washington.—The chamber of commerce at Fort Wayne, Ind., has instructed a committee to locate, mark and make accessible to the public the grave of Johnny Appleseed. This action on the part of the business men of Fort Wayne arouses public interest again in a man whom Secretary Sherman once described as "one of the most striking figures this republic has ever produced."

In 1847 a representative from Ohio, on the floor of the house of representatives, announced the death of "an old man who has done more for the West than any other man of his era." He alluded to John Chapman, popularly and affectionately known as Johnny Appleseed, who planted orchards and nurseries in the wilderness of Ohio and Indiana in advance of civilization.

Meager knowledge of Johnny Appleseed rests chiefly on tradition and legend. He was born in Springfield, Mass., in 1775, the year the embattled farmers stood by the rude bridge and "fired the shot heard round the world." Johnny's half-sister, who went West long after he did, said that when he was a boy he was fond of nature; he loved the flowers and the birds and the animals, and on summer nights he would lie on his back for hours gazing up into the starry heavens.

Disappointed in Love.

Why John Chapman left his native state to wander in the Western wilderness is one of the mysteries of his life. It has been a fertile but futile subject of speculation for generations among poets, novelists and historians. A tradition says it was disappointed love which drove him from his neighbors and friends and relatives in the Old Bay state; and this belief has the very faint support of the fact that Chapman never married.

He appeared as a wanderer in the valley of the Potomac in 1799. The following summer he was in western Pennsylvania. One day in the fall of 1800 a woman living on the banks of the Ohio river near Steubenville saw a crazy-looking craft floating down the stream. It consisted of two canoes lashed together, heavily loaded with bags and piloted by a barefooted, oddly dressed man wearing a broad-brimmed hat.

It was John Chapman with a cargo of apple seeds which he had gathered from the cider presses of Pennsylvania. He told the woman he was on his way into the wilderness to plant nurseries in advance of the pioneers. "My mission in life," he told her, "is to have apple trees ready for the settlers when they come."

Physically Johnny Appleseed was a man of medium height and spare build. The generosity and sincerity of the blameless soul within were reflected in his soft blue eyes. Had it not been for his clownish garments he would have been a handsome man; but it was his conviction that man should not clothe himself for show but only to cover his nakedness. He was not an ignorant or illiterate man; his conversation bore the marks of the good training and education he had received in his youth. He was of a meditative and deeply religious turn of mind, professing himself a disciple of Emmanüel Swedenborg, whose teachings he had somewhat, perhaps unconsciously, modified to suit his own convictions. His two missions in life were to make converts to his religion and to plant apple trees in the wilderness.

First Nursery in Ohio.

His first nursery, so far as known, was in a narrow valley along the Ohio, opposite what is now Wellsburg, W. Va. Later he penetrated the interior of Ohio, and for years his chief field of operations was along the Muskingum and its tributaries. He went westward as far as eastern Indiana as civilization moved in that direction. It is estimated that this eccentric man set out more than one hundred nurseries in the forest. Many of the finest orchards in the early days of Ohio and Indiana were composed of trees bought from Johnny Appleseed, the patron saint of American orchards.

Equipped with an ax, a hatchet and a Virginia hoe, he would seek out a protected spot among the trees near a stream; there he would dig up the soil until it was thoroughly pulverized and plant several thousand apple, peach and pear seeds. Then, after building a brush fence around the infant nursery to keep away deer and other grazing animals, the pioneer orchardist would continue his journey until he found another suitable place for a nursery.

Settlers Find Fruit Trees.

When the settlers arrived from the East they found fruit trees waiting for them, to be bought for practically nothing. A "fippenny bit," which was worth about one-sixteenth of a Spanish dollar, was the customary price for a tree. But if the pioneer had no money, if he could not afford the fippenny bit, he got his trees anyway, either on credit or in exchange for a few old clothes which Johnny Appleseed was only too glad to get. Fortunately, there is still in existence a piece of paper containing some of Johnny Appleseed's writing. It reads as follows: "Due John Oliver one hundred and fifty trees when he goes for them to some of my nurseries on Mohican waters. John Chapman."

500-Mile Alaska Trail Marked by Willow Trees

Anchorage, Alaska.—One of the most remarkable instances of native ingenuity discovered in northern Alaska is a posted trail, 500 miles long, through an unusually desolate region of the Iliamna Lake district.

The trail is marked for its entire length by posts made of willow trees, sunk deep into the ground. Nearly every post has sprouted out and grown into a large tree. Every now and then along the route native characters and English words denote distances from various camps and villages. The important cannery towns of Togiak and Nushagak are situated along the marked trail.

The long willow guide highway was built something after the poll tax system. Each summer any native traveling along the route was expected to set as many willow posts as his time might permit. Often for small offenses natives were fined to set willow posts.

Today the willow lined trail serves during summer for a mail route and a stage line follows its circuitous wandering. But in mid-winter when the snow lies deep the dog sledges are always certain of the location by the silver coated willow branches, and the leader dogs instinctively know that to follow the tree lined trail means a sure and swift end of the journey.

Oldest Republic in World Without Taxes

Paris.—One country which is not worried by the tax question is Andorra, the oldest and smallest republic in the world. It lies deep in the heart of the Pyrenees between the French and Spanish claims of that range.

Besides knowing no taxes it knows nothing about bathtubs, automobiles, radios, jazz bands, "complexes" and wars. It maintains an "army" of only six soldiers, one for each village, "in case of aggression."

The ledgers of the French ministry of finance each year charge Andorra 960 (about $50) as a levy originally laid by Louis le Debonnaire. Each year before the mule trails close for the winter, the French collector goes on his annual visit to Andorra to demand 960 francs.

The councillors deliberate seriously as to whether they shall make the contribution, and then, with staged reluctance, hand over a heavy and worn goatskin sack.

Legend has it that the sack does contain 960 francs—in lead coins and plugged francs, all worthless money which has found its way from France into the realms of the tiny republic. All of which may explain France's reluctance to accept that mysterious goatskin bag.

Michigan Breeds Herd of Pure Albino Deer

Detroit, Mich.—On Grand Island, a game refuge in Lake Superior, is a herd of partial and pure albino deer—the result of breeding from albinos originally taken by capture. Men have previously bred albinism into various animals, as the white rats and mice, and domestic rabbits, but this experiment constitutes the first attempt at such selective breedings with any of the large mammals.

That which has been accomplished on Grand Island, and with comparative ease, is difficult of accomplishment in a state of nature where the albino is cruelly conspicuous and speedily hunted down by man or the hunting beasts.

There have been occasional reports of albino deer in Oregon. Always the white coat proves the animal's undoing. There is no rest until it is slain.

Drain Old Bog to Find Prehistoric Man's Relics

Saskatoon, Sask.—Fossil hunters of the Royal Ontario museum digging in an ancient bog near Dundurn, 25 miles south of here, for some trace of North American prehistoric man, have erected a diaphragm pump on an elevated platform beside the swamp.

Through a hose the water is drawn off each day. An unknown species of antelope, a quantity of buffalo bones and Indian relics have been found. It was believed the pool served as a watering place for man and beast thousands of years ago and that in the lower strata of its sand will be found the imprint of the unknown North American prehistoric man.

Student Loans Safe

Washington.—Loans granted to students on a character basis and for purposes of study are reported by the Harmon foundation to be good pay. More than 40 per cent of the $26,385 loaned to students during the year 1922-23 has been paid, though according to agreement only 29 per cent was due on February 1, 1925. The foundation reports that not a single account is likely to default.

"Still Strikes" Now Popular in Paris; Many Cases Cited

PARIS—"Still strikes" are becoming very popular in Paris.

Only recently the "Allo girls" sat still at their switchboards and let their call-lights burn brightly for a period of two hours. Telephone clients were helpless. On the same day the telegraph operators and messenger boys let the dispatches pile up on their desks and cared little for the people anxiously awaiting important news. The employes wanted more pay and this is the French was of demonstrating.

Next were the bakers, announcing they would close their shops for two hours. Like the others, this was not a strike, but a gentle intimation of dissatisfaction in regard to their hours.

The butchers don't like their slaughterage tax which the wholesale dealers make them pay and have announced their intentions of passing it on to the consumers. These "still strikes" are much less dangerous than a deal of mudslinging and breaking of windows and perhaps do just as much good in the settlement of differences.

Soviet Government Takes Steps to Build Up Merchant Marine

MOSCOW—First steps in the program for building up a Soviet merchant marine were taken here with the appropriation of $10,000,000 to start construction of 31 steamers. Orders have already been given to the Leningrad Shipbuilding trust, the State Machinery trust and the yards in Nikolaev, Sebastopol and Odessa, to begin work upon the new vessels.

Eighteen of them will go into the State Merchant marine for service on the high seas, two will be assigned to the Naphtha syndicate, and 11 will be devoted to the Caspian fleet.

"EQUINOCTIAL" STORM A MYTH, SAYS OBSERVER

EXPLAINS BELIEF

WASHINGTON.—In the old school days you learned about "equinotical storms" at this time of the year? They are a myth and have no standing in meteorology, according to a statement today by the American Nature association. This will shock thousands who have carried from school days some hazy information about "equinoctial storms,' such as caught the Shennandoah. They are line squalls.

"No maximum of storm frequency found, according to statistics, either in this country or in Europe, close to the date of either equinox," according to the American Nature association, which publishes an extended statement on the point in Nature Magazine, by C. F. Talman, of the United States Weather Bureau.

"Of course, in the long run many storms do occur about these dates, just as they occur at all other times," the writer points out, "but there is no scientific reason for supposing their occurrence can be connected in any way with the sun's passage over what the schoolboy described as a 'menagerie lion running around the earth.'"

An "equinotical" is looked for in the United States particularly in the Autumn. The Autumnal equinox occurs during the season of West India hurricanes, and it occasionolly happens that storms of this character sweep up our eastern seaboard within a week or two of the date in question, extending their influence far inland. These events have probably helped to foster the widespread belief in an Autumnal equinoctial storm.

"The Shenandoah was caught in a line squall," the statement continues. "A balloon or aeroplane would not have been exposed to similar strain and would probably have weathered the gale.

"In fact, part of the wrecked airship, containing some of the gas bags, was wafted to earth twelve miles from the scene of the disaster, carrying several members of the crew to a safe landing.

"The squal that caused this tragedy of the air takes its place in the catalog of historic storms. It brought to general knowledge the fact, previously little realized except by weathermen and airmen, that storms can wreak their fury by blowing vertically as well as horizontally. It also naturalized the term 'line-squall' in the popular vocabulary.

"Violent upward and downward movements of the air prevail in all squalls and thunderstorms. This fact has been known for many years, but it has only recently assumed practical importance. Formerly only the birds and occasional balloonist were whirled aloft or dashed downward by vertical gales, but today such gales threatend the lives of an army of aeronauts.

"Squalls, like tornadoes, are of such brief duration and generally of such limited area that they defy prediction by means of the ordinary machinery of weather forecasting.

Big Wind in 1839.

"As to storms, the 'Big Wind in Ireland,' January 6-7, 1839, according to contemporary newspaper accounts, was one of the great weather disasters of modern times.

"The 'Great Storm' of 1793 is supposed to have been the most severe tempest that ever visited the British isles. It cost the lives of more than 8,000 seamen, including some 1,500 men of the Roval Navy.

"The Barbados Hurricane of 1780 was probably the most destructive hurricane that has occurred in the West Indies.

PREMIER KATO REAL FIGHTER, JAPAN LEARNS

Prime Minister Proves Raging Lion When Aroused.

FOES SURPRISED

Fights for Tax Reforms; Prince Regent Supports Him.

TOKIO—Japanese politicians and observers of Japanese politics are beginning to suspect that, beneath the benign exterior of Viscount Takakira Kato, the prime minister, there lurks the spirit of a valiant fighter.

Several leaders of opposition political parties have had occasion very recently to observe that Premier Kato is a lamb—up to a certain point. Beyond that point he is a raging lion. And withal, they have learned, he is not to be sneezed at as a political tactician.

It became evident several months ago, when Gen. Baron Giichi Tanaka resigned from the army to become leader of the Seiyukai party, that the end of the coalition government, composed of the Kenseikai, Seiyukai and Kakushin club and headed by Premier Kato, was in sight. It was recognized that Gen. Tanaka had political ambitions that would make continued cooperation between his party and the Kenseikai, of which the premier is the leader, very difficult.

What the ambitious opposition leaders fondly hoped—and expected — would happen was that the coalition cabinet would collapse, Premier Kato would pass from office and a new government composed of stalwarts of the opposition would come into being. On July 31 a part of this came to pass when the coalition cabinet resigned after an tempestuous discussion of taxation policies. The rest of the program, like the "best laid plans o' mice and men," went decidedly "agley." Viscount Kato is still prime minister of Japan and it would be very difficult to foretell when his tenure of office will end.

When the dispute over Premier Kato's taxation reform proposals arose in the cabinet, the prime minister patiently endeavored through several red-hot cabinet sessions, to persuade his Seiyukai colleagues to accept his point of view. It was when he realized that this was impossible that the lamb-like premier turned lion. He forced the issue, long impending, by demanding that the recalcitrant Seiyukai ministers resign.

The Seiyukai ministers and their party leaders wer astonished. They had not expected temerity or such decisive action from the premier. They angrily refused to tender the demanded resignations.

This refusal, under the Japanese system, compelled Premier Kato to offer to the prince regent the resignation o fthe entire cabinet. This he promptly did and almost as promptly the prince regent reappointed Viscount Kato to the premiership. Kato appointed three members of his own party to fill the portfolios previously held by the Seiyukai and resumed business at the same old stand with an all Kenseikai ministry.

It was good political tactics on the part of Premier Kato to force the issue as he did. By so doing he was able to place the Seiyukai party in the position of opposing taxation reforms and economies which undoubtedly are popular with the country. All informed observers admit that he outmaneuvered Gen. Tanaka, the Seiyukai chieftain.

The tactical battle did not end, however, with the reconstruction of the cabinet. In breaking with the Seiyukai, Premier Kato lost what was ostensibly a working majority in the lower house of the diet. To offset this, he immediately began negotiations for an alliance with the Kenkyukai, the strongest party in the house of peers. These negotiations were fruitful and several of the leading members of the Kenkyukai accepted appointments as parliamentary vice-ministers in the Kato cabinet. Thus the Kato ministry virtually dominates the house of peers which, despite certain rather innocuous measures passed by the last diet, is still a powerful factor in Japanese legislative circles.

Aged Colored Woman Awarded Pension By U. S. Government

TIN TOWN, Montgomery county, O. —After years of poverty and struggle, a beautiful sunset glow is illuminating the last days of an old negro "mammy" here.

She is Mrs. Alice Atkinson, 87, once a slave in Kentucky. Uncle Sam himself put the silver lining on "Mammy" Atkinson's dark clouds.

The old negress has just received a government check for $2,572.17 for back pensions at $30 for nearly 25 years.

After the Civil war the heroine of this tale moved to Lawrenceburg, Indiana, where she married. In 1892 her husband died. She then moved to Dayton, Ohio, and married Private William H. Atkinson, Company A, 9th regiment, U. S. A., Negro infantry. He died in 1901 and she married a Spanish War veteran seven years later. He died in 1924.

Mrs. Atkinson applied for a pension as the widow of Private Atkinson, after it was discovered that her husband had neglected the little formality of divorcing a wife in Florida before marrying her.

Uncle Sam granted her pension appeal.

LONDON — England now has one automobile to every 78 inhabitants, according to the latest statistics, compared to one for every 11 inhabitants in the United States. This number, however, does not include commercial and public vehicles, which bring the total to over 1,500,000 motor vehicles.

"Critica" to Open New Newspaper Plant in City of Buenos Ayres

BUENOS AYRES — Critica, one of the leading South American newspapers and having the largest circulation of any newspaper south of the Mason-Dixon line, has purchased extensive new quarters on the Avenido Mayo, one of the principal streets of Buenos Ayres. The new property is now being remodelled to meet the needs of Critica and will be occupied by the newspaper next spring.

New Hoe presses and a new electrotyping plant, with new modern machinery throughout, are being installed. When the plant is completed it will be one of the best equipped and most modern newspaper plants in the world. Senor Natalia Botana will continue as director of Critica and Enrique Noriega will continue as business manager, in the new quarters.

SURRENDER

The Story Of A Girl Who Dared

By Edgar Poe Norris

CHAPTER 76.

Always the weakness of a woman is her heart. Amoura Ainsley, reading Tommy Loughley's letter, had an irrepressible desire to see him. The note was brief enough:

"I'm leaving Chicago tomorrow for an automobile trip east, and I'm plotting my course through Westland in the hope that I shall be able to see you. I imagine, and hope, that you have recovered from your amazing experience. I endeavored to see you after I learned of your release, but you had gone. Sincerely, Tommy."

In spite of herself, by one of those inexplicable impulses, out of that inerta produced by a heart bereft and fatigued, she felt a strange, listless attraction toward Tommy Loughley. She wanted to see him, to see the glint in his eyes. She assuredly did not love him; the idea that she might have become his wife seemed to her fantastic. Yet, the thought of seeing this young man, toward whom she felt so indifferent, did give her a kind of satisfaction which she involuntarily enjoyed.

The thought of Tommy naturally brought Vey Ardle to mind, for in her memory-box the shapes of the two lay together. Why hadn't Vey written her? She tried to tell herself that she didn't care. That last evening of theirs. . . . . She wondered how Vey felt, remembering that he had left her at five o'clock in temper because she had tolerated Dulcays' exagerated attentions, when he read the details that same day, or the next, of the kidnaping? And no word from him since then—from the one who had told her so thrillingly: "I don't know your name, or anything about you, but I do know that I love you."

"You look tired, Amoura, dear," said the elder woman, looking up from a volume of Henley's poems.

"I'm not, mother. Tommy Loughley, a young man with whom I became good friends in Chicago, is driving through Westland—tomorrow, I suppose. I'd like to have him come to dinner."

"Very well." Mrs. Ainsley regarded her daughter doubtfully. "What sort of young man is he?" She was thinking of Johnson.

Amoura, discerning her mother's mind, smiled. "Oh, he's very nice. I met him at Cicely Swiftson's house party." She wondered what her mother would say if she was told, "He proposed to me the first time we met."

The mistress of the house, who had done no entertaining since Amoura's disappearance, was pleased at the prospect of seeing someone besides her own family at the dinner table. "Tell Hinton today what you want served. I'd like to suggest canard a la Pertinset. Your father likes it, and I'm sure Hinton can obtain some nice ducks."

Amoura, eyes sparkling, said: "Let's have a litle French dinner. It'll surprise Tommy to know that there is such a good French cook in the provinces. In Chicago they have the idea, I guess, that down here we feed on corn pone and salt bacon. Chicago is a barbaric Babylon, you know, but they look upon us as quite uncivilized."

Mrs. Ainsley's mind was not upon her daughter's small talk. She was wondering about this young man from Chicago. Was he in love with Amoura? Intuitively, she was afraid. Amoura, with Philip Weinrich lost, might be foolish enough to marry any young man who asked her. Mrs. Ainsley was worried.

"We can have, besides canard a la Pertinset, pommes de terre a la creme, choufleur au beurre noir, salade beaucaire, peches au vin. . . . Don't things sound wonderfully good to eat in French? Duck, creamed potatoes, cauliflower, celery salad, peaches in wine—in English they're so commonplace."

Mrs. Ainsley pretended to be chiefly occupied with her book, but she was watching Amoura furtively. Was her daughter gayly concealing a broken heart?

"I'm going down the street and see what I can get to wear. I haven't a decent gown to my name."

"Someone was saying that Venier's has some new importations," her mother confided.

"Probably copies made for all the department stores in the land, but I have to have something."

The joy of buying, of commanding sales people and of smiling disdainfully at the few models with which Venier's attempted to be "Parisian," plunged Amoura into a buying orgy. When she returned to Ainsley house late in the afternoon, the chauffeur followed her through the portal laden with boxes.

Her mother witnessed the opening of the packages by Della. There was a reproduction of a Jean Patou creation, a gown of heavy, deep red crepe, with a line given by a wrapped girdle over which the bodice bloused slightly.

"You always look well in red," Mrs. Ainsley commented. "It heightens your color, which is none too good, as you must know."

There was another gown, looking like the work of Lanvin, gleaming gold and light brown providing a background for the complexion that was "none too good."

The frocks, the pick of Venier's collection, were a delight to the eye. One had all its movement massed in front, and a plain back; the material was green brocade, embroidered discreetly with green and strass stones. Another frock was a black crepe bordered with patterned gold, wifth green collar and belt.

Besides the gowns and frocks there were two hats, two pairs of pumps in tones appropriate to the gowns, and a lounging robe.

"I simply must have a new coat. Venier's haven't a thing I'd wear," Amoura commented.

"A rather colorful assortment," Mrs. Ainsley decided looking over the contents of the packages again. "Just the very thing for your work in Stone street."

Amoura looked up, puzzled. "Mother, you don't believe I'm serious about working down there. I'm going to show you."

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

SHOWS THAT WINDS BLOW UP AND DOWN

Accident to Shenandoah Due to Vertical Blast.

Washington.—That winds blow up and down as well as horizontally was forcibly brought home to many people for the first time by the destruction of the Shenandoah. Far from being unusual, such "vertical winds" lie at the heart of some of our best-known weather phenomena, according to a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Every flash of lightning that you see, or that you hear as thunder, and every pellet of hail that falls is probably due to a 'vertical wind,'" says the bulletin. "These are the fruits of rather violent upward and downward blasts. If you consider as well the gentler rising and falling currents—the 'vertical breezes,' let us say—you must take pretty much the whole field of weather for your sphere.

Important Weather Factor.

"Practically every surface wind, whatever be its direction or speed, is moving along to replace air which has risen. Clouds, too, are built by rising air. The elusive little circles on weather maps that denote 'lows' and 'highs' are in final analysis the representation of upward and downward air currents. Where cold air from the upper regions flows down it compresses the surface atmosphere and produces a 'high'; where the air, because of heat, is rising, it relieves the pressure and forms a 'low.' Most weather phenomena are due to the interplay of forces between 'highs' and 'lows,' which bring in their train changes in wind, temperature and humidity.

"The most spectacular of the effects of 'vertical' winds are thunderstorms. As the tracer bullet marks the flight of projectiles for a marksman, so the great, towering 'thunder head' marks the upward rush of the invisible wind. Often these thunder clouds may be seen growing before one's eye. Seldom is the growth slow and orderly. More often it is violent, and the upsurging clouds appear to boil madly. Thunderstorms are usually local affairs and the wind that has rushed upward must come quickly earthward again to restore the atmospheric balance. In the rear of thunderstorms, therefore, strong downward currents are usually encountered. It was such an upward and then downward rush of air, apparently, that played an important part in the destruction of the Shenandoah.

Where Lightning Comes From

"Until comparatively recently the origin of the tremendous charges of electricity in a thunderstorm baffled science. Now it is pretty generally believed that they are caused by the upward gusts of air—that these are in truth the dynamos of the sky. The building up of the electrical charges is supposed to be brought about by the gusts blasting raindrops to pieces, the smaller fragments carrying negative charges upward while the large droplets with positive charges remain behind. Hostile forces are established and when the strain becomes too great it is relieved by a lightning flash. When the negatively charged upper cloud floats away before the strain is relieved the flash is to the earth.

"'Vertical winds' are also credited with the production of hail, and their onionlike structure bears out the theory. Raindrops carried upward by the less violent gusts, according to this hypothesis, are frozen in the cold upper air. Sinking in the boiling cloud, they acquire more moisture on the lower levels and are again carried to the freezing region. On the number of skyward trips made before they escape from the boiling cloud and fall earthward depends the size of the hailstones."

RHEUMATISM, NEURITIS, PAIN

"Heet" Relieves Instantly

With applicator atached to cork, just brush "Heet" over the pain area, whether in hands elbows, shoulders, feet, knees, legs, back, neck or body. Instantly, you feel this harmless, glorious, penetrating heat draw the pain, soreness and stiffness right out of the aching or swollen joint, muscle or nerve. Besides, "Heet" scatters the congestion and establishes a cure.

"Heet" contains two soothing, penetrating ingredients, too expensive to use in ordinary liniments or analgesics. "Heet" is a clean, pleasant liquid; doesn't stain, blister or irritate the skin and costs only 60 cents at any drug store.

NEW HIGH SCHOOL FOR MIDLAND

Contracts were let this week for the new $350,000 Midland high school building.

All the contracts were let for the building with the exception of the auditorium. The board of education holds the option to accept the bids on the auditorium within 90 days. This gives time to put over the extra bond issue necessary to raise money enough to complete this part of the school building.

Lowest bidders received the contract in every case according to T. A. Holland, president of the board, with the total bid let, including heating and ventilating, amounted to $219,000, making $31,000 less to raise on the bond issue for the auditorium than had been expected.

THE HUB

Montmartre Stages Art Exhibit Exceeding Pace Set by Paris

PARIS—Leave it to Montmartre to do something different. Paris has its Decorative Arts Exposition, so the Republique de Montmartre has inaugurated its "Hastily Decorated Art Exposition." The entire show is a burlesque on its more serious brother, and the buildings hav been planned to ape the other in as many details as possible. There is the Asparagus Pavilion, the Salt and Pepper Pavilion, as well as those of oil and vinegar.

The Tourists' Pavilion is topped with a four-sided tower, on each of which is mounted a clock, no two faces of which are keeping the same time.

GANG BATTLES THEN AND NOW

In Old Days Toughs Would Scorn to Draw Gun on Policeman.

New York.—Two men emerged from an uptown cafe at an early morning hour and hastened down the avenue. Seeing them and sensing a holdup, a policeman commanded them to halt. Instead of obeying they broke into a run with the officer in pursuit. Again he called to them to halt and sent a warning bullet after them. The two paused in their flight and returned his fire, and a bullet struck him in the leg and laid him low. Nevertheless, he picked himself up and continued the chase.

A brother officer, hearing the shots, joined in the pursuit. He, too, was fired upon, bullet passing through the sleeve of his coat. The two ruffians escaped into a neighboring tenement. It was then learned that they had held up the cafe and a score of patrons.

It is a common experience for a policeman to look upon the bright face of danger for, to quote Cicero, "What a day will bring forth is uncertain," and conditions now are particularly strenuous. Until a few years ago a policeman seldom thought of his gun. It was a bold man indeed who would "pull a gun on a cop" and as a rule only a desperate criminal would dare do such a thing unless he were cornered. In recent years gun-toters have become more reckless, consequently a policeman keeps his service revolver cleaned and well oiled and ready for action, and he devotes more time to target practice in the department shooting gallery. He wants to be able to meet trouble if it comes his way.

Overrun by Toughs.

"When I joined the force," said a gray-haired veteran, "the city was far from being a paradise. We had Hell's Kitchen and there were certain parts of Ninth and Tenth avenues that were not exactly genteel. These neighborhoods were overrun by tough gangs which delighted in making a cop's life miserable. You had to be a pretty tough fellow yourself to hold down your post, and it was common for cops to be sent to the hospital by these hoodlums. Yet, as I recall it, they seldom used guns in their fights and encounters with cops.

"Usually they fought with their fists and it was considered a most serious breach of etiquette to draw a gun. They would not hesitate to attack you with fists, bricks and stones, and they delighted in toppling a chimney on top of you. In those days, you see, physical strength was the prime requisite of a gangster and the gang leader was a fellow who was the best rough-and-tumble fighter in the neighborhood.

"If you were a rooky cop the captain would look you over, and if you were a big strapping fellow he would assign you to one of the tough spots in the precinct. If you expected to retain that post, you would have to let the gang know right at the start that you intended to be 'boss.' This was in effect a challenge. When they saw they could not intimidate you and you would not stand for any of their nonsense, they would declare war against you, and would resort to every means to discourage you.

"When Jeff Buckley, who was killed several years ago by the negro Bode, was a rooky policeman he was assigned to cover a tough post. The neighborhood was infested by a gang of rowdies who were making life miserable for everybody. They had their 'hangout' in an old stable and when Jeff notified them that they would have to mend their ways they only scoffed. Entering the stable he informed them bluntly they would have to change their camp. There were six of them present, all big powerful fellows.

"If you didn't have that gun and club with you," sneered one of the gangsters, "you wouldn't dare come in here."

He Showed Them.

Buckley was incensed at the slur. "I'll tell you what I'll do," he said. "I'll fight every man of you one right after the other." The challenge was accepted. Though not above the average height, he was one of the strongest men in the department and an excellent boxer. Stripping off his coat, he was ready for the fray. His first antagonist was the most burly of the lot. Him he whipped in short order, and the others fell easy victims to the terrific hammering which he administered to them. When the brief battle was over they were a sorry lot, with black eyes and swollen jaws.

"In the old gas-house district there were some tough gangsters. They would hold mixed-ale parties which would last for days, and when they were on these prolonged debauches they would get to fighting among themselves and the police would be summoned to quell the fray. We used to go into these mixed-ale flats cautiously with our backs against the wall, for if they caught you unaware they would crown you with a chair or anything that came handy. But bad as they were they would not resort to gun or knife. To use such weapons was unethical and their code of warfare forbade it. They gloried in their physical prowess. Though it might be fair to bounce a club on a cop's dome, a revolver was intended for weaklings only."

HANDS OUT $25,000 FOR RARE STAMPS

Collector Now Boasts Best Revenue Specimens.

New York.—In preparation for the international stamp exhibition in this city in October, 1926, many of the leading philatelists in the country are making efforts to complete their collections by the addition of rare specimens.

This effort toward the greatest possible perfection whereby the owners may carry off some of the coveted medals has already led to the sale of several old collections and stamp dealers predict that several more deals of this nature will be made soon.

Edward Stern, head of the Economist Stamp company, announced that he had purchased the well-known collection of United States revenue stamps owned for many years by W. S. White. The White collection has long been known as one of the best in America.

Its outstanding feature was the assortment of unperforated pairs and blocks and the extremely rare second, third and fifth issues with the head of Washington inverted. The value of the collection is placed at approximately $25,000. Mr. Stern has been making a specialty of revenue issues for some time and now boasts that it is the most complete in the world.

One of the biggest prizes in the White collection is a fine copy of the three cents, green and black, of the fifth revenue-stamp issue, having the Washington head inverted. Only five copies of this error are known, worth $2,250 each. There is a fine copy of the inverted head error of the 15 cents of the third issue, valued at $1,000, and a similar error of the 20 cents, second issue, valued at $425.

There is also a block of fifty of the one-cent playing card stamp, the perforated variety, valued at $500, the largest block known.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE ANSWERED.

Poor Accomodations For Statesmen at Geneva Conference

LONDON—The people attending the meetings of the League of Nations at Geneva might be great statesmen, but they were certainly not lovers of fresh air, according to the British Medical Journal.

"The atmosphere," writes the Journal's Geneva correspondent, "both the assembly and the commmjssions, was almost insufferable. The accommodation was entirely insufficient and the ventilation bad.

"The general crowding was a scandal. The commissions sat in salons, the windows of which, were never opened. If a current of air startled the assembled delegates, one might be sure that some furtive Anglo-Saxon had discovered a window which opened on the outer world, and equally sure that some less stealthy Latin would soon close it.

"Had some of the sessions been prolonged for another hour, the wisdom of fifty-four nations might have perished from asphyxia.'

Tri-state Poultry Exhibit Will be Held Dec. 28-Jan. 2

Dates for the third annual poultry exhibit under the auspices of the Tri-State Pet Stock and Poultry association have been set for December 28-January 2, inclusive, it was announced today.

Through the efforts of the agricultural committee of the Chamber of Commerce, of which J. T. Croxall is chairman, the association has been given the use of the second floor of the Broadway street car terminal for the show.

Last year the exhibit was held in the Harris-Buick company garage, West Fifth street, which was not available this year.

The poultry shows during the last two years have been regarded as highly successful. The first show netted a profit, which made up a deficit which occurred last year. Members of the association hope to have more than 1,000 birds on exhibition.

THRILLS MARK 'PONY EXPRESS'

Cruze's Successor to "Covered Wagon" at Ceramic Theatre.

The Sioux Indians took part in the greatest battle their tribe has fought for 40 years during the filming of James Cruze's new western epic for Paramount, "The Pony Express."

Not since the last battle of the last Indian war in the United States—the "Ghost Dance War" in Wyoming in 1886, have the Sioux been engaged in battle or such magnitude.

A band of more than one thousand Sioux Indians was brought to Cheyenne, Wyo., from their reservation at Pine Ridge, North Dakota, for the purposes of this stupendous picture.

Decked out in fantastic war paint, wearing little else than loin cloths, and mounted bareback on spirited Indian ponies, they were given the order by Cruze to attack the town of Julesburg, Colorado.

In a minute they had swooped down on the town, circled it, firing arrows and old-fashioned muskets, driving off stock, and sustaining wounds from barricaded townspeople, firing out windows and doors.

Then in came the soldiers—1860 cavalry, recruited from companies of real soldiers at Fort D. A. Russell. More than 700 of them swooped down on the village, led by young Billy Cody, played by Johnny Fox, Jr., and the greatest Indian battle of this century too place. Foot by foot the Indians were driven out. The battle continued long after it was out of range of the camera. So realistic did the battle become on the outlying hills that Cruze had to send out special riders to call it off, for soldiers were still trying to round up red men, and red men were still running down and attacking isolated soldiers.

"The Pony Express," now showing at Ceramic, features Betty Compson, Ricardo Cortez, Ernest Torrence and Wallace Beery. The screen play is by Walter Woods, from an original story by himself and Henry James Forman.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE ANSWERED.

Poor Accomodations For Statesmen at Geneva Conference

LONDON—The people attending the meetings of the League of Nations at Geneva might be great statesmen, but they were certainly not lovers of fresh air, according to the British Medical Journal.

"The atmosphere," writes the Journal's Geneva correspondent, "both the assembly and the commmissions, was almost insufferable. The accommodation was entirely insufficient and the ventilation bad.

"The general crowding was a scandal. The commissions sat in salons, the windows of which, were never opened. If a current of air startled the assembled delegates, one might be sure that some furtive Anglo-Saxon had discovered a window which opened on the outer world, and equally sure that some less stealthy Latin would soon close it.

"Had some of the sessions been prolonged for another hour, the wisdom of fifty-four nations might have perished from asphyxia.'

Tri-state Poultry Exhibit Will be Held Dec. 28-Jan. 2

Dates for the third annual poultry exhibit under the auspices of the Tri-State Pet Stock and Poultry association have been set for December 28-January 2, inclusive, it was announced today.

Through the efforts of the agricultural committee of the Chamber of Commerce, of which J. T. Croxall is chairman, the association has been given the use of the second floor of the Broadway street car terminal for the show.

Last year the exhibit was held in the Harris-Buick company garage, West Fifth street, which was not available this year.

The poultry shows during the last two years have been regarded as highly successful. The first show netted a profit, which made up a deficit which occurred last year. Members of the association hope to have more than 1,000 birds on exhibition.

THRILLS MARK 'PONY EXPRESS'

The Sioux Indians took part in the greatest battle their tribe has fought for 40 years during the filming of James Cruze's new western epic for Paramount, "The Pony Express."

Not since the last battle of the last Indian war in the United States—the "Ghost Dance War" in Wyoming in 1886, have the Sioux been engaged in a battle or such magnitude.

A band of more than one thousand Sioux Indians was brought to Cheyenne, Wyo., from their reservation at Pine Ridge, North Dakota, for the purposes of this stupendous picture.

Decked out in fantastic war paint, wearing little else than loin cloths, and mounted bareback on spirited Indian ponies, they were given the order by Cruze to attack the town of Julesburg, Colorado.

In a minute they had swooped down on the town, circled it, firing arrows and old-fashioned muskets, driving off the stock, and sustaining wounds from the barricaded townspeople, firing from windows and doors.

Then in came the soldiers—1860 cavalry, recruited from companies of real soldiers at Fort D. A. Russell. More than 700 of them swooped down on the village, led by young Billy Cody, played by Johnny Fox, Jr., and the greatest Indian battle of this century too place. DENTIST NO LONGER MERE MOLAR PULLER

New Gas Mixture Deadens All Pain, Says London.

REVEAL ADVANCES

French Appliances Shown at International Exhibit.

LONDON.—The old fallacy that dentists are a fierce, cruel offshoot of mankind, and that they delight in hurting the unfortunates who have to submit themselves to dental science, is apparently doomed to oblivion.

The International Dental exhibition, just held here, shows for all time that the modern dentist is a man who would not think of hurting a fly, and whose only aim is to put his patients out of pain in the speediest and safest way possible.

Hundreds of new gadgets were on show at the exhibition, and 99 per cent of them have been invented with a view to alleviating that sense of terror generally displayed when on a visit to the dentist.

All Pain Deadened.

Some of the world's greatest dental surgeons delivered addresses, and practically every one of them gave illustrations in one way or another that dental science is now occupied in perfecting instruments and drugs which will make dentistry absolutely painless.

Experts have perfected a new mixture of laughing gas and oxygen which takes away all sensation of pain but leaves the patient absolutely conscious of all that is going on, with the result that he is perfectly normal mentally, but that a pin could be stuck into him and he would not feel it.

Tablets have been invented which are guaranteed to control all nervousness, fear, and pain. The idea is that the intending patient swallows a tablet the night before the dreaded day, another on the fateful morning of the extraction, and he walks into the dentist's parlor as brave as a lion, leaping lightly into the chair and requesting the dentist to "Take your time, I am in no hurry."

The exhibition also showed that the dentist of today is very much more than a molar puller. He has to know everything about X-ray, pyorrhea, electricity, ultra-violet rays, as well as have at his finger tips the knowledge of how to use anything between fifty to a hundred different instruments.

Lamp Kills Germs.

On view at the exhibition was a massive X-ray machine, complete, with innumerable coils, knobs and mirrors, priced at $1,700. There was also an up-to-date violet ray lamp, which shoots rays into the mouth and kills all germs in three minutes. This lamp is said to obviate the necessity of having all the teeth extracted when pyorrhea is developed, for it is claimed that it will kill the pyrohhea germs almost immediately. This efficient cure for the dread modern disease of the mouth is hearalded as a triumph for dentistry.

As usual there were many freak appliances and inventions on show, one of which was a new dental germicide with the impressive name of "Trichlorophenylmethyliodosalicyl."

"Dentisty is now as painless—almost—as it can be," Fred Butterfield, secretary of the exhibition, said. "The days when dental work was allied to the horror of cold blood and cold steel have passed away forever.

"Since the organization of dentists the great motive has been to remove all terror."

Britain's plan to have a through-mail service from the United Kingdom to England, Burma, Signapore and Australia is being developed by aiding unit air service in the proposed route.

BERLIN — Thirty billion marks worth of cigarettes and cigars have been puffed into the air by the Germans during the last year. Taking the population of Germany as 63,000,000, 293 cigarettes and 79 ciagrs have been consumed per head of the population. Figuring that only about 10 per cent o fthe total are smokers, one arrives at an average daily consumption of two cigars and 12 cigarettes per head.

It is understood that the consumption of cigarettes has considerably increased since women have gone in strongly for smoking.

All Chrysler models are protected against theft by the Bodco patented car numbering system, exclusive with Chrysler, which cannot be counterfeited and cannot be altered or removed without conclusive evidence of tampering.

Just ask yourself what it is you most desire in your car.

Roadability? Comfort? No car, no matter how many hundred extra pounds it is burdened with in the effort to obtain greater riding ease, equals the new Chrysler Six in these features due to the low center of gravity and the Chrysler type of rear spring mounting.

Freedom from mechanical attention? The Chrysler Six has a world wide reputation for notably uninterrupted service.

All this the new Chrysler Six at the new low prices gives its owners at half the purchase price of cars presumably having comparable quality—yes, and at far, far less than the operating and maintenance cost of the more cumbersome cars.

We are eager to have you prove all the new Chrysler Six does. Then you'll see why no other car, at any price, affords what has come to be trade-marked in the public mind as "Chrysler Six performance."

Dr. J. H. Dellinger, U. S Expert, Offers Suggestions

(Editor's Note:—In the second article on radio interference, methods suggested by the United State Bureau of Standards for eliminating disturbances caused by electrical apparatus are described. The government is conducting an elaborate study of the interference question in the hope of improving radio reception).

WASHINGTON.—Of first importance to the radio amateur on suffering from interference obviously from electrical apparatus is a survey of the situation to determine the source of difficulties.

Begin by making certain the disturbance is not in the receiving set itself, is the advice of Dr. J. H. Dellinger, radio expert of the United States Bureau of Standards.

"Next open the electric switch at the house meter," the bureau scientist said. If the interfering noise is still heard in the radio set, the source is then known to be outside the house.

"It is then desirable to report the situation to the electric power company. Many of the companies have apparatus for the purpose of following up complaints of this kind.

How to Find Direction.

"Usually a sensitive receiving set with a coil antenna is used to determine the direction from which the interfering noise comes and this outfit is taken from place to place until the source is found.

"The location of such a source is often a very difficult and baffling undertaking. The trouble sometimes comes from a spark discharge over an insulator to ground or between a pair of wires, or it may be that the wire is touching some object such as a tree, pole or guy wire.

"Such a spark discharge is a loss of power to the operating company and a potential source of serious trouble, and for these reasons the company probably is more interested in finding and eliminating this type of leak than in finding the radio receiver's difficulty. Large leaks and sparks may often be observed at night, especially in hot weather. However, sparks that are too small to be noticed readily may cause serious interference with radio reception.'

Direct-current motors often cause trouble with radio reception when in operation near the receiving set, especially when the brushes on the motor are sparking badly. The sparking, officials said, should be reduced as much as possible by cleaning the commutator and proper setting of the brushes.

The remaining interference is sometimes overcome by placing two condensers (about two micro arads each) in series across the power supply line and connecting their midpoint to a good ground system.

Find Rural Troubles.

Another source of interference, the Bureau of Standards found, is the ringing machine used in rural telephone exchanges. The elimination of this interference is especially important to farmers. Telephone engineers, it was pointed out, can elimtnate or at least reduce this trouble by connecting a filter between the machine and the ringing keys.

Many cases of radio interference have been caused by electrical precipitations which are used to prevent smoke and noxious fumes or material from leaving a chimney.

The precipitator operates by establishing a highly-charged electric field inside the chimney of such a nature and direction that particles going up the chimney are charged and driven against the walls where they stick.

Precipitators cause interference for the reason that the high voltage used in their operation is obtained from a rectifier which produces sparks and generates radio-frequency alternating current as well as the direct current which the precipitator uses.

If the precipitator is so designed and arranged that the distance between the rectifier and the chimney is only a few feet or of the entire apparatus including all leads is housed in a metal building there is usually no trouble.

More Wall St. Cheer.
Religion As Crime Cure.
Leading to the Church.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

Col. Mitchell will be tried by twelve solemn generals for breach of discipline, which really means for criticizing the stupidly incompetent management of the air forces of the United States. Will the twelve solemn generals condemn or dismiss Col. Mitchell for telling the truth, and if they do, what will the President do about it?

One fact may comfort Col. Mitchell, whatever happens. The people are with him. If some nation well equipped with flying machines should attack this country and bombard a few of our cities, destroying them with ease and dispatch, those twelve generals would not cut much figure. And President Coolidge, moved by public opinion, would end the trial and put Mitchell in charge of aerial defense.

The twelve warriors presiding at Mitchell's trial, include six brigadier generals and six major generals. How much do the twelve, put together, know about flying? That's what interests the people of the United States that pay the salaries of the twelve generals, of Col. Mitchell and of President Coolidge.

Another cheerful day in Wall street, a two-and-one-half-million-share day, exact figures 2,517,700. There was excitement, nerve strain and howling around many "posts." Brokers welcomed a wide market, showing that everybody is coming in.

Steels up, oil up, motors and rails up, stocks that had been quiet suddenly came to life and sold twenty-five or thirty thousand shares, instead of just a handful.

Well, it's a rich country. Europe has decided to keep the peace for a while. Our billions will come back from Europe gradually.

Secretary Mellon is planning income tax cuts for the big man and the little man, including increase in the exempt allowance for children and other dependents. The average man's income, as Z. G. Simmons points out, is doubled. The wealth of the United States has hardly been touched.

The iron wall keeps out immigration and makes United States citizenship worth in dignity all that the ancient Roman citizenship was worth, and a great deal more in hard cash. We are a fortunate people. Let's hope we shall have brains enough to get in condition, ready to protect from outside attack all that we have.

President Coolidge tells the council of Congregational churches that in the crime wave following the war we must rely on religion as the only remedy. The President knows of "no source of moral power other than that which comes from religion."

He expects the clergy in charge of religion to display unusual vigor and efficiency.

Detailed suggestions for curing crime with religion would be interesting. Prayer might check the hijacker, bootlegger, burglar, hold-up man, if he could be made to realize that twenty-five or thirty million were praying against him.

It is not decrying the powers of

Athens Troops Have Removed Enemies From Hellenic Posts and Enter Bulgar Territory and Will Remain There Until Incident is Closed Through Diplomatic Channels.

COMMUNITY IN ASHES MAY BE PRICE OF WAR THAT WAS NEVER FAIRLY BEGUN

Greek Government is Informed That Bulgaria Agrees to Demands for Indemnity for Soldiers Killed in Frontier Fighting — Serbian Acts to Prevent Flank Attack.

ATHENS, Oct. 23.—War operations on the Bulgarian frontier have ended and the incident is closed, from a military viewpoint, according to the view of the Greek government.

Greek troops have removed Bulgarians from Greek posts and have entered Bulgarian territory and will remain there until the incident is closed through diplomatic channels, it was stated today by government spokesmen.

No official statement has been forthcoming as to the casualties in the military operations.

"Our Best People" Hit for Serving and Consuming Rum

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Prohibition never will be adequately enforced so long as "our best people" consider it "smart and stylish" to serve and consume drinks procured in violation of the law.

That represents the opinion of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, in charge of prohibition cases. Mrs. Willebrandt expressed it before the national council of Congregational churches.

"People who patronize and associate with bootleggers," she said, "are afflicted with sleeping sickness where the law is concerned."

Continuous Bible Reading Service is Planned by Pastor

Another continuous Bible reading service will be conducted at the First Baptist church at the Sunday evening service, Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor, announced today.

Serbian Troops Massed.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—A town in ashes may be the price of a war that never was fairly begun, it appeared today.

Graeco-Bulgarian border troubles had been averted today by Bulgaria's complete capitulation to Greece's demands, but Petrich, the border town which was the target of the Greek advance, was reported in flames, according to advices from Athens.

The Bulgarian representative at Athens informed Premier Pangalos that Bulgaria agreed to the Greek demands for 2,008,800 gold francs indemnity for Greek soldiers killed in the border fighting and an apology from Sofia, according to Express dispatches.

Some advices from Athens declared that Perich already was occupied by Greek forces, but the information generally credited said the Greek bombardment continued and that the Bulgarian town was in flames.

A message from Belgrade said that Serbian troops were massed on the border to prevent either Greek or Bulgarian troops from making a flank attack through Serbian territory.

GENEVA, Oct. 23.—Greek troops have penetrated Bulgarian territory along a thirty-two kilometre line and have advanced ten kilometre from the frontier along this line, declared a second note of protest received by the league of nations this afternoon from Bulgaria.

PRISONER HELD FOR $25 FINE ESCAPES FROM JAIL CORRIDOR

VAGRANT, CLAIM

Dashes Through Door as Desk Sergeant Empties Water.

Stonewall Bowen, 24, arrested yesterday and fined $25 on a charge of vagrancy, escaped from the city jail and fled across the Ohio river bridge to Chester today.

Bowen made his getaway after Desk Sergeant George Toland gave him permission to step into the city hall corridor. As Toland went into an adjoining room to empty a bucket of water, Bowen dashed through the hall to the street.

The desk sergeant ran to the street in time to see Bowen sprinting east along Third street toward the bridge. Toland later learned Bowen stopped long enough to pay his toll at the bridge tollhouse, but, according to the toll-keeper, he "appeared to be in a big hurry."

Bowen was arrested yesterday by Chief of Police McDermott in a downtown pool room. The chief had warned him several months ago to get a job and quit loafing in pool rooms.

When the chief ordered him out of the pool room, it is alleged he became insulting. He was then arrested and taken to jail. Upon arraignment before Mayor Brown he was fined on a charge of vagrancy and committed to jail on a bread and water diet.

Police said at noon that Bowen will be committed to the county jail at Lisbon if he is apprehended.

COL. MITCHELL'S ARREST ORDERED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The war department today ordered that Col. William Mitchell be placed under technical arrest on next Tuesday, the day before he is court-martialed for his caustic criticism of the army and navy air services.

Mitchell already is under orders not to leave Washington. When placed under arrest, he will be unable to issue orders to any person in the army. Mitchell will not be confined, but will be permitted to live at his hotel pending the outcome of the court-martial trial.

"BABY BANDITS" MAKE $514 HAUL

PASTOR, RE-MARRIED TWO WEEKS AFTER DIVORCE, REINSTATED BY PRESBYTERY

Rev. W. W. MacEwan, Formerly of East Liverpool, Wins Fight Against Suspension in Carlisle, Pa.

Rev. W. W. MacEwan, former pastor of the Orchard Grove Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, and later of the Second Presbyterian church here, was reinstated yesterday as a member of the Butler, Pa., presbytery, after six months' suspension.

This action was authorized by a commission in connection with the annual session of the synod of Pennsylvania in Carlisle. Members of the Butler presbytery, who suspended Rev. Mr. MacEwan because he had remarried two weeks after he had divorced his first wife, announced that they would carry their fight to the next convention of the general assembly of the church.

Rev. Mr. MacEwan has been living in Rankin, Pa., but of recent years has held no charge in the Presbyterian church. However, he retained his membership in the Butler presbytery. About a year ago the Pennsylvania courts are said to have granted him a divorce from his wife on the ground of desertion, and two weeks later he remarried another woman. Holding such an act as unbecoming to a minister of the Gospel the presbytery immediately ordered his suspension.

Rev. Mr. MacEwan went to the meeting of the synod this week, determined to vindicate himself. The matter was referred to a commission,

Newspaper Publisher Attacks State Proposals in Addressing Exchange Club in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 23.—Flaying particularly the proposed four-year state office term and the classification amendment, Charles L. Knight, publisher of the Akron Beacon-Journal, addressed the Exchange club here today. He warned Ohio voters to have care how they set their "Xs" to three different proposals to amend the constitution of the state at the November elections.

Referring to the term extender amendment, Knight said: "Until government gives us better results than it has in recent years, the people of Ohio will not saddle upon themselves for a period of four years, those who, in a great majority of cases, they would glady get rid of in less than half that time if they could."

"It is a serious matter when we propose to tax any kind of property at different rates," Knight continued. "The amendment proposed gives the legislature power to fix any rate it sees fit on intangibles."

Knight said we had no proof that the legislature would keep the attractive rates adopted at first and added:

"The tomb of the Smith law is a perpetual warning to misplace no confidence in that quarter. The gasoline tax and the reappraisal law of the last session inspire one with no abiding confidence in legislatures on matters of tax rates."

Knight said he had suggested to Robert Taft a sales tax that would place the burden on those who buy most and could most afford it.

Ruling by Crabbe Blow at Roadside Courts of Justice

COLUMBUS, Oct. 23.—Justices of the peace cannot impose fines on motorists who are first offenders against speed laws, according to a ruling made today by Attorney General C. C. Crabbe.

Mrs. Belle Carey Dies in Cleveland; Funeral Saturday

Mrs. Belle Carey, 86, widow of the late Joseph Carey, died yesterday in the home of her daughter, Mrs. T. C. Swain, Cleveland, following a stroke of paralysis.

Mrs. Carey, formerly of East Liverpool, went to Cleveland two weeks ago to visit her daughter. She was a lifelong member of the United Presbyterian church and one of the oldest members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, being one of the original "crusaders" of the organization.

She is survived by the following children: D. J. McBride, Tiffin; Mrs. Clara Carson, Bergholz; Mrs. T. C. Swain, Cleveland; Mrs. E. E. Chambers and Joseph T. Carey, both of East Liverpool.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. E. Chambers, 1115 Ohio avenue, East End. Rev. L. J. Davison, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, will have charge. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

The body may be viewed tonight at the Chambers home.

RALPH COLEMAN NAMES PAL IN "GAS" STATION ROBBERY HERE

OFF TO MANSFIELD

Ralph Eugene Coleman, 21, convicted of complicity in the hold-up of the Park Way gasoline filling station, May 16, last, has confessed and named an alleged confederate, Sheriff George Wright, of Lisbon, said today.

Asked Gloeckner to Change Bill

The confession, according to the sheriff, was made Thursday as Wright was taking Coleman to the Mansfield reformatory to serve an indeterminate sentence of 10 to 25 years, imposed Wednesday by Common Pleas Judge James G. Moore.

Coleman, the sheriff said, declared he acted as a lookout in the roadway while his "pal" entered the filling station and held up Edward Gloeckner, the owner. Approximately $300 was obtained in the robbery.

The convicted youth told the sheriff, it is claimed, that he first entered the filling station and asked Gloeckner to change a $5 bill. Gloeckner took the change from a money drawer under the counter. Coleman then joined his "pal," who, it is alleged, awaited him on the opposite side of the road.

Alleged "Pal" Missing.

The confederate, who has left the city and for whom a warrant has been issued, then entered the gasoline station, and, at the point of a revolver, demanded that Gloeckner turn over his money, the sheriff said Coleman declared.

During the trial early this week, Coleman set up an alibi as a defense, claiming he was working in Monaca, Pa., on the night of the robbery.

Police claim the convicted lad did not leave East Liverpool until May 18, two days after the hold-up.

Until his purported confession yesterday, Coleman had insisted he was innocent, although Gloeckner identified him as the party to whom he had given the change on the night of the hold-up. The jury took 11 ballots before he was found guilty. One of the jurors holding out for acquittal, believing the defendant was the victim of a frame-up.

According to the police young Coleman will not be eligible for parole until he had served at least 10 years in the state institution.

In company with Miles Decker of Salem, who was given from one to fifteen years in the reformatory for the theft of an automobile, Coleman was taken to Mansfield.

STUDENTS AID COLLEGE DRIVE

Muskingum Graduates Will Seek Funds in City.

Graduates and former students of Muskingum college, New Concord, residing in Columbiana county, will take part in the financial campaign to add $500,000 to the school's endowment fund, which will be conducted November 2-10, inclusive.

W. Frank Lunsford, of East Liverpool, is chairman of the district drive. Other members of the committee include S. E. Daw and Stewart Parker, Wellsville; A. A. Hart, Salineville; Miss Jean Carson, Bergholz; Lloyd Fife, Lisbon; Miss Helen Paxton, East Palestine and Harold C. Smith, Georgetown, Pa.

Rev. Dr. Hugh E. Kelsey, St. Louis, former pastor of the First United Presbyterian church here, will confer with members of the local committee at the Y. M. C. A. at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Lunsford will preside.

While no quota has been alloted any district each alumnus is asked to contribute $264. Not only former students of the school but friends of the institution will be asked to aid in the campaign.

"ENORMOUS POSSIBILITIES" SEEN IN INVENTION TO MEET INTERFERENCE IN RADIO BROADCASTING

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH.
(Copyright, 1925, by I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—A remarkable invention by John Hays Hammond, Jr., son of the widely known capitalist-engineer, by which it is possible to transmit from a single machine eight separate radio signals on the same wave length, has been examined by navy experts, and while they believe "it has enormous possibilities," it has been found impracticable for service use at present, it was learned today.

Officials who studied the Hammond device expressed the opinion that its operation on wave lengths between 200 and 600, where most broadcasting takes place, would complicate rather than solve the present congestion in radio communication channels.

They pointed out, however, that the Hammond invention operates on very low wave lengths, or high frequencies, now employed exclusively for special or experimental purposes. Its possible application to the higher wave lengths was studied since it is the relief of over-crowding in this channel that is necessary to meet the interference problem.

Use "Sub-Frequencies."

Briefly, experts said, the Hammond machine makes possible the broadcasting on a single wave length of eight separate signals through the use of a district set of "sub-frequencies."

Therefore, it would be theoretically possible to combine eight stations and transmit the various programs of each simultaneously seven channels for the use of other stations. If successful it would mean that over 4,500 stations would operate where but 600 are now on the air.

Experts explained that the device operates with a single "carrier wave," but with eight sub-frequencies, superimposed on the original wave.

They declared that a receiving set to "catch" broadcast programs from the multiple-signal machine would require not only one detector with its tube, coil and set of dials for the carrier wave, but a second detector and accessories to get the sub-frequency signal. This receiving set would be extremely complicated to build and operate.

Objection to Multiple Machine.

None of the 5,000,000 commercial sets in operation in the United States would be capable of receiving the multiple signals, but experts consider it possible that with proper development or receivers and broadcasting stations, multiple broadcasting may ultimately prove a solution of interference.

The ordinary receiver tuning in on a multiple signal station would get a heterodyne squeal, similar to that noticed when two or more stations are operating on the same wave length. The carrier wave could be picked up but not the sub-frequencies.

A second objection found by experts was in the creation by the multiple signal machine of a greater number of harmonics. A station operation on a given wave creates a first harmonic or "undertone" at half its wave length.

"If eight signals are being transmitted on a 500-metre wave eight harmonics are created at 250 metres, causing just eight times the present interference," an expert said.

Officials said that the Hammond device is aimed at doing in the air what has been accomplished on telegraph and telephone cables, where a number of different signals are sent simultaneously on the same wire. No harmonic difficulty is found on wire transmission.

The suppression of harmonics is one of the big problems of radio engineering which has not yet been worked out successfully. Elimination of these curious "undertones" will go a long way toward meeting the interference problem officials said.

Hardy Norse Sailors Aim to Show Ericson Discovered America

BERGEN, Norway—In an effort to prove that it is absolutely possible that Leif Ericson, the hardy Norseman, discovered America 500 years before Columbus, Captain Folgero and three companions plan to sail from here to America, starting next May in a real Viking ship, modeled after the one Ericson is supposed to have used.

The ship will be 40 feet long and 12 feet broad. It is proposed to start May 17. The course will be: Dover, Cape Finisterre, Madeira, Cape Hatteras, New York and Boston.

Later Captain Folgero hopes to continue the voyage by way of the Panama canal to San Francisco and Portland, Ore., where he will sell his ship and return to Norway on a modern steamer, having shown the world that it was quite possible for Leif Ericson to have crossed the Atlantic.

In the last three years the number of busses in Ceylon has jumped from 44 to 1,602.

London Hairdresser Must Know "Clogris" To be Real Barber

LONDON.—The days of the barber whose only qualifications for his calling was the fact that he could juggle a pair of scissors are over. The complete hairdresser nowadays has to know all about such things as physiology, physics, chemistry, anatomy, pharmacology, bacteriology, hygiene, and several other subjects.

English barbers and their assistants now attend calsses at which they are ectured to by leading doctors and xperts on all these subjects, and an examination is held to determine whether the scholars are proficient nough in these things to be "the omplete barber."

It is the aim of the organizers of this scheme to have at least one trained man in every barber shop, and legislation is to be sought to make this compulsory.

It is probable that the barber who pases the examinations will be too swelled headed to ever want to barber, and it is less probable that the peculiar attribute of all barbers, small talk, will be a thing of the past.

"GEORGIA TUG" JAILED AFTER TOUR DE LUXE

Russia's Newest Swindler Poses as Republic's Chief.

BAFFLED POLICE

Trapped When Asked to Autograph Real President's Photo.

MOSCOW.—Russia's nerviest swindler, Khasanoff Tourgun Youldashevitch, alias "Georgia Tug," is back in jail after a series of exploits which added new luster to his criminal reputation and left crestfallen Soviet government officials wondering how he did it.

Tug got his moniker from residence in a Georgian penitentiary, where he was serving a six-year term for swindling when the government, in an expansive mood, pardoned everybody not convicted of murder or counter-revolution.

Dead broke when he left the Georgian prison, Tug counted on his excellent front and oriental good looks to get by without a ticket on the train to Yalta, in the Crimea. When the conductor came to collect, Tug told him: "I've lost my ticket along with my valise. Must have been stolen. But I'm Feisul Khodzhaiev, president of the Uzbeckistan republic, and when we get to Yalta the mayor will pay my fare."

The game worked, and Tug, on alighting in Yalta, decided to work it further. He called on the Mayor, who a little flustrated at the honor of receiving the president of the Uzbeckistan republic, insisted on lending him $60 to finish his trip to Moscow.

From then on, Tug's tour became a tour de luxe. The Yalta mayor proved a piker compared to the mayor of Novorrossisk. Tug's next stop. At Novorrossisk the mayor lent him $100.

But this time Tug's line had become so smooth that when he arrived in Polatava, the mayor came through with $150.

Gathering his energy for a real killing, Tug went on to Minskk, capital of White Russia. From a room in the best hotel, he telephoned the president of the Central Executive Committee of White Russia, and had that dignitary hasten hotfoot to the relief of the city's distinguished if unfortunate guest. The White Russians are no cheap skates, and when Tug reluctantly revealed his financial embarrassment, the president of the Central Executive Committee forced him to accept a $500 loan.

This was good, but not the best. Tug had visions of Moscow. If Minsk was worth $500 surely Moscow ought to produce $1,000. He took a train for Moscow.

But it was a local, and the jaunty president of the Uzbeckistans had to stop over 12 hours in a small city named Gomel, not far from Moscow. Tired of walking about the railroad station, it occurred to Tug that he might at least make expenses.

He called a droshky and drove to the town hall. On the way he reflected he would only ask for $50—just spending money.

"Dear comrade," said the mayor, who left a meeting of the town council and hurried out with extended hands when the name of the president of the Uzbeckistan republic was announced, "of course, we'll fix up that little thing. But do come and let our comrades meet you."

"I think I may miss my train," he said.

TODAY

More Wall St. Cheer.
Religion As Crime Cure.
Leading to the Church.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune).

Col. Mitchell will be tried by twelve solemn generals for breach of discipline, which really means for criticizing the stupidly incompetent management of the air forces of the United States. Will the twelve solemn generals condemn or dismiss Col. Mitchell for telling the truth, and if they do, what will the President do about it?

One fact may comfort Col. Mitchell, whatever happens. The people are with him. If some nation well equipped with flying machines should attack this country and bombard a few of our cities, destroying them with ease and dispatch, those twelve generals would not cut much figure. And President Coolidge, moved by public opinion, would end the trial and put Mitchell in charge of aerial defense.

The twelve warriors presiding at Mitchell's trial, include six brigadier generals and six major generals. How much do the twelve, put together, know about flying? That's what interests the people of the United States that pay the salaries of the twelve generals, of Col. Mitchell and of President Coolidge.

Another cheerful day in Wall street, a two-and-one-half-million-share day, exact figures 2,517,700. There was excitement, nerve strain and howling around many "posts." Brokers welcomed a wide market, showing that everybody is coming in.

Steels up, oil up, motors and rails up, stocks that had been quiet suddenly came to life and sold twenty-five or thirty thousand shares, instead of just a handful.

Well, it's a rich country. Europe has decided to keep the peace for a while. Our billions will come back from Europe gradually.

Secretary Mellon is planning income tax cuts for the big man and the little man, including increase in the exempt allowance for children and other dependents. The average man's income, as Z. G. Simmons points out, is doubled. The wealth of the United States has hardly been touched.

The iron wall keeps out immigration and makes United States citizenship worth in dignity all that the ancient Roman citizenship was worth, and a great deal more in hard cash. We are a fortunate people. Let's hope we shall have brains enough to get in condition, ready to protect from outside attack all that we have.

President Coolidge tells the council of Congregational churches that in the crime wave following the war we must rely on religion as the only remedy. The President knows of "no source of moral power other than that which comes from religion."

He expects the clergy in charge of religion to display unusual vigor and efficiency.

Detailed suggestions for curing crime with religion would be interesting. Prayer might check the hijacker, bootlegger, burglar, hold-up man, if he could be made to realize that twenty-five or thirty million were praying against him.

It is not decrying the powers of

Keeping the house clean rather than making it clean is the first step in simplifying housekeeping. You will find that keeping dirt out of the house, or preventive housecleaning, is well worth the effort.

The methods to be employed are set forth in the booklet which this Bureau has for free distribution. The system suggested is based on the well tested experience of practical housekeepers and on the results of scientific studies in labor-saving in the household.

PETRICH, BORDER TOWN, IS REPORTED IN FLAMES AS SOFIA CAPITULATES

Athens Troops Have Removed Enemies From Hellenic Posts and Enter Bulgar Territory and Will Remain There Until Incident is Closed Through Diplomatic Channels.

COMMUNITY IN ASHES MAY BE PRICE OF WAR THAT WAS NEVER FAIRLY BEGUN

Greek Government is Informed That Bulgaria Agrees to Demands for Indemnity for Soldiers Killed in Frontier Fighting — Serbian Acts to Prevent Flank Attack.

ATHENS, Oct. 23.—War operations on the Bulgarian frontier have ended and the incident is closed, from a military viewpoint, according to the view of the Greek government.

Greek troops have removed Bulgarians from Greek posts and have entered Bulgarian territory and will remain there until the incident is closed through diplomatic channels, it was stated today by government spokesmen.

No official statement has been forthcoming as to the casualties in the military operations.

Reports that Bulgaria has accepted the Greek demands have not been confirmed here.

Serbian Troops Massed.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—A town in ashes may be the price of a war that never was fairly begun, it appeared today.

Graeco-Bulgarian border troubles had been averted today by Bulgaria's complete capitulation to Greece's demands, but Petrich, the border town which was the target of the Greek advance, was reported in flames according to advices from Athens.

The Bulgarian representative at Athens informed Premier Pangalos that Bulgaria agreed to the Greek demands for 2,008,800 gold francs indemnity for Greek soldiers killed in the border fighting and an apology from Sofia, according to Express dispatches.

Some advices from Athens declared that Perich already was occupied by Greek forces, but the information generally credited said the Greek bombardment continued and that the Bulgarian town was in flames.

A message from Belgrade said that Serbian troops were massed on the border to prevent either Greek or Bulgarian troops from making a flank attack through Serbian territory.

GENEVA, Oct. 23.—Greek troops have penetrated Bulgarian territory along a thirty-two kilometre line and have advanced ten kilometre from the frontier along this line, declared a second note of protest received by the league of nations this afternoon from Bulgaria.

"Our Best People" Hit for Serving and Consuming Rum

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Prohibition never will be adequately enforced so long as "our best people" consider it "smart and stylish" to serve and consume drinks procured in violation of the law.

That represents the opinion of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, in charge of prohibition cases. Mrs. Willebrandt expressed it before the national council of Congregational churches.

"People who patronize and associate with bootleggers," she said, "are afflicted with sleeping sickness where the law is concerned."

Continuous Bible Reading Service is Planned by Pastor

Another continuous Bible reading service will be conducted at the First Baptist church at the Sunday evening service, Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor, announced today.

Twenty young people have been enlisted to read the book of Matthew. One hour and fifteen minutes has been allotted for the reading.

Before the service, Rev. O'Brien will submit a list of questions, answers to which are to be found in the book. Music will be furnished by an orchestra of three pieces and a choir of young people.

PRISONER HELD FOR $25 FINE ESCAPES FROM JAIL CORRIDOR

Stonewall Bowen Darts Across Bridge Into West Virginia.

VAGRANT, CLAIM

Dashes Through Door as Desk Sergeant Empties Water.

Stonewall Bowen, 24, arrested yesterday and fined $25 on a charge of vagrancy, escaped from the city jail and fled across the Ohio river bridge to Chester today.

Bowen made his getaway after Desk Sergeant George Toland gave him permission to step into the city hall corridor. As Toland went into an adjoining room to empty a bucket of water, Bowen dashed through the hall to the street.

The desk sergeant ran to the street in time to see Bowen sprinting east along Third street toward the bridge. Toland later learned Bowen stopped long enough to pay his toll at the bridge tollhouse, but, according to the toll-keeper, he "appeared to be in a big hurry."

Bowen was arrested yesterday by Chief of Police McDermott in a downtown pool room. The chief had warned him several months ago to get a job and quit loafing in pool rooms.

When the chief ordered him out of the pool room, it is alleged he became insulting. He was then arrested and taken to jail. Upon arraignment before Mayor Brown he was fined on a charge of vagrancy and committed to jail on a bread and water diet.

Police said at noon that Bowen will be committed to the county jail at Lisbon if he is apprehended.

COL. MITCHELL'S ARREST ORDERED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The war department today ordered that Col. William Mitchell be placed under technical arrest on next Tuesday, the day before he is court-martialed for his caustic criticism of the army and navy air services.

Mitchell already is under orders not to leave Washington. When placed under arrest, he will be unable to issue orders to any person in the army. Mitchell will not be confined, but will be permitted to live at his hotel pending the outcome of the court-martial trial.

"BABY BANDITS" MAKE $514 HAUL

CLEVELAND, Oct. 23.—Frank Fierce, a salesman, was attacked by two "baby bandits," who took $514 away from him in addition to checks totaling $112, he told police today. He said the youths were about 16.

Other overnight robberies which have become so usual that they now seem banal, were marked only by one instance where the bandit masked himself with oils and greases.

PASTOR, RE-MARRIED TWO WEEKS AFTER DIVORCE, REINSTATED BY PRESBYTERY

Rev. W. W. MacEwan, Formerly of East Liverpool, Wins Fight Against Suspension in Carlisle, Pa.

Rev. W. W. MacEwan, former pastor of the Orchard Grove Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, and later of the Second Presbyterian church here, was reinstated yesterday as a member of the Butler, Pa., presbytery, after six months' suspension.

This action was authorized by a commission in connection with the annual session of the synod of Pennsylvania in Carlisle. Members of the Butler presbytery, who suspended Rev. Mr. MacEwan because he had remarried two weeks after he had divorced his first wife, announced that they would carry their fight to the next convention of the general assembly of the church.

Rev. Mr. MacEwan has been living in Rankin, Pa., but of recent years has held no charge in the Presbyterian church. However, he retained his membership in the Butler presbytery. About a year ago the Pennsylvania courts are said to have granted him a divorce from his wife on the ground of desertion, and two weeks later he remarried another woman. Holding such an act as unbecoming to a minister of the Gospel the presbytery immediately ordered his suspension.

Rev. Mr. MacEwan went to the meeting of the synod this week, determined to vindicate himself. The matter was referred to a commission,

Newspaper Publisher Attacks State Proposals in Addressing Exchange Club in Cleveland.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 23.—Flaying particularly the proposed four-year state office term and the classification amendment, Charles L. Knight, publisher of the Akron Beacon-Journal, addressed the Exchange club here today. He warned Ohio voters to have care how they set their "Xs" to three different proposals to amend the constitution of the state at the November elections.

Referring to the term extender amendment, Knight said: "Until government gives us better results than it has in recent years, the people of Ohio will not saddle upon themselves for a period of four years, those who, in a great majority of cases, they would glady get rid of in less than half that time if they could."

"It is a serious matter when we propose to tax any kind of property at different rates," Knight continued. "The amendment proposed gives the legislature power to fix any rate it sees fit on intangibles."

Knight said we had no proof that the legislature would keep the attractive rates adopted at first and added:

"The tomb of the Smith law is a perpetual warning to misplace no confidence in that quarter. The gasoline tax and the reappraisal law of the last session inspire one with no abiding confidence in legislatures on matters of tax rates."

Knight said he had suggested to Robert Taft a sales tax that would place the burden on those who buy most and could most afford it.

Rev. Dr. Edwin Kirby Will Occupy Pulpit Here on Sunday

Rev. Dr. Edwin Kirby, Elyria and formerly of this city, will occupy the pulpit of the First Methodist Episcopal church here at both the Sunday morning and evening services.

Rev. Dr. Frank G. Fowler will fill the pulpit of Dr. Kirby's church at Elyria for the two Sunday services.

Ruling by Crabbe Blow at Roadside Courts of Justice

COLUMBUS, Oct. 23.—Justices of the peace cannot impose fines on motorists who are first offenders against speed laws, according to a ruling made today by Attorney General C. C. Crabbe.

"Even when a motorist pleads guilty," Crabbe stated, "the justice can only bind him over to a court of competent jurisdiction for trial."

Mrs. Belle Carey Dies in Cleveland; Funeral Saturday

Mrs. Belle Carey, 86, widow of the late Joseph Carey, died yesterday in the home of her daughter, Mrs. T. C. Swain, Cleveland, following a stroke of paralysis.

Mrs. Carey, formerly of East Liverpool, went to Cleveland two weeks ago to visit her daughter. She was a lifelong member of the United Presbyterian church and one of the oldest members of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, being one of the original "crusaders" of the organization.

She is survived by the following children: D. J. McBride, Tiffin; Mrs. Clara Carson, Bergholz; Mrs. T. C. Swain, Cleveland; Mrs. E. E. Chambers and Joseph T. Carey, both of East Liverpool.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. E. Chambers, 1115 Ohio avenue, East End. Rev. L. J. Davison, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, will have charge. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery.

The body may be viewed tonight at the Chambers home.

RALPH COLEMAN NAMES PAL IN "GAS" STATION ROBBERY HERE

OFF TO MANSFIELD

Ralph Eugene Coleman, 21, convicted of complicity in the hold-up of the Park Way gasoline filling station, May 16, last, has confessed and named an alleged confederate, Sheriff George Wright, of Lisbon, said today.

Asked Gloeckner to Change Bill

The confession, according to the sheriff, was made Thursday as Wright was taking Coleman to the Mansfield reformatory to serve an indeterminate sentence of 10 to 25 years, imposed Wednesday by Common Pleas Judge James G. Moore.

Coleman, the sheriff said, declared he acted as a lookout in the roadway while his "pal" entered the filling station and held up Edward Gloeckner, the owner. Approximately $300 was obtained in the robbery.

The convicted youth told the sheriff, it is claimed, that he first entered the filling station and asked Gloeckner to change a $5 bill. Gloeckner took the change from a money drawer under the counter. Coleman then joined his "pal," who, it is alleged, awaited him on the opposite side of the road.

Alleged "Pal" Missing.

The confederate, who has left the city and for whom a warrant has been issued, then entered the gasoline station, and, at the point of a revolver, demanded that Gloeckner turn over his money, the sheriff said Coleman declared.

During the trial early this week, Coleman set up an alibi as a defense, claiming he was working in Monaca, Pa., on the night of the robbery.

Police claim the convicted lad did not leave East Liverpool until May 18, two days after the hold-up.

Until his purported confession yesterday, Coleman had insisted he was innocent, although Gloeckner identified him as the party to whom he had given the change on the night of the hold-up. The jury took 11 ballots before he was found guilty. One of the jurors holding out for acquittal, believing the defendant was the victim of a frame-up.

According to the police young Coleman will not be eligible for parole until he had served at least 10 years in the state institution.

In company with Miles Decker of Salem, who was given from one to fifteen years in the reformatory for the theft of an automobile, Coleman was taken to Mansfield.

STUDENTS AID COLLEGE DRIVE

Muskingum Graduates Will Seek Funds in City.

Graduates and former students of Muskingum college, New Concord, residing in Columbiana county, will take part in the financial campaign to add $500,000 to the school's endowment fund, which will be conducted November 2-10, inclusive.

W. Frank Lunsford, of East Liverpool, is chairman of the district drive. Other members of the committee include S. E. Daw and Stewart Parker, Wellsville; A. A. Hart, Salineville; Miss Jean Carson, Bergholz; Lloyd Fife, Lisbon; Miss Helen Paxton, East Palestine and Harold C. Smith, Georgetown, Pa.

Rev. Dr. Hugh E. Kelsey, St. Louis, former pastor of the First United Presbyterian church here, will confer with members of the local committee at the Y. M. C. A. at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Lunsford will preside.

While no quota has been alloted any district each alumnus is asked to contribute $264. Not only former students of the school but friends of the institution will be asked to aid in the campaign.

"ENORMOUS POSSIBILITIES" SEEN IN INVENTION TO MEET INTERFERENCE IN RADIO BROADCASTING

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH.
(Copyright, 1925, by I. N. S.)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—A remarkable invention by John Hays Hammond, Jr., son of the widely known capitalist-engineer, by which it is possible to transmit from a single machine eight separate radio signals on the same wave length, has been examined by navy experts, and while they believe "it has enormous possibilities," it has been found impracticable for service use at present, it was learned today.

Officials who studied the Hammond device expressed the opinion that its operation on wave lengths between 200 and 600, where most broadcasting takes place, would complicate rather than solve the present congestion in radio communication channels.

They pointed out, however, that the Hammond invention operates on very low wave lengths, or high frequencies, now employed exclusively for special or experimental purposes. Its possible application to the higher wave lengths was studied since it is the relief of over-crowding in this channel that is necessary to meet the interference problem.

Use "Sub-Frequencies."

Briefly, experts said, the Hammond machine makes possible the broadcasting on a single wave length of eight separate signals through the use of a district set of "sub-frequencies."

Therefore, it would be theoretically possible to combine eight stations and transmit the various programs of each simultaneously seven channels for the use of other stations. If successful it would mean that over 4,500 stations would operate where but 600 are now on the air.

Experts explained that the device operates with a single "carrier wave," but with eight sub-frequencies, superimposed on the original wave.

They declared that a receiving set to "catch" broadcast programs from the multiple-signal machine would require not only one detector with its tube, coil and set of dials for the carrier wave, but a second detector and accessories to get the sub-frequency signal. This receiving set would be extremely complicated to build and operate.

Objection to Multiple Machine.

None of the 5,000,000 commercial sets in operation in the United States would be capable of receiving the multiple signals, but experts consider it possible that with proper development or receivers and broadcasting stations, multiple broadcasting may ultimately prove a solution of interference.

The ordinary receiver tuning in on a multiple signal station would get a heterodyne squeal, similar to that noticed when two or more stations are operating on the same wave length. The carrier wave could be picked up but not the sub-frequencies.

A second objection found by experts was in the creation by the multiple signal machine of a greater number of harmonics. A station operation on a given wave creates a first harmonic or "undertone" at half its wave length.

"If eight signals are being transmitted on a 500-metre wave eight harmonics are created at 250 metres, causing just eight times the present interference,' an expert said.

Officials said that the Hammond device is aimed at doing in the air what has been accomplished on telegraph and telephone cables, where a number of different signals are sent simultaneously on the same wire. No harmonic difficulty is found on wire transmission.

The suppression of harmonics is one of the big problems of radio engineering which has not yet been worked out successfully. Elimination of these curious "undertones" will go a long way toward meeting the interference problem officials said.

RADIO EXPERT SEES END OF INTERFERENCE

Electrical Disturbance One of Chief Sources of Trouble.

CAN OVERCOME IT

Alternating Current Wires Near Set Work Hardship.

WASHINGTON — Among the greatest problems that must be met before radio may reach its maximum value in America is the elimination so far as possible of interference caused by the use of electrical apparatus.

Government scientists and private engineers in co-operation have attacked this radio enigma and officials declare that there is indication that eventually at least partial solution will be found.

Electrical interference is in that category described generally as "man-made," as distinguished from natural —that is static disturbances in the atmosphere, fading of radio signals and other conditions that impede the radio wave.

Up To Radio Users.

"The only general remedy for electrical interference is co-operative effort on the part of users of radio and users or owners of electrical sources of disturbances," Dr. J. H. Dellinger, head of the radio laboratory of the Bureau of Standards, said.

Much of the work in mitigation of this type of interference should be directed at improvement in the operation of electrical devices or supply lines, according to Dellinger.

"However," he added, "there are some electrical devices which, even in perfect working order, cause disturbance which result in interference with radio reception.

"In many cases it is possible to provide filters or shields either at the source of disturbance or at the receiving set.

Dellinger places some of the electrical interference as "practically inevitable and to be regarded, like atmospheric disturbance, as part of the inherent limitation of radio reception."

"In other words," he continued, "the limitation of radio reception is not only the distance and power of the transmitting station and the sensitiveness of the receiving set, but also the omnipotent back ground of slight electrical disturbances which drown out signals below a certain intensity.

Cause of Interference

Among the most frequent causes of interference is the presence of alternating current power wires near the antenna or receiving set. Low frequency voltages, usually 60 cycles, are induced and the resultant current flowing in the receiving circuit causes a humming sound in the telephone receiver, it was pointed out.

"A method of eliminating or at least reducing the magnitude of this interference is to place the antenna as far as possible from wire lines and atr ight angles to them," Dellinger said.

"When the interference cannot be eliminated by such means the proper choice of a receiving set may help. An inductively-coupled (two-circuit) receiving set is less susceptible to such interference than a single circuit set.

"The use of one or more stages of radio frequency amplification should also help to filter out the audio-frequency interference. It has been suggested that the audio-frequency interference might be shunted around a receiving set having a series antenna condenser by connecting between the antenna and ground terminals of the set a high resistance, which will offer lower impedance to the audio-frequency than will the set itself."

Sparking Blamed

Sparking apparatus is given as another important cause of poor reception. Many types of electrical apparatus such as motors, doorbells, buzzers, gasoline engines, X-ray apparatus, violet ray machines, some forms of battery charges, rural telephone ringers, heading pad thermostats and others are mentioned in this class.

Silkworm raising, taken to Greece by refugees from Turkey, has grown to such an extent that this year's crop will exceed 6,000,000 pounds of cocoons, which is nearly twice that of 1920.

This Woman's Recompense

"I was so weak and nervous I could hardly do my housework," says Mrs. Harry Ashcroft of Covington, Ky. "I could not stand because of the bearing-down pains in my back and abdomen. One day I read how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped others and decided to try it. I want to praise this wonderful medicine for the health and strength it has given me and ask other suffering women to try it." This is the one great dependable medicine for woman's ills.

London Hairdresser Must Know "Clogris" To be Real Barber

LONDON.—The days of the barber whose only qualifications for his calling was the fact that he could juggle a pair of scissors are over. The complete hairdresser nowadays has to know all about such things as physiology, physics, chemistry, anatomy, pharmacology, bacteriology, hygiene, and several other subjects.

English barbers and their assistants now attend calsses at which they are lectured to by leading doctors and experts on all these subjects, and an examination is held to determine whether the scholars are proficient enough in these things to be "the complete barber."

It is the aim of the organizers of this scheme to have at least one trained man in every barber shop, and legislation is to be sought to make this compulsory.

It is probable that the barber who pases the examinations will be too swelled headed to ever want to barber, and it is less probable that the peculiar attribute of all barbers, small talk, will be a thing of the past.

"GEORGIA TUG" JAILED AFTER TOUR DE LUXE

Russia's Newest Swindler Poses as Republic's Chief.

BAFFLED POLICE

Trapped When Asked to Autograph Real President's Photo.

MOSCOW.—Russia's nerviest swindler, Khasanoff Tourgun Youldashevitch, alias "Georgia Tug," is back in jail after a series of exploits which added new luster to his criminal reputation and left crestfallen Soviet government officials wondering how he did it.

Tug got his moniker from residence in a Georgian penitentiary, where he was serving a six-year term for swindling when the government, in an expansive mood, pardoned everybody not convicted of murder or counter-revolution.

Dead broke when he left the Georgian prison, Tug counted on his excellent front and oriental good looks to get by without a ticket on the train to Yalta, in the Crimea. When the conductor came to collect, Tug told him: "I've lost my ticket along with my valise. Must have been stolen. But I'm Feisul Khodzhaiev, president of the Uzbeckistan republic, and when we get to Yalta the mayor will pay my fare."

The game worked, and Tug, on alighting in Yalta, decided to work it further. He called on the Mayor, who a little flustrated at the honor of receiving the president of the Uzbeckistan republic, insisted on lending him $60 to finish his trip to Moscow.

From then on, Tug's tour became a tour de luxe. The Yalta mayor proved a piker compared to the mayor of Novorrossisk, Tug's next stop. At Novorrossisk the mayor lent him $100.

But this time Tug's line had become so smooth that when he arrived in Polatava, the mayor came through with $150.

Gathering his energy for a real killing, Tug went on to Minskk, capital of White Russia. From a room in the best hotel, he telephoned the president of the Central Executive Committee of White Russia, and had that dignitary hasten hotfoot to the relief of the city's distinguished if unfortunate, guest. The White Russians are no cheap skates, and when Tug reluctantly revealed his financial embarrassment, the president of the Central Executive Committee forced him to accept a $500 loan.

This was good, but not the best. Tug had visions of Moscow. If Minsk was worth $500 surely Moscow ought to produce $1,000. He took a train for Moscow.

But it was a local, and the jaunty president of the Uzbeckistans had to stop over 12 hours in a small city named Gomel, not far from Moscow. Tired of walking about the railroad station, it occurred to Tug that he might at least make expenses.

He called a droshky and drove to the town hall. On the way he reflected he would only ask for $50—just spending money.

"Dear comrade," said the mayor, who left a meeting of the town council and hurried out with extended hands when the name of the president of the Uzbeckistan republic was announced, "of course, we'll fix up that little thing. But do come and let our comrades meet you."

"I think I may miss my train," he said.

EAST LIVERPOOL — AMERICA'S POTTERY CENTER

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1925.

School Revenue Is Needed

The question of keeping the East Liverpool district schools open for the nine-month term is up to the voters of the city proper, Liverpool township and part of the Southwest precinct of St. Clair township.

Their answer will be their judgment upon a proposed three-mill tax levy for a five-year period, which will be submitted at the election on Tuesday, November 3.

Submission of the proposal is a step to avoid a repetition of the situation which confronted the school board a few years ago, when it was necessary to appeal to the state director of education for relief under the provisions of the "weak district" law. Thanks to the policy of economy adopted then, the schools are now being operated upon a pay-as-you-go basis.

As the board of education points out, the proposed three-mill levy will not result in an increase of the taxpayers' annual contribution to the maintenance of the schools. The levy is merely a renewal of the millage voted five years ago, which is needed to pay operating expenses.

Parents and big brothers and sisters, who are interested in maintaining the high standard of the East Liverpool district schools shall not hesitate to support the new levy at the polls next month. It should be approved by an overwhelming vote.

Chance For Scholarship

Columbiana county high school students, do you want a scholarship, worth $4,000, in an Ohio college or university?

Opportunity is knocking at your door as a result of the offer made by Congressman Martin L. Davey, of Kent, who, hoping to impress upon Young America the importance of devoting more attention to forestry, will pay the expenses of a higher education for a student now in high school or a high school graduate.

East Liverpool, Wellsville, Salineville, Lisbon, Salem, East Palestine, Leetonia and other county towns are expected to be represented in an essay-writing contest in which the winner will be awarded the Davey scholarship. Mrs. W. F. Lones, of Wellsville, has been named chairman of the county campaign which is sponsored by the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs.

The contest should not only stimulate the interest of Ohioans in fundamental importance of building up the forest wealth of the state as well as emphasizing the need of action to prevent the devastation of timberlands, but should also prove worthwhile from an educational standpoint.

Come on, boys and girls!

Best Music For All

Speaking of a symphony concert program by one of the country's leading orchestras, broadcast recently contrary to the orchestra's usual policy, a radio editor remarks:

"In view of the widespread appreciation of this program, it is difficult to understand upon what theory the orchestra management can longer refuse to allow the orchestra's music to be broadcast.

"No such opportunity has ever before come to musicians to cultivate popular musical appreciation and advance the cause of music as broadcasting presents today. Even should broadcasting actually interfere with the size of the orchestra's visible audience (a theory which is exploded) broadcasting still ought to be worth while. The orchestra, playing to an empty hall, might be accomplishing better than in the past the purpose for which it is supported."

This last statement is based on the fact that the orchestra referred to, like several others in this country, never makes expenses, but is supported by the contributions of wealthy citizens as a philanthropic institution.

When shall we have endowed musical organizations devoted to radio service, for the good they will do? That is pretty sure to come in time. Meanwhile it is not evident that, on mere commercial grounds, an orchestra depending on popular support has anything to lose by admitting the radio audience to its concerts occasionally.

Picking Up Nails

An Idaho industrial company had a brilliant idea. It hung a big magnet from the rear end of a truck, supplied with current from a storage battery, and swept the roads near its plant, picking up a surprising lot of junk. Then it persuaded the state highway department to try out the device on the Yellowstone Trail.

On seven miles of that famous highway, the magnet gathered up 603 pounds of nails, bolts, tacks and other scrap, most of which might easily have punctured tires. Tourists trailed along after that truck admiringly to watch its work.

The idea will spread. But there is nothing to prevent removing tire-puncturing junk from the road by ordinary means. People are strangely slack about this. Scattered nails, of course, are hard to see. But boards with nails in them, plainly visible to approaching motorists, are always appearing on the road. All the ordinary driver does is to turn out warily and wonder why somebody doesn't kick them off the roadway. Bottles, too, which no magnet will pick up. Who, except an occasional generous and unthanked pedestrian, ever removes glass from the road?

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Thoughts and scenes while strolling around New York: The Netherland and Savoy hotels dark and curtained. Traffic stops. And all chauffeurs light cigarets. Nice boys—except in a shower. Julia Hoyt. Somet hink she's beautiful.

Ex-Ambassador Gerard. Clinging Crecian frocks. Whatever became of the boys who sold corsets? Men with pin striped trousers and braided coats. Pardon my plus fours. Always flowers in Helen Gould's windows. A shawled woman with a bucket following a coal wagon over a cross street.

They say some avenue church weddings cost $50,000. And perhaps $20 for the parson. Then brides read novels, munch chocolates—and consider the futility of life. Winking fish-eyed traffic lights. That is Manhattan—the sign of the wink.

Hot air Soviets on library steps. There's an aura of romance about luggage shops. And what has become of window demonstrators? How do all the small jewelry shops manage to exist? Alhwo syndicated writers. The girl whose cameo like purity flashes from the screen. But in real life, O my, my!

That Greek restaurant with bewiskered waiters. And pocketed with strange, sweetish odors. Bruce Barton. The moving sidewalk under 42nd never materialized. It was a good idea. Seedy men warming themselves over hot blasts from subway gratings.

Strays and wastrels. Yogis and dreamers. Revolving like chickens on rotissiere spits. Oldest and newest professions. Nobody will believe it but there goes a yoke of oxen. And running hell for leather. What's become of folk who used to call a telegram "a dispatch?"

The open air clothes market on Essex Street draws a curious assortment of humans. Old garments are auctioned off to the sidewalk rabble. Now and then a prospective buyer—properly guarded—goes up an alley to try on the clothes. Bright vets are in demand. But a pair of little worn Oxford baks went for 10 cents.

In prowling about hidden streets, of Greenwich Village I asked a taxi driver to drive past the Cherry Lane playhouse. He scratched his head. "You mean," he inquired, "where all them complex apartments are?"—and perhaps nothing better fited the occupants than his unconscious bit of humor. The theatre resembles a garage in front and only a small hand painted sign over the door establishes it. On a corner is the brick home of Edna St. Vincent Millay, the poet. The front of the little homes centuries about the Cherry Lane theater face tiny court yards with tubbed trees and gardens. These courts cannot be seen from the street. Many new apartments are going up on wide Varick Street and the twisting and turnings of alley entrances are like sections of London. Barrow street where Stefansson, the explorer, hides away is usually as deserted as a country town.

Undeniably there is a restful atmosphere about the village not found elsewhere in town. It is a crow's nest for free thinkers yet they do not press views on neighbors. People go to the village to get away from people and for that reason no one knows his neighbor yet otherwise it has every appearance of the small town.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 23.—During the fiscal year 1924 owners of motor vehicles paid the federal government $158,000,000 in taxes on pleasure cars, trucks and spare parts. During this eight years since they were first imposed in the war emergency these taxes have produced an aggregate revenue of $864 000,000.

The tax on automobiles is five per cent on the wholesale price of new cars. On repair parts the levy is two and one-half per cent. On trucks it is three per cent except for chassis wholesaling for $1,000 and under, and bodies wholesaling for $200 and under. The exception for trucks and the reduction of the tax on parts from five to two and one-half per cent were made by congress last year. At the coming session a determined drive will be made by the organized motorists of the country to have all the federal taxes on motor vehicles wiped out.

In special state license fees and taxes, not including personal property taxes, municipal fees, or gasoline tax, motorists have an annual tax bill of $305,000,000. Leaders of their organization say that motorists are thus made to pay more than their share of the cost of government and that the time has come for them to stand up on their hind legs until they are accorded relief.

"These taxes will come off entirely this year if there is enough yelling done," says Thomas P. Henry, president of the American Automobile association. "They exist because of human inertia. No one can question that it is unfair and un-American to tax one group of citizens above the rest, but injustice is likely to prevail until some one gets up and does something about it."

President Henry urged every owner of a motor vehicle, and every prospective owner, to get in touch with his congressman and senator and make an appeal for the repeal of the war-time motor taxes. Personal calls and letters are advocated as more efficacious than form letters or resolutions adopted by clubs. It is expected that federal taxes will be reduced $300,000,000 to $400,000,000 by the new congress and motorists are admonished that it will be their own fault if they do not get their share of the reduction.

Arguments To Be Used.

The general argument that has been advanced for retaining the motor taxes is that they yield a big revenue, are easily collected and the automobile owner really does not feel them because they are included in the purchase price of his car and parts. The answer to this is that it was equally true of 35 other industries whose products were specially taxed for war purposes and congress has removed the federal levies on all of them, so why not include the automobile industry?

More specifically the taxes have been justified on the ground that the federal government is assisting in the construction of highways throughout the country and that motorists should expect to be taxed specially to pay for this government undertaking that is directly for their benefit.

That argument is met first with the statement that there is no connection between federal aid road building and the motor taxes because the federal aid policy was adopted a year and a half before the taxes were proposed or levied, and when the taxes were levied it was for the purpose of raising money for the war emergency and not for road building.

Next it is pointed out that motorists are bearing their full share of the cost of good roads through the state license fees and taxes which they pay, and that in any event the total they are assessed by Uncle Sam is more than twice as much as he spends on roads. The government contribution to federal aid roads is $75,000,000 annually, while as has been stated the motor taxes amount to considerably more than $158,000,000 a year. All told the federal treasury has paid out about $400,000,000 in assisting the states in highway development, while it has taken in $864,000,000 from the people who used the roads.

Moreover it is argued that federal appropriations are not made to benefit a particular class of people, although it may happen that they do so, but to benefit the public in general and they are paid for by general taxation of the whole public. The Department of Agriculture with its numerous activities is primarily of benefit to farmers, but the agricultural interests of the country are not assessed a special tax to support it. Shipping interests are not levied on to pay for dredging rivers and harbors and other federal undertakings that directly benefit shipping.

Uncle Sam expends a tidy sum each year in foreign and domestic trade development, but the business interests that profit by this are not asked to pay for it except through their general contributions to the federal treasury.

Then why should the people who use the public highways be required to pay a special tax over and above their general income taxes, corporation taxes, and the like?

The Motorists' Platform.

In the campaign that is being waged for the repeal of the motor taxes the platform that has been adopted by the American Automobile association includes these planks:

No man should pay a special tax because he wants to buy an automobile.

It is not just to make one class of buyers of any legitimate product pay war taxes over and above those of their neighbors.

The tax on automobiles is a tax on transportation.

The tax on motor vehicles hits the farmer particularly, because that is often the only means of travel he has.

Decides on Best Life Insurance

"Five years ago I was refused life insurance because of my heart symptoms. Doctors said it was caused from a pressure of gas that came from my stomach, but their medicin did not help me and I was getting worse all the time. Three years ago my druggist recommended Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I took a course of it and believe it is the best life insurance anyone can buy. It helped my trouble at once." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Jesse D. Holloway and druggists everywhere.

Would your insurance rebuild it to-day?

If fire swept away your property, do you think that you could rebuild for what it cost you twenty years ago or longer?

It would be impossible to replace your building for anywhere near the amount it originally cost you. How about your insurance? Many people determine the amount of insurance they want to carry by the first cost of their building. They often forget that this same amount would not serve to rebuild if fire swept away their property.

If you have not increased your insurance in the course of several years, you may run the risk of a serious loss. If fire should sweep away your buildings, would your pocket-book have to help your insurance policy replace the loss?

By increasing your policies, which would cost only a little, you could be relieved of this worry. Is it not worth a moment's thought and action?

Telephone us today and let us inspect your premises. We are experts in estimating property values, and as representatives of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company offer you complete protection against every possible loss.

RADIO EXPERT SEES END OF INTERFERENCE

Electrical Disturbance One of Chief Sources of Trouble.

CAN OVERCOME IT

Alternating Current Wires Near Set Work Hardship.

WASHINGTON — Among the greatest problems that must be met before radio may reach its maximum value in America is the elimination so far as possible of interference caused by the use of electrical apparatus.

Government scientists and private engineers in co-operation have attacked this radio enigma and officials declare that there is indication that eventually at least partial solution will be found.

Electrical interference is in that category described generally as "man-made," as distinguished from natural —that is static disturbances in the atmosphere, fading of radio signals and other conditions that impede the radio wave.

Up To Radio Users.

"The only general remedy for electrical interference is co-operative effort on the part of users of radio and users or owners of electrical sources of disturbances," Dr. J. H. Dellinger, head of the radio laboratory of the Bureau of Standards, said.

Much of the work in mitigation of this type of interference should be directed at improvement in the operation of electrical devices or supply lines, according to Dellinger.

"However," he added, "there are some electrical devices which, even in perfect working order, cause disturbance which result in interference with radio reception.

"In many cases it is possible to provide filters or shields either at the source of disturbance or at the receiving set.

Dellinger places some of the electrical interference as "practically inevitable and to be regarded, like atmospheric disturbance, as part of the inherent limitation of radio reception."

"In other words," he continued, "the limitation of radio reception is not only the distance and power of the transmitting station and the sensitiveness of the receiving set, but also the omnipotent back ground of slight electrical disturbances which drown out signals below a certain intensity.

Cause of Interference

Among the most frequent causes of interference is the presence of alternating current power wires near the antenna or receiving set. Low frequency voltages, usually 60 cycles, are induced and the resultant current flowing in the receiving circuit causes a humming sound in the telephone receiver, it was pointed out.

"A method of eliminating or at least reducing the magnitude of this interference is to place the antenna as far as possible from wire lines and atr ight angles to them," Dellinger said.

"When the interference cannot be eliminated by such means the proper choice of a receiving set may help. An inductively-coupled (two-circuit) receiving set is less susceptible to such interference than a single circuit set.

"The use of one or more stages of radio frequency amplification should also help to filter out the audio-frequency interference. It has been suggested that the audio-frequency interference might be shunted around a receiving set having a series antenna condenser by connecting between the antenna and ground terminals of the set a high resistance, which will offer lower impedance to the audio-frequency than will the set itself."

Sparking Blamed

Sparking apparatus is given as another important cause of poor reception. Many types of electrical apparatus such as motors, doorbells, buzzers, gasoline engines, X-ray apparatus, violet ray machines, some forms of battery charges, rural telephone ringers, heading pad thermostats and others are mentioned in this class.

Silkworm raising, taken to Greece by refugees from Turkey, has grown to such an extent that this year's crop will exceed 6,000,000 pounds of cocoons, which is nearly twice that of 1920.

This Woman's Recompense

"I was so weak and nervous I could hardly do my housework," says Mrs. Harry Ashcroft of Covington, Ky. "I could not stand because of the bearing-down pains in my back and abdomen. One day I read how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped others and decided to try it. I want to praise this wonderful medicine for the health and strength it has given me and ask other suffering women to try it." This is the one great dependable medicine for woman's ills

Mrs. J. R. Thompson Hostess at Shower For Bride-elect

Pink roses and yellow chrysanthemums decorated the home of Mrs. Joseph R. Thompson of East Fifth street, yesterday afternoon, when the members of the Tuesday Musical club were entertained. Progressive bridge was the diversion of the first part of the afternoon.

A feature was a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Sara V. Vodrey, whose engagement to William L. Gardner was recently announced. Many gifts were received by the honor guest.

Luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by her sister, Miss Frances Simmers, Hallowe'en novelties being used in the appointments.

Tendered Miscellaneous Shower.

Honoring Mr. and Mrs. Harry Langdon of Monroe street, who were recently married, a group of young people and friends of the Nazarene church, surprised them Wednesday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Baum, of Sixth street, with a miscellaneous shower. Gifts of linen, cut glass and aluminum were received by the honor guests. The following program, arranged by Rev. Samuel Howe, was given:

Song ..... America
Prayer ..... Rev. Samuel Howe
Piano solo ..... Miss Marguerite Parker
Violin solo ..... Miss Alice Hile
Cornet solo ..... Donald Wolfe
Vocal duet ..... Mr. and Mrs. Foster Brindley

The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Sons of Veterans will serve a bake bean supper, East Sixth street, Saturday evening, beginning at 5 o'clock. The public is invited to attend.

Danceland Party.

Curran's dancing Academy will entertain with a round and square dancing party Saturday evening in Danceland, East Fifth street. The Curran Danceland orchestra will furnish the music.

Mrs. William Osborne Hostess.

Mrs. William Osborne was hostess to the members of the Golden Rod club Tuesday evening at her home in the Lincoln highway. The social hours were spent with Hallowe'en games and needlework. The home was decorated in yellow and black and Hallowe'en novelties, which were also used in the luncheon appointments. The hostess was assisted in serving by Mrs. Francis Gabbert and Mrs. Clarice Parsons. Places were arranged for 25 guests.

The next meeting will be held in two weeks at the home of Mrs. Charles M. Walker, of Bank street.

Moose Dancing Party.

School Revenue Is Needed

The question of keeping the East Liverpool district schools open for the nine-month term is up to the voters of the city proper, Liverpool township and part of the Southwest precinct of St. Clair township.

Their answer will be their judgment upon a proposed three-mill tax levy for a five-year period, which will be submitted at the election on Tuesday, November 3.

Submission of the proposal is a step to avoid a repetition of the situation which confronted the school board a few years ago, when it was necessary to appeal to the state director of education for relief under the provisions of the "weak district" law. Thanks to the policy of economy adopted then, the schools are now being operated upon a pay-as-you-go basis.

As the board of education points out, the proposed three-mill levy will not result in an increase of the taxpayers' annual contribution to the maintenance of the schools. The levy is merely a renewal of the millage voted five years ago, which is needed to pay operating expenses.

Parents and big brothers and sisters, who are interested in maintaining the high standard of the East Liverpool district schools shall not hesitate to support the new levy at the polls next month. It should be approved by an overwhelming vote.

Chance For Scholarship

Columbiana county high school students, do you want a scholarship, worth $4,000, in an Ohio college or university?

Opportunity is knocking at your door as a result of the offer made by Congressman Martin L. Davey, of Kent, who, hoping to impress upon Young America the importance of devoting more attention to forestry, will pay the expenses of a higher education for a student now in high school or a high school graduate.

East Liverpool, Wellsville, Salineville, Lisbon, Salem, East Palestine, Leetonia and other county towns are expected to be represented in an essay-writing contest in which the winner will be awarded the Davey scholarship. Mrs. W. F. Lones, of Wellsville, has been named chairman of the county campaign which is sponsored by the Ohio Federation of Women's clubs.

The contest should not only stimulate the interest of Ohioans in fundamental importance of building up the forest wealth of the state as well as emphasizing the need of action to prevent the devastation of timberlands, but should also prove worthwhile from an educational standpoint.

Come on, boys and girls!

Best Music For All

Speaking of a symphony concert program by one of the country's leading orchestras, broadcast recently contrary to the orchestra's usual policy, a radio editor remarks:

"In view of the widespread appreciation of this program, it is difficult to understand upon what theory the orchestra management can longer refuse to allow the orchestra's music to be broadcast.

"No such opportunity has ever before come to musicians to cultivate popular musical appreciation and advance the cause of music as broadcasting presents today. Even should broadcasting actually interfere with the size of the orchestra's visible audience (a theory which is exploded) broadcasting still ought to be worth while. The orchestra, playing to an empty hall, might be accomplishing better than in the past the purpose for which it is supported."

This last statement is based on the fact that the orchestra referred to, like several others in this country, never makes expenses, but is supported by the contributions of wealthy citizens as a philanthropic institution.

When shall we have endowed musical organizations devoted to radio service, for the good they will do? That is pretty sure to come in time. Meanwhile it is not evident that, on mere commercial grounds, an orchestra depending on popular support has anything to lose by admitting the radio audience to its concerts occasionally.

Picking Up Nails

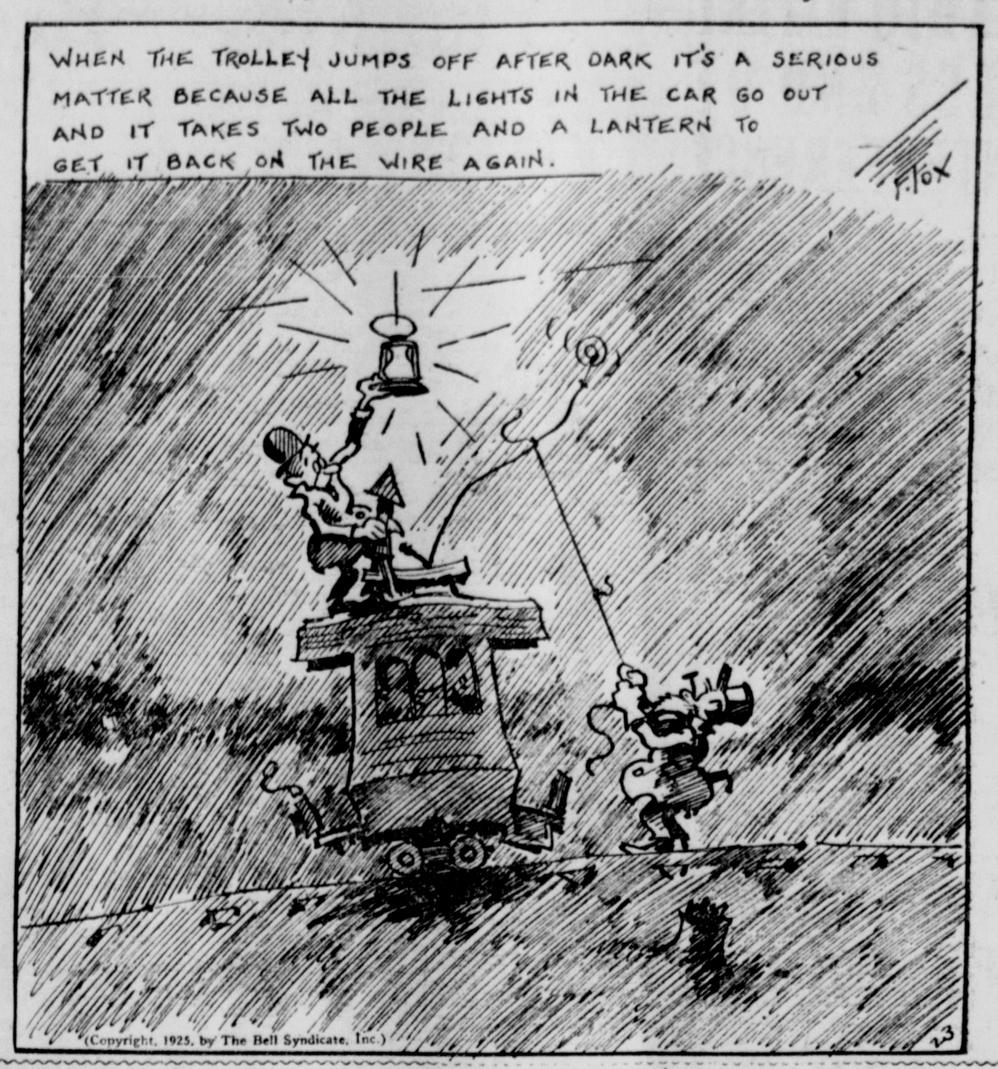
An Idaho industrial company had a brilliant idea. It hung a big magnet from the rear end of a truck, supplied with current from a storage battery, and swept the roads near its plant, picking up a surprising lot of junk. Then it persuaded the state highway department to try out the device on the Yellowstone Trail.

On seven miles of that famous highway, the magnet gathered up 603 pounds of nails, bolts, tacks and other scrap, most of which might easily have punctured tires. Tourists trailed along after that truck admiringly to watch its work.

The idea will spread. But there is nothing to prevent removing tire-puncturing junk from the road by ordinary means. People are strangely slack about this. Scattered nails, of course, are hard to see. But boards with nails in them, plainly visible to approaching motorists, are always appearing on the road. All the ordinary driver does is to turn out warily and wonder why somebody doesn't kick them off the roadway. Bottles, too, which no magnet will pick up. Who, except an occasional generous and unthanked pedestrian, ever removes glass from the road?

The Toonerville Trolley That Meets All The Trains— By Fontaine Fox



NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Thoughts and scenes while strolling around New York: The Netherland and Savoy hotels dark and curtained. Traffic stops. And all chauffeurs light cigarets. Nice boys—except in a shower. Julia Hoyt. Somet hink she's beautiful.

Ex-Ambassador Gerard. Clinging Crecian frocks. Whatever became of the boys who sold corsets? Men with pin striped trousers and braided coats. Pardon my plus fours. Always flowers in Helen Gould's windows. A shawled woman with a bucket following a coal wagon over a cross street.

They say some avenue church weddings cost $50,000. And perhaps $20 for the parson. Then brides read novels, munch chocolates—and consider the futility of life. Winking fish-eyed traffic lights. That is Manhattan—the sign of the wink.

Hot air Soviets on library steps. There's an aura of romance about luggage shops. And what has become of window demonstrators? How do all the small jewelry shops manage to exist? Alhwo syndicated writers. The girl whose cameo like purity flashes from the screen. But in real life, O my, my!

That Greek restaurant with bewiskered waiters. And pocketed with strange, sweetish odors. Bruce Barton. The moving sidewalk under 42nd never materialized. It was a good idea. Seedy men warming themselves over hot blasts from subway gratings.

Strays and wastrels. Yogis and dreamers. Revolving like chickens on rotissiere spits. Oldest and newest professions. Nobody will believe it but there goes a yoke of oxen. And running hell for leather. What's become of folk who used to call a telegram "a dispatch?"

The open air clothes market on Essex Street draws a curious assortment of humans. Old garments are auctioned off to the sidewalk rabble. Now and then a prospective buyer—properly guarded—goes up an alley to try on the clothes. Bright vets are in demand. But a pair of little worn Oxford baks went for 10 cents.

In prowling about hidden sfreets, of Greenwich Village I asked a taxi driver to drive past the Cherry Lane playhouse. He scratched his head. "You mean," he inquired, "where all them complex apartments are?"—and perhaps nothing better fited the occupants than his unconscious bit of humor. The theatre resembles a garage in front and only a small hand painted sign over the door establishes it. On a corner is the brick home of Edna St. Vincent Millay, the poet. The front of the little homes centuries about the Cherry Lane theater face tiny court yards with tubbed trees and gardens. These courts cannot be seen from the street. Many new apartments are going up on wide Varick Street and the twisting and turnings of alley entrances are like sections of London. Barrow street where Stefansson, the explorer, hides away is usually as deserted as a country town.

Undenfably there is a restful atmosphere about the village not found elsewhere in town. It is a crow's nest for free thinkers yet they do not press views on neighbors. People go to the village to get away from people and for that reason no one knows his neighbor yet otherwise it has every appearance of the small town.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 23.—During the fiscal year 1924 owners of motor vehicles paid the federal government $158,000,000 in taxes on pleasure cars, trucks and spare parts. During this eight years since they were first imposed in the war emergency these taxes have produced an aggregate revenue of $864,000,000.

The tax on automobiles is five per cent on the wholesale price of new cars. On repair parts the levy is two and one-half per cent. On trucks it is three per cent except for chassis wholesaling for $1,000 and under, and bodies wholesaling for $200 and under. The exception for trucks and the reduction of the tax on parts from five to two and one-half per cent were made by congress last year. At the coming session a determined drive will be made by the organized motorists of the country to have all the federal taxes on motor vehicles wiped out.

In special state license fees and taxes, not including personal property taxes, municipal fees, or gasoline tax, motorists have an annual tax bill of $305,000,000. Leaders of their organization say that motorists are thus made to pay more than their share of the cost of government and that the time has come for them to stand up on their hind legs until they are accorded relief.

"These taxes will come off entirely this year if there is enough yelling done," says Thomas P. Henry, president of the American Automobile association. "They exist because of human inertia. No one can question that it is unfair and un-American to tax one group of citizens above the rest, but injustice is likely to prevail until some one gets up and does something about it."

President Henry urged every owner of a motor vehicle, and every prospective owner, to get in touch with his congressman and senator and make an appeal for the repeal of the war-time motor taxes. Personal calls and letters are advocated as more efficacious than form letters or resolutions adopted by clubs. It is expected that federal taxes will be reduced $300,000,000 to $400,000,000 by the new congress and motorists are admonished that it will be their own fault if they do not get their share of the reduction.

Arguments To Be Used.

The general argument that has been advanced for retaining the motor taxes is that they yield a big revenue, are easily collected and the automobile owner really does not feel them because they are included in the purchase price of his car and parts. The answer to this is that it was equally true of 35 other industries whose products were specially taxed for war purposes and congress has removed the federal levies on all of them, so why not include the automobile industry?

More specifically the taxes have been justified on the ground that the federal government is assisting in the construction of highways throughout the country and that motorists should expect to be taxed specially to pay for this government undertaking that is directly for their benefit.

That argument is met first with the statement that there is no connection between federal aid road building and the motor taxes because the federal aid policy was adopted a year and a half before the taxes were proposed or levied, and when the taxes were levied it was for the purpose of raising money for the war emergency and not for road building.

Next it is pointed out that motorists are bearing their full share of the cost of good roads through the state license fees and taxes which they pay, and that in any event the total they are assessed by Uncle Sam is more than twice as much as he spends on roads. The government contribution to federal aid roads is $75,000,000 annually, while as has been stated the motor taxes amount to considerably more than $158,000,000 a year. All told the federal treasury has paid out about $400,000,000 in assisting the states in highway development, while it has taken in $864,000,000 from the people who used the roads.

Moreover it is argued that federal appropriations are not made to benefit a particular class of people, although it may happen that they do so, but to benefit the public in general and they are paid for by general taxation of the whole public. The Department of Agriculture with its numerous activities is primarily of benefit to farmers, but the agricultural interests of the country are not assessed a special tax to support it. Shipping interests are not levied on to pay for dredging rivers and harbors and other federal undertakings that directly benefit shipping.

Uncle Sam expends a tidy sum each year in foreign and domestic trade development, but the business interests that profit by this are not asked to pay for it except through their general contributions to the federal treasury.

Then why should the people who use the public highways be required to pay a special tax over and above their general income taxes, corporation taxes, and the like?

The Motorists' Platform.

In the campaign that is being waged for the repeal of the motor taxes the platform that has been adopted by the American Automobile association includes these planks:

No man should pay a special tax because he wants to buy an automobile.

It is not just to make one class of buyers of any legitimate product pay war taxes over and above those of their neighbors.

The tax on automobiles is a tax on transportation.

The tax on motor vehicles hits the farmer particularly, because that is often the only means of travel he has.

Decides on Best Life Insurance

"Five years ago I was refused life insurance because of my heart symptoms. Doctors said it was caused from a pressure of gas that came from my stomach, but their medicine did not help me and I was getting worse all the time. Three years ago my druggist recommended Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I took a course of it and believe it is the best life insurance anyone can buy. It helped my trouble at once." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. Jesse D. Holloway and druggists everywhere.

Would your insurance rebuild it to-day?

If fire swept away your property, do you think that you could rebuild for what it cost you twenty years ago or longer?

It would be impossible to replace your building for anywhere near the amount it originally cost you. How about your insurance? Many people determine the amount of insurance they want to carry by the first cost of their building. They often forget that this same amount would not serve to rebuild if fire swept away their property.

If you have not increased your insurance in the course of several years, you may run the risk of a serious loss. If fire should sweep away your buildings, would your pocket-book have to help your insurance policy replace the loss?

By increasing your policies, which would cost only a little, you could be relieved of this worry. Is it not worth a moment's thought and action?

Telephone us today and let us inspect your premises. We are experts in estimating property values, and as representatives of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company offer you complete protection against every possible loss.

INHERITS TITLE, STAYS ON RANCH

Winnipeg.—The call of the great open spaces is a very real thing to some men. It is to Baron Cheylesmore, third of his line. And thus it is that Western Canada can add another to the list of its titled landowners. This English peer, who recently came into possession of his inheritance, is Francis Ormand Henry Eaton, D. S. O., who succeeds to the peerage as the fourth Lord Cheylesmore.

Happy Valley Ranch.

As Captain Eaton, he arrived in Alberta four years ago and acquired part of the Haunted Lakes ranch near Alix, Alberta, which he has since renamed the Happy Valley ranch. A few weeks ago he succeeded to the title, but the now seasoned Alberta farmer has expressed his intention of continuing his residence on the prairies, rather than return to the old land. He was busy all last month with the harvest on his estate.

Lord Cheylesmore was born June 10, 1893, educated at Eton, Trinity college and Cambridge university. He was a second lieutenant when the war broke out in 1914, having received a military training at Sandhurst. He joined the Grenadier Guards with the British Expeditionary force in Flanders and France in June, 1915, and served with his regiment throughout the war. He was awarded the D. S. O. for conspicuous gallantry at the third battle of Ypres, in July, 1917, and was also promoted, in the field to the rank of captain. He always intended to settle down in some part of the British dominions and he selected western Canada after a year's residence in Alberta.

English Estate.

His English estate does not include any landed property or country seat. It consists largely of city real estate, situated in London, and in such industrial sites as Coventry.

Lord Cheylesmore was a well known rugby football player and track athlete in his Eton and Cambridge days. He is a devoted outdoor sportsman and plays a good game of polo. He says he is not returning to England, but will make his home on his beautiful Alberta holdings. He belongs to the Guards, Whites and Turf clubs in London.

Lord Cheylesmore's tragic death in a motor accident recently found his son in the midst of summer's work. His presence was not required in London and he sent his solicitor to look after the necessary business connected with winding up of the estate.

Haskin's Letter

invading the province of the states. Insofar as motor taxes are needed for road improvement and maintenance the state is the agency to collect them.

The repair parts tax is a tax on misfortune, penalizing a man at a time of unexpected expense.

The war is over. The automobile has paid seven years of special war excise taxes. The surplus in the federal treasury permits elimination. All the federal motor taxes should be taken off at once.

This platform is the expression of sentiment of motor clubs throughout the United States, according to President Henry, and every effort will be made to convince congress that it is reasonable and sound.

It is estimated that the average tax which the purchaser of an automobile pays to the federal government amounts to $29. On a car that wholesales for $400 it would be $20 and such a car would retail at about $500.

"The man who expects to buy a car sometime soon," says the head of the motorists' big organization, "who is buying parts or tires, and who thinks he can use that $29, can accomplish a good deal by calling on his congressman, or writing to him, letting him know how the folks at home feel about it. Congress today is attentive. Its members want to know the public will."

No more RHEUMATISM

But rheumatism will bring pain and misery to your joints and muscles just as long as you are without plenty of rich, red blood in your system.

It's the red-blood-cells that S. S. S. helps Nature build that drive out of your system the impurities that cause rheumatism. And until you do build up your blood to where it is pure and rich and red, you simply can't get rid of rheumatism.

S. S. S. means millions of red-blood-cells—means health all over. No more rheumatism. Nights of rest—days of joy, filled with the happiness of accomplishment — made possible by a body brimful of red blooded life, energy and vitality.

That's what the end of rheumatism means—that's what S. S. S. brings to you. Get S. S. S. from your druggist. The larger bottle is more economical.

E. B. A. Members Entertained.

Members of the Security Benefit association were entertained with a masquerade ball in the Sons of Veterans' hall, East Sixth street, Wednesday evening. One hundred couples attended.

A smoking set was awarded Donald Bennett, who was dressed as a Mexican, while three pair of individual salt and pepper shakers were given Miss Eleanor Hill, who was dressed as Martha Washington.

Music and dancing were the social diversions.

Next Wednesday evening a class of candidates will be initiated at a meeting of the association, after which dancing will be a diversion.

Bridge Club Meeting.

Members of the Chester Bridge club were guests last evening at the home of Mrs. E. G. Jackson, Carolina avenue, Chester. Three tables were in play. Trophies were awarded Mrs. George Viney and Mrs. Clyde Springer.

Luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. James Hocking.

The next meeting will be held in two weeks at the home of Mrs. Edward McNicol, of Third street, Chester.

Jolly Fellows' Club Dance.

The Jolly Fellows' club will entertain with an informal dancing party Saturday evening in the Eagles' Temple, Broadway. Thomas Sayre's orchestra will furnish the music.

"Hod" Williams and his Manhattan Serenaders will furnish the music for the dancing party to be held Monday evening.

Kozy Klub Session.

Members of the Kozy Klub met Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Mildred Hill, of Pennsylvania avenue, East End. Music, games and dancing were the diversions, after which luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Jessie Hill. Covers were arranged for Misses Alma Pitman, Mary Lowe, Elsie Glynn, Clara Miller, Ruth Robinson, Nina Echols, Marian Smith and Mildred Hill; Messrs. Sam Hildreth, Fred Hildreth, John Rigby, Charles Stull, Virgil Boston and George Rinestine.

The club will meet again in two weeks, the hostess to be announced later.

Wedding Anniversary Celebrated.

Honoring the second wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McLane, a group of friends and relatives were entertained at their home last evening with progressive bridge, two tables being in play. The trophy for the highest score was awarded Warren Mathews.

Luncheon was served by Mrs. McLane, assisted by Mrs. Virgil Roller of Wellsville.

Entertains Ladies' Aid Society.

Mrs. Garland Abshire entertained the Ladies' Aid society of the First Spiritualist church Wednesday evening at her home in Union street. Fancywork and quilting were the pastimes, after which a four-course luncheon was served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be held November 18, the place to be announced later.

L. C. B. A. Gives Masquerade.

The Ladies' Catholic Benevolent Association held its annual masquerade party last evening in the auditorium of the parochial school, West Fifth street, entertaining 100 guests. Cards and dancing were diversions. Trophies were awarded the following for unique and attractive costumes: Mrs. Joseph Gape, Mrs. Thomas Russell, Mrs. Joseph Holtzman, Mrs. Thomas Carr, Mrs. Edward Dailey, Misses Martha Larkins, Margaret McKeever and Helen Russell and Gerald Faulk.

Luncheon was served by the social committee, with Miss Teresa McNicol as chairman.

Mrs. J. E. Anderson Entertains.

Mrs. John E. Anderson delightfully entertained the members of the Past Noble Grand association of Ceramic Rebekah lodge at her home in Lincoln avenue, Tuesday evening. The social hours were spent with music, games and needlework, after which luncheon was served by the hostess. Covers were arranged for 12 guests.

The next meeting will be held November 17 at the home of Miss Nettie McBane, of Avondale street.

Birthday Anniversary Observed.

Honoring the sixtieth birthday of W. W. Bassine of Cadiaus street, which occurred Saturday, October 17, a 6 o'clock dinner was served by his wife, assisted by Miss Mary Sheldon, of Parkersburg, W. Va. Fall flowers were used in the decorations of the table. The guests were: J. E. Hannah, R. Q. Luther and wife and son, Robert, Miss Mary Sheldon and Miss Mary German.

Laughlin Employes' Ball.

A Hallowe'en masquerade ball will be featured by employes of the six plants of the Homer Laughlin China company in the Eagles' temple, Broadway, between the hours of 8:30 and 12 o'clock tonight. Five prizes will be awarded. Music for the dancing will be furnished by Dorsey Mann and his Swanee Serenaders. Every third dance will be a waltz, while the others will be novelty features. The public is invited.

TWO DELEGATES TO DRY MEET

East Liverpool Men to Attend Chicago Conference.

Rev. Dr. Frank G. Fowler, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church and Frank Crook, retail furniture dealer, are among the 36 delegates from Ohio, named by Governor A. V. Donahey to attend the national enforcement conference, which will be held in Chicago, November 5-9, under the auspices of the Anti-Saloon League of America.

Various phases of bringing about a better enforcement of the liquor laws, national, state nad local, will be discussed.

The Ohio delegation includes three college presidents, eight ministers, many manufacturers, and business men. Among them are Dr. J. Knox Montgomery, president of Muskingum college; Dr. H. C. King, president of Oberlin college; Dr. John W. Hoffman, president of Ohio Wesleyan university, and State Prohibition Commissioner B. F. McDonald.

Among the speakers on the program are United States Senator William E. Borah, Idaho; General L. C. Andrews, national prohibition enforsement chieftain; District Attorney E. A. Olson, Chicago; Commander Dillard of the United States coast guard; R. H. Scott, president of the Leo Automobile company; Andrew Volstead, author of the prohibition enforcement law which bears his name, and others.

Miners' Secretary Denies Charges of Anthracite Chief

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 23.—Thomas Kennedy, secretary and treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, today sent a letter to W. W. Inglis, chairman of the Anthracite operators' Negotiating committee, in which he explained the miners' opposition to arbitration, denied the charges recently made by Inglis that only miners of the affiliated bodies of the American Federation of Labor are opposed to arbitration, and disagreed with the spokesman for the operators in his statement about wages and production.

Kennedy places most of the blame for the use of anthracite substitutes upon the operators, who, he charges, use bituminous coal in mine locomotives, urge railroads they control to use soft coal and have agencies advertise substitutes.

Kenndy declared that today coal is selling in some place for $22 per ton for chestnut size.

BISHOP FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 23.—Funeral services were to be held this afternoon for Rt. Rev. Edward M. Parker, 70, bishop of New Hampshire, who was found dead in a hotel room here yesterday:

Bishop Parker, who was attending the sessions of the Episcopal general convention, apparently had been dead since Wednesday morning, according to the coroner. Mrs. Parker was accompanying home to New Hampshire the body of William McElroy, lay delegate, when Bishop Parker died.

The body of Bishop Parker will be taken to Concord, N. H., tonight for burial.

BLOW FROM FIST KILLS BOY, 18

CANTON, Oct. 23.—George Yarick, 18 high school youth and athlete, was killed last night when struck over the heart by Horton White, 14. Yarick approached a group of younger boys and facing White said:

"Hit be in the chest as hard as you can." White at first refused, but when Yarick insisted, says he struck him with the back of his hand.

A moment later Yarick dropped dead. Coroner T. C. McQuate, after investigation, said he believed Yarick might have had an athletic heart, but will make a postmortem to fully determine the cause of death. He has exonerated young White from all blame and so have Yarick's parents.

SEEK WAR VET AS HOLD-UP MAN

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Federal authorities today sought John J. Phelan, shell-shocked ex-soldier with a police record, as one of 10 men who held up and robbed three messengers of the federal reserve bank here yesterday morning and escaped with $1,000,000 in non-negotiable checks.

Phelan was tentatively identified by Victor Flaska, one of the guards, by means of a police photograph, and his identification partly verified by his companions. Phelan was recently charged with six burglaries, but was sent to the Walter Hines ex-service men's hospital here for treatment. He was later sent to a northern sanitarium.

Bangor, Pa., Pastor Dies in Auto Wreck Near Jerusalem

JERUSALEM, Oct. 23.—Rev. Warner Lentz, aged 25, of Bangor, Pa., was killed and his three months' bride, the former Miss Perisis Schramm of Burlington, Iowa, was slightly injured when an automobile in which they were returning from the Mount of Olives overturned. A guide accompanying the party was also killed and the chauffeur was injured.

Rev. and Mrs. Lentz had intended to leave for Bagdad today with the Presbyterian Mesopotamian mission.

religion, however, to suggest that an efficient police force, refusing its share of the bootleg money, and courts of justice, operating speedily and surely, would help religion to curb crime.

Hard-headed bankers don't like to lend on churches, or theaters. They know nothing about theaters, don't consider them "a business." As for churches, they feel that nobody in particular is responsible and, anyhow, they wouldn't like to foreclose a mortgage on a church. It might bring "bad luck."

. This does not apply to a church organization well managed. The Chase National bank, of New York, has arranged to lend $1,500,000 to the Vatican, to buy a site for the new American Catholic college in Rome. The money is lent below 5 per cent and there won't be any trouble about collecting principal or interest.

It's a long way from the old Genoese bankers that used to finance the pope's enterprises, such as the building of magnificent St. Peter's, to the Chase National bank in lower Broadway in New York city. The empire of finance has come a long way west.

"Tokyo sees danger of war with Russia." That's the heading. Russians are too wise, and so probably are the Japense, to start a real war just now. But if war between white Europe and yellow Asia must come, the Russians might as well undertake it. Revolution arouses enthusiasm, and men for some reason fight well for a new government.

Russia might be glad to prove to Japan that she can't do to Bolshevik Russia what she did so easily to the Russia of czars and drunken or dishonest grand dukes.

Europe, with a face nicely washed, hair brushed, like a little boy appearing at a Sundaly school picnic, is coming for more loans, saying "I am not going to fight any more. Lend me."

There is plenty here to me borrowed. The National City Bank of New York shows deposits exceeding $800,000,000. The Chase National bank nearby has more than $450,000,000.

And as for money in the country, there is a good deal of it.

Attorney Fights Amber-red Light Traffic Regulations

AKRON, Oct. 23.—Attorney Robert Azar, of this city, claims there is no state law giving amber or a red light the power to stop him while driving in the streets. He was fined by Municipal Judge Carl Hoyt for disregarding amber signal at a downtown crossing, and now is carrying the case to common pleas court. He says he will go to the supreme court if necessary.

His appeal sets forth that it is not an offense in Ohio for him to show contempt for red lights at street corners by driving past them.

which made an extensive investigation, reporting for his reinstatement.

The commission, it is declared, expressed the opinion that the minister had been under suspension for six months which it felt was sufficient punishment. The report carried with it a reprimand for his conduct.

Recently Rev. Mr. MacEwan has been teaching in the public schools in Rankin.

Rev. Mr. MacEwan, when he first entered the ministry was a member of the Methodist Episcopal faith, having had charge of the Orchard Grove Avenue church for many years. He was transferred from East Liverpool and afterwards left the Methodist Episcopal church to become a Presbyterian. He returned to East Liverpool in 1916 and for two years was pastor of the Second Presbyterian church in East End.

Leaving here in 1918, Rev. Mr. MacEwan enlisted with the Y. M. C. A. in welfare work among the American troops. He was sent overseas, returning at the close of the war.

Bulgaria Appeals to League.

GENEVA, Oct. 23.—The secretary of the league of nations today received from Bulgaria a request that the league council immediately intervene in the Greco-Bulgarian embroglio.

"Thrice has Bulgaria invited the Greek government to appoint a mixed commission to determine the responsibilities for the outbreak and Greece has not replied," said the Bulgarian appeal. "Despite the fact that Greek troops have penetrated eight kilometres into Bulgarian territory, the Bulgarian government has ordered its troops to offer no resistance to the invaders."

League Council Meet Called.

PARIS, Oct. 23—The league of nations council was today summoned to meet in Paris at 4:30 Monday to consider Bulgaria's protest against the Greek violation of her territory.

M. Briand, French foreign minister, acting as president of the council, issued the call for the meeting after a telephone communication with Sir Eric Drummond, secretary of the league.

M. Briand sent telegrams to Greece and Bulgaria, urging that hostilities be suspended until the league of nations council has acted.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The motor and high-priced industrial stocks resumed their spectacular movement in the early trading today. With General Motors, Chrysler and Hudson, for the motors, and United States Steel and American Can, for the industrials, pushing forward aggressively, and industrial and specialty stocks advancing substantially above Thursday's closing prices, the bullish movement appeared to have been definitely resumed. Some liquidation appeared in the oil and railroad stocks in the process of "switching" to the industrials, but reactionary movements were rare.

A gain in reserves by the New York federal reserve bank sufficient to move up the ratio of reserves to deposits from 75.4 to 81.9 per cent was a satisfactory explanation of the easier tone displayed in the money market and an evidence of the strong position of the banks. Call money renewed at 4½ per cent for week-end loans. Delegates to the semi-annual meeting of the American Iron and Steel institute spoke in optimistic tones relative to the immediate future of their industry in particular and the prosperity of the country in general.

General Electric jumped 6½ points to 305½, and United States Steel resumed its place at the head of the steel stocks with a 2-point rise to 127½. United Alloys Steel was a leader in the low priced steel shares and Bethlehem rose a point to 43 on the strength of the excellent third quarterly statement submitted by President E. M. Grace.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The Karolyi case is to be fought out on the floors of congress, it appeared certain today.

Countess Karolyi, wife of the one-time president of the Hungarian Republic, has been instructed to file a new application in Paris for a passport to the United States, emphasizing that the purpose of her visit is solely to be a guest at the home of Ralph Beaver Strassburger, wealthy Norristown, Pa., Republican leader.

If Secretary of State Kellogg persists then in denying her admittance to the country, a bill is to be introduced in the next congress repealing that portion of the immigration act which reposes in the secretary of state autocratic power to bar foreign visitors.

Broken Rail Causes Train Engine to Upset; Man Hurt

WATERLOO, Iowa, Oct. 23.—A broken rail early this morning caused the engine of the fast Great Western train No. 56 to "turn turtle," derailing six coaches. Not one of the scores of passengers was even slightly injured. Engineer James Liddell sustained a minor injury to his foot. The accident happened near Hudson, seven miles from here. The train was bound from Des Moines to the Twin Cities.

Whipped by necessity during the short-production postwar years, Germans increased the efficiency of modern boiler equipment from 55-60 per cent to 65-70 per cent.

Governors of 32 States Ask Repeal of Inheritance Tax

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Governors of 32 states united today in asking congress to abolish the federal tax on inheritances, and return to the various states the right to levy such taxes for their own treasuries.

Except in emergencies, the states have an inherent right to such taxes anyway, the governors contended.

The magnitude and vigor of the drive for repeal of the death tax on big estates was distinctly surprising to the congressional framers of the new law—so much so, in fact, that several members of the committee suggested it might be well to "investigate" the interests behind it.

Representative Rainey (D.) of Illinois, one member of the committee, declared that "for months there has been an intensive and expensive educational campaign on in my district to repeal this law."

"Arguments used against this estate tax are economically unsound," said Rainey, "but they are widely disseminated. I, for one, would like to know where the money comes from to finance this campaign.

Both Chairman Green of Iowa and Representative Garner (D.) of Texas expressed surprise at the growth of the "tax clubs" in their respective states. The Texas and Iowa clubs have had a field day before the committee, urging repeal of the estate tax. Telegrams also have been received from a tax conference at Portland, Oregon, reported to have been attended by representatives of fourteen western and far western states, also urging abolition of the inheritance tax.

DEATH ROLL

Reese Funeral Services.

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret Reese, 73 years old, will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home, 520 West Ninth street. Rev. L. J. Davison, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, will have charge. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery. Friends can view the body this evening.

150 GUESTS FLEE AS HOTEL BURNS

CINCINNATI, Oct. 23.—Fire in the Hotel Newland, 27 West Seventh street, at an early hour this morning drove 150 guests from the building lightly clad. The fire, starting from crossed wires, swept from the base of the elevator shaft to the roof. For a time the building appeared to be doomed, but after an hour the flames were brought under control by the firemen. After a man taking a Turkish bath had noticed smoke coming from the elevator and given an alarm, guests began hurrying from the rooms. Just then the lights went out and the hotel guests had to find their way as best they could, aided by the firemen. Nobody was hurt.

John W. Davis Mum On Politics as he Earns His Living

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—A year ago he made twenty political speeches a day, now he doesn't even think of politics.

This was the observation today of John W. Davis, defeated Democratic nominee in 1924, when asked to comment on the political outlook. Here to plead a case before the supreme court, Davis said:

"I'm trying my best to earn an honest living. I have nothing at all to say about politics."

"Have you any advice for Democrats?" he was asked.

"None whatever," was the cryptic reply.

WOMAN KILLED BY MOTOR CAR

Philadelphia Victim Believed Sister of Judge Allen.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23.—Believed to be the sister of Supreme Court Judge Allen, of Ohio, a woman died early today at the Hahnemann hospital from injuries received shortly before midnight last night, when she was struck by an automobile.

Relatives of Judge Allen's sister, in Cleveland, learned of the accident and immediately wired Philadelphia police to see of the woman's identity could be established.

Officials at the hospital said today there was nothing on the woman's clothing to indicate the city from which she came.

Members of the Allen family telephoned police that the sister of Judge Allen had been traveling but did not know her whereabouts at the present time.

The woman was struck by an automobile driven by John A. McCaulley, of this city. He took her to the hospital where physicians said she had a fractured skull. She died without regaining consciousness.

Home Brew Accessory Staple in Hardware Trade, Says Dealer

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 23.—Home brew accessories have become a staple item in the hardware trade, Charles H. Williams, of Streator, Ill., told delegates to the American Hardware Manufacturers' association convention here.

"The home brew accessory has become as staple in our town as nails," he said, "and it has replaced our saloon accessory trade."

Roslyn, Virginia, Is Threatened by Packing Plant Fire

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The village of Roslyn, on the Virginia side of the Potomac, narrowly escaped being wiped out by a fire that destroyed a packing plant last night. Fire apparatus from the capital was rushed across the New Key bridge to aid the fire fighters of nearby Virginia towns in extinguishing the blaze. The damage was estimated today at $300,000.

Two Naval Airmen Killed When Plane Crashes to Ground

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Two naval aviators, Sidney N. Smith of Norfolk, and Albert M. Summey, of Barberton, O., were killed yesterday at Guantanamo, Cuba, when their plane crashed during maneuvers.

The bodies will be sent back to the United States for burial, the navy department was advised today.

INHERITS TITLE, STAYS ON RANCH

Winnipeg.—The call of the great open spaces is a very real thing to some men. It is to Baron Cheylesmore, third of his line. And thus it is that Western Canada can add another to the list of its titled landowners. This English peer, who recently came into possession of his inheritance, is Francis Ormand Henry Eaton, D. S. O., who succeeds to the peerage as the fourth Lord Cheylesmore.

Happy Valley Ranch.

As Captain Eaton, he arrived in Alberta four years ago and acquired part of the Haunted Lakes ranch near Alix, Alberta, which he has since renamed the Happy Valley ranch. A few weeks ago he succeeded to the title, but the now seasoned Alberta farmer has expressed his intention of continuing his residence on the prairies, rather than return to the old land. He was busy all last month with the harvest on his estate.

Lord Cheylesmore was born June 10, 1893, educated at Eton, Trinity college and Cambridge university. He was a second lieutenant when the war broke out in 1914, having received a military training at Sandhurst. He joined the Grenadier Guards with the British Expeditionary force in Flanders and France in June, 1915, and served with his regiment throughout the war. He was awarded the D. S. O. for conspicuous gallantry at the third battle of Ypres, in July, 1917, and was also promoted, in the field to the rank of captain. He always intended to settle down in some part of the British dominions and he selected western Canada after a year's residence in Alberta.

English Estate.

His English estate does not include any landed property or country seat. It consists largely of city real estate, situated in London, and in such industrial sites as Coventry.

Lord Cheylesmore was a well known rugby football player and track athlete in his Eton and Cambridge days. He is a devoted outdoor sportsman and plays a good game of polo. He says he is not returning to England, but will make his home on his beautiful Alberta holdings. He belongs to the Guards, Whites and Turf clubs in London.

Lord Cheylesmore's tragic death in a motor accident recently found his son in the midst of summer's work. His presence was not required in London and he sent his solicitor to look after the necessary business connected with winding up of the estate.

Haskin's Letter

invading the province of the states, insofar as motor taxes are needed for road improvement and maintenance the state is the agency to collect them.

The repair parts tax is a tax on misfortune, penalizing a man at a time of unexpected expense.

The war is over. The automobile has paid seven years of special war excise taxes. The surplus in the federal treasury permits elimination. All the federal motor taxes should be taken off at once.

This platform is the expression of sentiment of motor clubs throughout the United States, according to President Henry, and every effort will be made to convince congress that it is reasonable and sound.

It is estimated that the average tax which the purchaser of an automobile pays to the federal government amounts to $29. On a car that wholesales for $400 it would be $20 and such a car would retail at about $500.

"The man who expects to buy a car sometime soon," says the head of the motorists' big organization, "who is buying parts or tires, and who thinks he can use that $29, can accomplish a good deal by calling on his congressman, or writing to him, letting him know how the folks at home feel about it. Congress today is attentive. Its members want to know the public will."

RHEUMATISM

But rheumatism will bring pain and misery to your joints and muscles just as long as you are without plenty of rich, red blood in your system.

It's the red-blood-cells that S. S. S. helps Nature build that drive out of your system the impurities that cause rheumatism. And until you do build up your blood to where it is pure and rich and red, you simply can't get rid of rheumatism.

S. S. S. means millions of red-blood-cells—means health all over. No more rheumatism. Nights of rest—days of joy, filled with the happiness of accomplishment — made possible by a body brimful of red blooded life, energy and vitality.

That's what the end of rheumatism means—that's what S. S. S. brings to you. Get S. S. S. from your druggist. The larger bottle is more economical.

Bombing Plane With Many U. S. Features Acquired by Britain

LONDON — A wonderful new bombing airplane embodying many United States airplane features is to be added to the British air force squadrons.

It is driven by an American D. 12 engine, and in many ways resembles the old type of Fairey aeroplanes, with which are incorporated certain American ideas which have been evolved from the high speed Curtis racers.

It is claimed that the machine is by far the fastest bombing aeroplane in the world, in fact, it is faster than many two-seater planes possessed by the British air forces. The machine has been built by the Fairey company, without interference from the British air ministry.

Never Heard of Coolidge.

BOSTON—Here's a man who never heard of Calvin Coolidge. James Elliott was brought to the United States marshal's office on a charge of selling drugs.

"Do you know who Calvin Coolidge is?" queried Special Deputy Marshal James A. Tighe. "Calvin Coolidge, Calvin Coolidge," muttered Elliott, racking his brain. "I don't recollect ever having heard the gentleman's name."

TWO DELEGATES TO DRY MEET

East Liverpool Men to Attend Chicago Conference.

Rev. Dr. Frank G. Fowler, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church and Frank Crook, retail furniture dealer, are among the 36 delegates from Ohio, named by Governor A. V. Donahey to attend the national enforcement conference, which will be held in Chicago, November 5-9, under the auspices of the Anti-Saloon League of America.

Various phases of bringing about a better enforcement of the liquor laws, national, state nad local, will be discussed.

The Ohio delegation includes three college presidents, eight ministers, many manufacturers, and business men. Among them are Dr. J. Knox Montgomery, president of Muskingum college; Dr. H. C. King, president of Oberlin college; Dr. John W. Hoffman, president of Ohio Wesleyan university, and State Prohibition Commissioner B. F. McDonald.

Among the speakers on the program are United States Senator William E. Borah, Idaho; General L. C. Andrews, national prohibition enforsement chieftain; District Attorney E. A. Olson, Chicago; Commander Dillard of the United States coast guard; R. H. Scott, president of the Geo Automobile company; Andrew Volstead, author of the prohibition enforcement law which bears his name, and others.

Miners' Secretary Denies Charges of Anthracite Chief

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 23.—Thomas Kennedy, secretary and treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, today sent a letter to W. W. Inglis, chairman of the Anthracite operators' Negotiating committee, in which he explained the miners' opposition to arbitration, denied the charges recently made by Inglis that only miners of the affiliated bodies of the American Federation of Labor are opposed to arbitration, and disagreed with the spokesman for the operators in his statement about wages and production.

Kennedy places most of the blame for the use of anthracite substitutes upon the operators, who, he charges, use bituminous coal in mine locomotives, urge railroads they control to use soft coal and have agencies advertise substitutes.

Kenndy declared that today coal is selling in some place for $22 per ton for chestnut size.

BISHOP FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 23.—Funeral services were to be held this afternoon for Rt. Rev. Edward M. Parker, 70, bishop of New Hampshire, who was found dead in a hotel room here yesterday:

Bishop Parker, who was attending the sessions of the Episcopal general convention, apparently had been dead since Wednesday morning, according to the coroner. Mrs. Parker was accompanying home to New Hampshire the body of William McElroy, lay delegate, when Bishop Parker died.

The body of Bishop Parker will be taken to Concord, N. H., tonight for burial.

BLOW FROM FIST KILLS BOY, 18

CANTON, Oct. 23.—George Yarick, 18 high school youth and athlete, was killed last night when struck over the heart by Horton White, 14. Yarick approached a group of younger boys and facing White said:

"Hit be in the chest as hard as you can." White at first refused, but when Yarick insisted, says he struck him with the back of his hand.

A moment later Yarick dropped dead. Coroner T. C. McQuate, after investigation, said he believed Yarick might have had an athletic heart, but will make a postmortem to fully determine the cause of death. He has exonerated young White from all blame and so have Yarick's parents.

SEEK WAR VET AS HOLD-UP MAN

CHICAGO, Oct. 23.—Federal authorities today sought John J. Phelan, shell-shocked ex-soldier with a police record, as one of 10 men who held up and robbed three messengers of the federal reserve bank here yesterday morning and escaped with $1,000,000 in non-negotiable checks.

Phelan was tentatively identified by Victor Flaska, one of the guards, by means of a police photograph, and his identification partly verified by his companions. Phelan was recently charged with six burglaries, but was sent to the Walter Hines ex-service men's hospital here for treatment. He was later sent to a northern sanitarium.

Bangor, Pa., Pastor Dies in Auto Wreck Near Jerusalem

JERUSALEM, Oct. 23.—Rev. Warner Lentz, aged 25, of Bangor, Pa., was killed and his three months' bride, the former Miss Perisis Schramm of Burlington, Iowa, was slightly injured when an automobile in which they were returning from the Mount of Olives overturned. A guide accompanying the party was also killed and the chauffeur was injured.

Rev. and Mrs. Lentz had intended to leave for Bagdad today with the Presbyterian Mesopotamian mission.

religion, however, to suggest that an efficient police force, refusing its share of the bootleg money, and courts of justice, operating speedily and surely, would help religion to curb crime.

Hard-headed bankers don't like to lend on churches, or theaters. They know nothing about theaters, don't consider them "a business." As for churches, they feel that nobody in particular is responsible and, anyhow, they wouldn't like to foreclose a mortgage on a church. It might bring "bad luck."

This does not apply to a church organization well managed. The Chase National bank, of New York, has arranged to lend $1,500,000 to the Vatican, to buy a site for the new American Catholic college in Rome. The money is lent below 5 per cent and there won't be any trouble about collecting principal or interest.

It's a long way from the old Genoese bankers that used to finance the pope's enterprises, such as the building of magnificent St. Peter's, to the Chase National bank in lower Broadway in New York city. The empire of finance has come a long way west.

"Tokyo sees danger of war with Russia." That's the heading. Russians are too wise, and so probably are the Japense, to start a real war just now. But if war between white Europe and yellow Asia must come, the Russians might as well undertake it. Revolution arouses enthusiasm, and men for some reason fight well for a new government.

Russia might be glad to prove to Japan that she can't do to Bolshevik Russia what she did so easily to the Russia of czars and drunken or dishonest grand dukes.

Europe, with a face nicely washed, hair brushed, like a little boy appearing at a Sundaly school picnic, is coming for more loans, saying "I am not going to fight any more. Lend me."

There is plenty here to me borrowed. The National City Bank of New York shows deposits exceeding $800,000,000. The Chase National bank nearby has more than $450,000,000.

And as for money in the country, there is a good deal of it.

Attorney Fights Amber-red Light Traffic Regulations

AKRON, Oct. 23.—Attorney Robert Azar, of this city, claims there is no state law giving amber or a red light the power to stop him while driving in the streets. He was fined by Municipal Judge Carl Hoyt for disregarding amber signal at a downtown crossing, and now is carrying the case to common pleas court. He says he will go to the supreme court if necessary.

His appeal sets forth that it is not an offense in Ohio for him to show contempt for red lights at street corners by driving past them.

Pastor Re-Married

which made an extensive investigation, reporting for his reinstatement.

The commission, it is declared, expressed the opinion that the minister had been under suspension for six months which it felt was sufficient punishment. The report carried with it a reprimand for his conduct.

Recently Rev. Mr. MacEwan has been teaching in the public schools in Rankin.

Rev. Mr. MacEwan, when he first entered the ministry was a member of the Methodist Episcopal faith, having had charge of the Orchard Grove Avenue church for many years. He was transferred from East Liverpool and afterwards left the Methodist Episcopal church to become a Presbyterian. He returned to East Liverpool in 1916 and for two years was pastor of the Second Presbyterian church in East End.

Leaving here in 1918, Rev. Mr. MacEwan enlisted with the Y. M. C. A. in welfare work among the American troops. He was sent overseas, returning at the close of the war.

Bulgaria Appeals to League.

GENEVA, Oct. 23.—The secretary of the league of nations today received from Bulgaria a request that the league council immediately intervene in the Greco-Bulgarian embroglio.

"Thrice has Bulgaria invited the Greek government to appoint a mixed commission to determine the responsibilities for the outbreak and Greece has not replied," said the Bulgarian appeal. "Despite the fact that Greek troops have penetrated eight kilometres into Bulgarian territory, the Bulgarian government has ordered its troops to offer no resistance to the invaders."

League Council Meet Called.

PARIS, Oct. 23—The league of nations council was today summoned to meet in Paris at 4:30 Monday to consider Bulgaria's protest against the Greek violation of her territory.

M. Briand, French foreign minister, acting as president of the council, issued the call for the meeting after a telephone communication with Sir Eric Drummond, secretary of the league.

M. Briand sent telegrams to Greece and Bulgaria, urging that hostilities be suspended until the league of nations council has acted.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—The motor and high-priced industrial stocks resumed their spectacular movement in the early trading today. With General Motors, Chrysler and Hudson, for the motors, and United States Steel and American Can, for the industrials, pushing forward aggressively, and industrial and specialty stocks advancing substantially above Thursday's closing prices, the bullish movement appeared to have been definitely resumed. Some liquidation appeared in the oil and railroad stocks in the process of "switching" to the industrials, but reactionary movements were rare.

A gain in reserves by the New York federal reserve bank sufficient to move up the ratio of reserves to deposits from 75.4 to 81.9 per cent was a satisfactory explanation of the easier tone displayed in the money market and an evidence of the strong position of the banks. Call money renewed at 4½ per cent for week-end loans. Delegates to the semi-annual meeting of the American Iron and Steel institute spoke in optimistic tones relative to the immediate future of their industry in particular and the prosperity of the country in general.

General Electric jumped 6½ points to 305½, and United States Steel resumed its place at the head of the steel stocks with a 2-point rise to 127½. United Alloys Steel was a leader in the low priced steel shares and Bethlehem rose a point to 43 on the strength of the excellent third quarterly statement submitted by President E. M. Grace.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The Karolyi case is to be fought out on the floors of congress, it appeared certain today.

Countess Karolyi, wife of the one-time president of the Hungarian Republic, has been instructed to file a new application in Paris for a passport to the United States, emphasizing that the purpose of her visit is solely to be a guest at the home of Ralph Beaver Strassburger, wealthy Norristown, Pa., Republican leader.

If Secretary of State Kellogg persists then in denying her admittance to the country, a bill is to be introduced in the next congress repealing that portion of the immigration act which reposes in the secretary of state autocratic power to bar foreign visitors.

Broken Rail Causes Train Engine to Upset; Man Hurt

WATERLOO, Iowa, Oct. 23.—A broken rail early this morning caused the engine of the fast Great Western train No. 56 to "turn turtle," derailing six coaches. Not one of the scores of passengers was even slightly injured. Engineer James Liddell sustained a minor injury to his foot. The accident happened near Hudson, seven miles from here. The train was bound from Des Moines to the Twin Cities.

Whipped by necessity during the short-production postwar years, Germans increased the efficiency of modern boiler equipment from 55-60 per cent to 65-70 per cent.

Governors of 32 States Ask Repeal of Inheritance Tax

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Governors of 32 states united today in asking congress to abolish the federal tax on inheritances, and return to the various states the right to levy such taxes for their own treasuries.

Except in emergencies, the states have an inherent right to such taxes anyway, the governors contended.

The magnitude and vigor of the drive for repeal of the death tax on big estates was distinctly surprising to the congressional framers of the new law—so much so, in fact, that several members of the committee suggested it might be well to "investigate" the interests behind it.

Representative Rainey (D.) of Illinois, one member of the committee, declared that "for months there has been an intensive and expensive educational campaign on in my district to repeal this law."

"Arguments used against this estate tax are economically unsound," said Rainey, "but they are widely disseminated. I, for one, would like to know where the money comes from to finance this campaign.

Both Chairman Green of Iowa and Representative Garner (D.) of Texas expressed surprise at the growth of the "tax clubs" in their respective states. The Texas and Iowa clubs have had a field day before the committee, urging repeal of the estate tax. Telegrams also have been received from a tax conference at Portland, Oregon, reported to have been attended by representatives of fourteen western and far western states, also urging abolition of the inheritance tax.

DEATH ROLL

Reese Funeral Services.

Funeral services for Mrs. Margaret Reese, 73 years old, will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the home, 520 West Ninth street. Rev. L. J. Davison, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, will have charge. Burial will be made in Riverview cemetery. Friends can view the body this evening.

150 GUESTS FLEE AS HOTEL BURNS

CINCINNATI, Oct. 23.—Fire in the Hotel Newland, 27 West Seventh street, at an early hour this morning drove 150 guests from the building lightly clad. The fire, starting from crossed wires, swept from the base of the elevator shaft to the roof. For a time the building appeared to be doomed, but after an hour the flames were brought under control by the firemen. After a man taking a Turkish bath had noticed smoke coming from the elevator and given an alarm, guests began hurrying from the rooms. Just then the lights went out and the hotel guests had to find their way as best they could, aided by the firemen. Nobody was hurt.

John W. Davis Mum On Politics as he Earns His Living

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—A year ago he made twenty political speeches a day, now he doesn't even think of politics.

This was the observation today of John W. Davis, defeated Democratic nominee in 1924, when asked to comment on the political outlook. Here to plead a case before the supreme court, Davis said:

"I'm trying my best to earn an honest living. I have nothing at all to say about politics."

"Have you any advice for Democrats?" he was asked.

"None whatever," was the cryptic reply.

WOMAN KILLED BY MOTOR CAR

Philadelphia Victim Believed Sister of Judge Allen.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 23.—Believed to be the sister of Supreme Court Judge Allen, of Ohio, a woman died early today at the Hahnemann hospital from injuries received shortly before midnight last night, when she was struck by an automobile.

Relatives of Judge Allen's sister, in Cleveland, learned of the accident and immediately wired Philadelphia police to see of the woman's identity could be established.

Officials at the hospital said today there was nothing on the woman's clothing to indicate the city from which she came.

Members of the Allen family telephoned police that the sister of Judge Allen had been traveling but did not know her whereabouts at the present time.

The woman was struck by an automobile driven by John A. McCaulley, of this city. He took her to the hospital where physicians said she had a fractured skull. She died without regaining consciousness.

Home Brew Accessory Staple in Hardware Trade, Says Dealer

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 23.—Home brew accessories have become a staple item in the hardware trade, Charles H. Williams, of Streator, Ill., told delegates to the American Hardware Manufacturers' association convention here.

"The home brew accessory has become as staple in our town as nails," he said, "and it has replaced our saloon accessory trade."

Roslyn, Virginia, Is Threatened by Packing Plant Fire

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The village of Roslyn, on the Virginia side of the Potomac, narrowly escaped being wiped out by a fire that destroyed a packing plant last night. Fire apparatus from the capital was rushed across the New Key bridge to aid the fire fighters of nearby Virginia towns in extinguishing the blaze. The damage was estimated today at $300,000.

Two Naval Airmen Killed When Plane Crashes to Ground

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—Two naval aviators, Sidney N. Smith of Norfolk, and Albert M. Summey, of Barberton, O., were killed yesterday at Guantanamo, Cuba, when their plane crashed during maneuvers.

The bodies will be sent back to the United States for burial, the navy department was advised today.

WAR VETERANS' BUREAU HELPS DISABLED MEN

Report Shows Notable Progress Made During Year.

CLAIMS SETTLED

New Rating Schedule Evolved; Ready to Operate.

INDIANAPOLIS — The United States Veterans' Bureau has made notable progress during the last year in caring for disabled World war veterans and their dependents, according to the annual report of the national rehabilitation committee of the American Legion.

The report, made public in part today, will be submitted to the legion's national convention at Omaha, Neb. It lists numerous improvements in bureau work for the year, including decentralization of the veterans' bureau, creation of a guardianship service and diagnostic centres, working out of a new rating schedule, a review of all old claims and a new attitude of helpfulness toward the former service man.

"By decentralizing the bureau, action now is taken on claims and ratings in the field, in contact with the claimant," the committee's report states. "This has very materially reduced the number of appeals, so that only a normal load of 918 cases were pending in the central office on June 30, compared with 2,000 a year ago.

"The guardianship service was created in May, to protect the interests of mentally incompetent veterans, aged and incompetent parents and widows and minor children, many of them orphans. This action was taken following disclosures that a number of guardians were misapplying funds. There are 31,000 bureau beneficiaries under guardianship.

"Two diagnostic centers have been established, where baffling cases which have defied diagnosis are sent for observation by specialists and for prescription of proper treatment. A third at or near San Francisco is being considered.

"A new rating schedule has been evolved and will soon be in operation. This schedule, which will take into account a veteran's pre-war occupation in rating his claim, is a great constructive task involving much pioneer work."

Irregular Attendance at Schools Causes Big Waste

Washington—Irregular attendance in the schools throughout the United States caused the waste of approximately $250,000,000 last year, according to an estimate made by the Department of the Interior through the bureau of education.

A study conducted by this bureau of 72,120 country children in 70 counties of 10 states indicates the median number of days of actual attendance of these children was 141.7 days. Half of the children attended school less than seven and one-half months, over one-fourth of the children attended considerably less than five months, and over one-eighth of them attended less than three months. Attendance in consolidated schools was slightly better than in one-teacher schools.

The median daily attendance, 79 and 60 per cent, respectively, was higher in schools providing nine-month terms for their pupils than in those providing seven-month terms, thereby indicating that longer terms usually mean better daily attendance. Pupils with less than 130 days of schooling averaged one and one-half years below grade in reading and spelling ability.

Other studies show poorer attendance among younger than older children. Many people expect this since the older children are more likely to attend school during bad weather. A more probable factor, no doubt, is the erroneous attitude of parents in considering it less serious for the younger children than for the older children to miss school. Trivial excuses such as "went to town," "ran an errand," "got up too late," "had shoes repaired," etc., are worse than none. Closer cooperation between the teacher and the parent should result in better attendance.

The bureau of education in connection with the estimate of waste stated that the effectiveness of a school system depends on the regularity of attendance of the pupils enrolled as well as on such factors as the quality of instruction and the length of school term.

Another Musical Comedy is Booked At Strand Theatre

Another rollicking fun show, "Somewhere in France," Billy Maine's latest offering with musical numbers, comedians and dancing girls and built upon a solid frame work of laughs, will appear at the Stand theatre next week.

There is a plot altho it is not heavy enough to give one trouble in following it. The principals, aided and abetted by the chorus, make the most of every line and situation. The costumes are more numerous and beautiful than those carried by the usual run of attractions of this kind. Billy Maine, the boob doughboy, programmed as "Private Goldbrick," is a riot of fun and the audience is kept in a continual roar at his serious mistakes. He has staged a piece well out of the beaten path of the casual revue in that the locale and the story concerns boys across the pond. It is filled with all kinds of musical comedy diversion. There is enough fun injected in the piece to put it over to a hit anywhere.

Billy Maine is a likeable and attentive type of juvenile comedian in the sensation start of the piece, with a ripe and clever characterization and with lots of original method in his fun making.

"Somewhere in France' gets out of the class of the conventional musical play by having a really true military atmosphere about it, and the settings and plot preserve this idea. It is a clean, wholesome and breezy production styled an "overseas revue." There is not one line, or word or action that is the least bit shady in the entire show.

Omaha, Neb.—American man is probably the best-dressed male. This is the opinion of Charles F. Wetzel of New York, president of the National Association of Merchant Tailors. The top hat and cutaway coat for formal afternoon wear and full dress for evening wear will soon regain the place they occupied in the American social life of a decade ago, Wetzel declared. Mr. Wetzel is on a tour of the country, studying conditions in the tailoring industry.

World Search Made For Ancient Valuables Taken From Monastery

VIENNA — A world search is being conducted by the Vienna police for ancient and valuable manuscripts and miniatures said to have been stolen from the monastery of Salzburg in July.

The police of all the world capitals have been asked to institute inquiries.

Apparently the person who stole the documents was a most discriminating thief, cutting out from the volumes in the monastery all the ornate initials from the valuable works. Inferior matter was ignored.

Folios dealing with the Acension of Christ and other religious subjects were extracted, and from the pages of a particularly ancient volume the thief cut out a number of folios upon which miniatures were engraved.

PRETTY SMART SET GIRL WINS PRINCE OLAF

New York Hostess Fails to Land Norse Son-in-law.

ATTENDS OXFORD

LONDON—Rumors are current that the announcement of the engagement of Prince Olaf of Norway to a girl prominent in London society is imminent. Prince Olaf has just returned to London enroute to Oxford to complete his university career.

The announcement is expected to cause considerable heart-burning to a certain New York hostess who has been doing much entertaining in London on behalf of her daughter.

Prince Olaf was a frequent guest at her parties last winter and she was unwise enough to confide her ambitions to one or two acquaintances, and the story of her unfortunate failure is now going the rounds.

Grace Vanderbilt's "But."

Several men in London are disappointed over the announcement of the engagement of Miss Grace Vanderbilt to Prince Dietrichstein of Austria.

Her hand was asked in marriage by at least half a dozen members of the British aristocracy, but they were all told that she "did not feel like marrying at present, but—"

Big French dress houses with establishments in London are frantic at the delays to which their new autumn and winter frocks are being subjected by the British customs, owing to the silk duties imposed by the Churchill budget.

Considerable congestion exists at the channel ports, and everything must take its turn. So the exclusive creations can claim no precedence over silk stockings and unworked materials being sent over by continental manufacturers.

The Duchess of Roxburghe, nee Goelet, of Newport and New York, solved her own little problem with the customs in her own way. She was returning from Paris recently with $3,000 worth of dresses, most of which were of silk. The customs impounded them, stating that they would be sent on when they had been valued and the duty decided upon.

The duchess was due at a season opening ball being given by Mrs. Arthur Wales, of Washington, that night and she had set her heart on wearing one of the new purchases.

Customs officers were adamant, but the duchess finally persuaded them to let her take the frock, provided it was rushed back by motor from London the next day to take its place in bond Whether she used tears or smiles ye remains to be told.

Bombing Plane With Many U. S. Features Acquired by Britain

LONDON — A wonderful new bombing airplane embodying many United States airplane features is to be added to the British air force squadrons.

It is driven by an American D. 12 engine, and in many ways resembles the old type of Fairey aeroplanes, with which are incorporated certain American ideas which have been evolved from the high speed Curtis racers.

It is claimed that the machine is by far the fastest bombing aeroplane in the world, in fact, it is faster than many two-seater planes possessed by the British air forces. The machine has been built by the Fairey company, without interference from the British air ministry.

Never Heard of Coolidge.

BOSTON—Here's a man who never heard of Calvin Coolidge. James Elliott was brought to the United States marshal's office on a charge of selling drugs.

"Do you know who Calvin Coolidge is?" queried Special Deputy Marshal James A. Tighe. "Calvin Coolidge, Calvin Coolidge," muttered Elliott, racking his brain. "I don't recollect ever having heard the gentleman's name."

RETURNS FROM SYNOD SESSION

Rev. W. T. McKee Back From Church Meet at Wellsburg.

Rev. W. T. McKee, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, has returned from Wellsburg where he attended the session of the West Virginia synod and Missionary society of the Presbyterian church. He was moderator of the synod last year and was succeeded this year by Rev. S. M. Gibson of Wheeling.

Rev. McKee submitted a report on bills and overtures at the closing session of the synod. John A. Shaw of Toledo submitted the annual report on nominations.

"Program and Field Activities" was the subject of an interesting and detailed report delivered before the synod by Charles Keesor, M. D., of Wheeling. A report of the committee on national missions by Rev. J. M. Potter, pastor of Vance Memorial Presbyterian church of Wheeling, brought the session of the synod to a close yesterday afternoon.

Parkersburg was selected as the next meeting place for both the synod and Missionary society. The latter organization at its final session re-elected the present officers.

PARENT-TEACHERS TO MEET MONDAY

Parent-Teachers association will meet Monday evening in the Central school building. The program will be in charge of E. M. Skinner who will give a demonstration in eighth grade arithmetic. Plans will be made at this session to put the school savings system into effect. A representative of the First National bank will be present and explain details.

CHESTER FACING HARD CONTEST

Chester high school football team is scheduled to meet Toronto tomorrow afternoon at the latter place. The locals have been holding practice sessions during the week and the same lineup that took part in the Wellsville game will probably face Toronto. The team will be accompanied by a large delegation of rooters.

Chester will play Salineville instead of Midland on Saturday, October 31.

DISTRICT RALLY HERE TONIGHT

Representatives of every church are expected to attend the Grant district Sunday school rally to be held this evening in the First Christian church. Rev. W. S. Hamilton, pastor of the New Cumberland Methodist Protestant church, will deliver the principal address.

Hancock county convention will be held in the First Presbyterian church here on Thursday and Friday, November 5-6. The committee in charge is arranging the program.

OFFICERS NAMED AT LODGE MEET

The election of Sir S. Raymond Snyder of Chambersburg, Pa., to the post of supreme commander and the selection of Trenton, N. J., as the site for the 1926 supreme conclave and convention were the high spots of the last session of the 42nd annual gathering of the Knights of Malta, held in the Wheeling Malta temple during the past four days. The convention adjourned late yesterday afternoon and a majority of the visitors left for their homes immediately.

WEIRTON BOY IS STRUCK BY AUTO

Anthony Kolanko, aged 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kolanko, Weirton, was seriously injured early last evening when struck by an automobile in Weirton. The lad is in the Ohio Valley hospital at Steubenville while Weirton police are endeavoring to establish the identity of the driver of the car which struck him.

The boy was crossing the street when struck by the machine, said to have been going at a high rate of speed. The driver did not stop and pedestrians rushed to the assistance of the boy. X-ray pictures were taken and will be read today to determine whether or not his skull is fractured.

FEDERAL JUDGE MAKES RULING

State and city officers were given the stamp of approval by Federal Judge W. E. Baker, who, in ruling on the validity of the Roy Morris case of Weirton, decided that arrests may be made by either state or city officers, who in turn, may bring their cases into the federal court for trial.

The court, however, issued a warning to all federal officers that they cannot raid homes without first securing a proper warrant with which to do so, and that they also must have proof that violations exist before they make the raids.

His first ruling, however, means that federal and state officers working together may make a raid and that the state and city officers can bring the defendant into the federal court, where they can appear against them as witnesses and secure conviction in the event that the evidence is sufficient.

The case in question was one in which Senator Ollie Marshall had appeared for Roy Morrison of Weirton, his place having been searched upon a John Doe warrant by federal and state officers.

Senator Marshall cited the ruling of the supreme court in the Angello case and stated that it was improper to make arrests without having a proper warrant, claiming that the John Doe warrant was not proper. The ruling of the court, however, is proof that the John Doe warrant is good where used by state officers.

WAR VETERANS' BUREAU HELPS DISABLED MEN

Report Shows Notable Progress Made During Year.

CLAIMS SETTLED

New Rating Schedule Evolved; Ready to Operate.

INDIANAPOLIS — The United States Veterans' Bureau has made notable progress during the last year in caring for disabled World war veterans and their dependents, according to the annual report of the national rehabilitation committee of the American Legion.

The report, made public in part today, will be submitted to the legion's national convention at Omaha, Neb. It lists numerous improvements in bureau work for the year, including decentralization of the veterans' bureau, creation of a guardianship service and diagnostic centres, working out of a new rating schedule, a review of all old claims and a new attitude of helpfulness toward the former service man.

"By decentralizing the bureau, action now is taken on claims and ratings in the field, in contact with the claimant," the committee's report states. "This has very materially reduced the number of appeals, so that only a normal load of 918 cases were pending in the central office on June 30, compared with 2,000 a year ago.

"The guardianship service was created in May, to protect the interests of mentally incompetent veterans, aged and incompetent parents and widows and minor children, many of them orphans. This action was taken following disclosures that a number of guardians were misapplying funds. There are 31,000 bureau beneficiaries under guardianship.

"Two diagnostic centers have been established, where baffling cases which have defied diagnosis are sent for observation by specialists and for prescription of proper treatment. A third at or near San Francisco is being considered.

"A new rating schedule has been evolved and will soon be in operation. This schedule, which will take into account a veteran's pre-war occupation in rating his claim, is a great constructive task involving much pioneer work."

Irregular Attendance at Schools Causes Big Waste

Washington—Irregular attendance in the schools throughout the United States caused the waste of approximately $250,000,000 last year, according to an estimate made by the Department of the Interior through the bureau of education.

A study conducted by this bureau of 72,120 country children in 70 counties of 10 states indicates the median number of days of actual attendance of these children was 141.7 days. Half of the children attended school less than seven and one-half months, over one-fourth of the children attended considerably less than five months, and over one-eighth of them attended less than three months. Attendance in consolidated schools was slightly better than in one-teacher schools.

The median daily attendance, 79 and 60 per cent, respectively, was higher in schools providing nine-month terms for their pupils than in those providing seven-month terms, thereby indicating that longer terms usually mean better daily attendance. Pupils with less than 130 days of schooling averaged one and one-half years below grade in reading and spelling ability.

Other studies show poorer attendance among younger than older children. Many people expect this since the older children are more likely to attend school during bad weather. A more probable factor, no doubt, is the erroneous attitude of parents in considering it less serious for the younger children than for the older children to miss school. Trivial excuses such as "went to town," "ran an errand," "got up too late," "had shoes repaired," etc., are worse than none. Closer cooperation between the teacher and the parent should result in better attendance.

The bureau of education in connection with the estimate of waste stated that the effectiveness of a school system depends on the regularity of attendance of the pupils enrolled as well as on such factors as the quality of instruction and the length of school term.

Another Musical Comedy is Booked At Strand Theatre

Another rollicking fun show, "Somewhere in France," Billy Maine's latest offering with musical numbers, comedians and dancing girls and built upon a solid frame work of laughs, will appear at the Stand theatre next week.

There is a plot altho it is not heavy enough to give one trouble in following it. The principals, aided and abetted by the chorus, make the most of every line and situation. The costumes are more numerous and beautiful than those carried by the usual run of attractions of this kind. Billy Maine, the boob doughboy, programmed as "Private Goldbrick,' is a riot of fun and the audience is kept in a continual roar at his serious mistakes. He has staged a piece well out of the beaten path of the casual revue in that the locale and the story concerns boys across the pond. It is filled with all kinds of musical comedy diversion. There is enough fun injected in the piece to put it over to a hit anywhere.

Billy Maine is a likeable and attentive type of juvenile comedian in the sensation start of the piece, with a ripe and clever characterization and with lots of original method in his fun making.

"Somewhere in France' gets out of the class of the conventional musical play by having a really true military atmosphere about it, and the settings and plot preserve this idea. It is a clean, wholesome and breezy production styled an "overseas revue." There is not one line, or word or action that is the least bit shady in the entire show.

Omaha, Neb.—American man is probably the best-dressed male. This is the opinion of Charles F. Wetzel of New York, president of the National Association of Merchant Tailors. The top hat and cutaway coat for formal afternoon wear and full dress for evening wear will soon regain the place they occupied in the American social life of a decade ago, Wetzel declared. Mr. Wetzel is on a tour of the country, studying conditions in the tailoring industry.

World Search Made For Ancient Valuables Taken From Monastery

VIENNA — A world search is being conducted by the Vienna police for ancient and valuable manuscripts and miniatures said to have been stolen from the monastery of Salzburg in July.

The police of all the world capitals have been asked to institute inquiries.

Apparently the person who stole the documents was a most discriminating thief, cutting out from the volumes in the monastery all the ornate initials from the valuable works. Inferior matter was ignored.

Folios dealing with the Acension of Christ and other religious subjects were extracted, and from the pages of a particularly ancient volume the thief cut out a number of folios upon which miniatures were engraved.

PRETTY SMART SET GIRL WINS PRINCE OLAF

New York Hostess Fails to Land Norse Son-in-law.

ATTENDS OXFORD

Half Dozen Britishers Sought Hand of Grace Vanderbilt.

LONDON—Rumors are current that the announcement of the engagement of Prince Olaf of Norway to a girl prominent in London society is imminent. Prince Olaf has just returned to London enroute to Oxford to complete his university career.

The announcement is expected to cause considerable heart-burning to a certain New York hostess who has been doing much entertaining in London on behalf of her daughter.

Prince Olaf was a frequent guest at her parties last winter and she was unwise enough to confide her ambitions to one or two acquaintances, and the story of her unfortunate failure is now going the rounds.

Grace Vanderbilt's "But."

Several men in London are disappointed over the announcement of the engagement of Miss Grace Vanderbilt to Prince Dietrichstein of Austria.

Her hand was asked in marriage by at least half a dozen members of the British aristocracy, but they were all told that she "did not feel like marrying at present, but—"

Big French dress houses with establishments in London are frantic at the delays to which their new autumn and winter frocks are being subjected by the British customs, owing to the silk duties imposed by the Churchill budget.

Considerable congestion exists at the channel ports, and everything must take its turn. So the exclusive creations can claim no precedence over silk stockings and unworked materials being sent over by continental manufacturers.

The Duchess of Roxburghe, nee Goelet, of Newport and New York, solved her own little problem with the customs in her own way. She was returning from Paris recently with $3,000 worth of dresses, most of which were of silk. The customs impounded them, stating that they would be sent on when they had been valued and the duty decided upon.

The duchess was due at a season opening ball being given by Mrs. Arthur Wales, of Washington, that night and she had set her heart on wearing one of the new purchases.

Customs officers were adamant, but the duchess finally persuaded them to let her take the frock, provided it was rushed back by motor from London the next day to take its place in bond. Whether she used tears or smiles remains to be told.

SUES CITY FOR FEE OF $300

Attorney Boyd Files Action in Justice's Court.

An action to recover $300, attorney's fee, against the city of Wellsville, was filed in the court of Justice John Riley, Main street, yesterday afternoon by Attorney Charles Boyd, fromer city solicitor and aid to ex-Solicitor George D. Ingram during the street car fare controversy.

Mayor Barnes was served with a subpoena yesterday afternoon. The case is scheduled to be heard before Justice Riley on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, October 27.

In a bill submitted to city council recently Attorney Boyd asked a fee of $500 for services he rendered the city in not only the car fare case but the Davidson case, the latter ending in the state supreme court.

The bill was returned to council at Tuesday's meeting because of the lack of funds with which to pay it.

Attorney Boyd's action against the city, however, was for only $300, instead of $500.

REV. ZACKMAN HOLDS REVIVAL

Revival meetings are still in progress in the First Evangelical church here, in charge of Rev. E. L. Zackman, pastor.

He delivered a sermon at last night's services on the subject, "For There Is No Difference", from Romans 3:22.

He pointed out that "people will wonder if there is no difference between a temperance man and a drunkard or glutton, or a truthful man and a liar; but of course all these traits are commendable as far as morality is concerned but keeping the law as far as possible will never save anyone. The law of God is our school master, or our looking glass, to reflect our true condition. Lots of so-called moral people are trying to justify themselves by keeping the law. In God's sight, sin is sin, regardless of the quantity". He gave a number of narrative examples of the points he stressed.

C. & P. BOWLERS START SEASON

C. & P. Shops of Wellsville have started their bowling league, composed of the following teams:

Duck league—Engine house, Smith shop, Boiler shop and Store room.

On Monday night, the Engine house duck team took over the Smith shop in three games. Thursday night the Boiler shop ten pin team defeated the Engine house by taking three straight games.

F. Brown, of the Engine house, rolled the high score, 197. R. Pearch, of the Boiler shop, had high average, with 169½ pins.

This evening the Machine shop and the Master Mechanic's office will lock horns in a ten pin game, to start at 7:30. John Dugan, captain of the Master Mechanic's office team, has got some of the best bowlers in town on his roster and he figures his team will cut a wide swath, but O. S. Dick, leading the Machinists, expects to dispute his claims with an all-star outfit.

CHARLES FLOTO FUNERAL SUNDAY

Funeral services for Charles Floto, well known Wellsville resident who died yesterday morning in Mercy hospital, Pittsburgh, following an illness of pneumonia, will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of a son, John Floto, 926 Main street. The services will be in charge of Rev. R. W. Ustick, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church.

The body will be taken on Monday to Steubenville for burial. It may be viewed at any time prior to the services at the Floto home in Main street.

HIGH GRIDDERS AT LEETONIA

Face Hard Struggle With Seasoned Rivals.

A Wellsville high school grid squad far different from the one that led the last Orange and Black football pilgrimage to Leetonia a few years ago, will return to the north county town tomorrow for the annual battle.

Football fans still recall the scholastic combine that shook up the Leetonians for a 32-2 victory, when the latter eleven was nearing its peak in football prowess, but, contemplating tomorrow's engagement, see anything but a rosy outlook.

A team, which, save for two or three veterans, was practically a green eleven at the outset of the season, will compare its strength on the gridiron with a more or less seasoned Leetonia team.

Leetonia has lost Morbito, its great plunging fullback, the Altomares, End Sammon, one of the best in the country last year, Tackle Kunkle and Guard Guerrier.

But the reserves that have been called in to fill these holes are almost veterans themselves. Only the backfield shows greatly the effects of graduation. But here is Nicolette at quarterback, of last year's team, although Dean and Billet, halves, and Price, full, are newcomers, and, on season's performance, can not be ranked with the Altomares or Morbito.

However, the line shows strength. Every one of the seven regular forwards has passed the rookie stage. Clifford and Mowery hold down the ends; M. Price and Beltempo the tackles; A. Altomare and Ginther, guards, and Bianco, center.

This outfit walloped Salineville a week ago, 21 to 7. The fact that the Salineville eleven could score raises hopes of the Orange and Black.

EARL HILL HOST AT CLASS MEET

Earl Hill was host to members of the Eveready Sunday school class of the First Methodist Protestant church last evening at his home in Clark avenue. The class is taught by Mrs. Minnie Kiggans.

Games and contests were diversions following the regular business session. Prizes were awarded to Norman Householder and Hilbert Hudson, and the consolation to Norman Parr.

WOMEN'S CLASS TO HOLD PARTY

Arrangements are being completed for the Hallowe'en entertainment and parcel post sale to be held by the Loyal Women's class of the First Christian church on Friday, October 30, in the church.

There will be a program of contests, games, readings and music. Refreshments will be served. A slight admission will be charged.

Man Acts as His Own Doctor When He Chops Finger

HAZELTON, Pa.—Persons have been known to witness their own operations after having been treated with local anesthetics but it remained for Ralph Viano to perform his own operation and thus save physicians fees and enable him to weather the effects of the anthracite coal mine suspension.

Ralph was chopping the head from one of his chickens and almost lacerated his finger. Rushing into the house with the lacerated member dangling, he called for a needle and fine thread and then sewed the frayed pieces of skin. He feels no ill effects from the wound.

RETURNS FROM SYNOD SESSION

Rev. W. T. McKee Back From Church Meet at Wellsburg.

Rev. W. T. McKee, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, has returned from Wellsburg where he attended the session of the West Virginia synod and Missionary society of the Presbyterian church. He was moderator of the synod last year and was succeeded this year by Rev. S. M. Gibson of Wheeling.

Rev. McKee submitted a report on bills and overtures at the closing session of the synod. John A. Shaw of Toledo submitted the annual report on nominations.

"Program and Field Activities" was the subject of an interesting and detailed report delivered before the synod by Charles Keesor, M. D., of Wheeling. A report of the committee on national missions by Rev. J. M. Potter, pastor of Vance Memorial Presbyterian church of Wheeling, brought the session of the synod to a close yesterday afternoon.

Parkersburg was selected as the next meeting place for both the synod and Missionary society. The latter organization at its final session re-elected the present officers.

PARENT-TEACHERS TO MEET MONDAY

Parent-Teachers association will meet Monday evening in the Central school building. The program will be in charge of E. M. Skinner who will give a demonstration in eighth grade arithmetic. Plans will be made at this session to put the school savings system into effect. A representative of the First National bank will be present and explain details.

CHESTER FACING HARD CONTEST

Chester high school football team is scheduled to meet Toronto tomorrow afternoon at the latter place. The locals have been holding practice sessions during the week and the same lineup that took part in the Wellsville game will probably face Toronto. The team will be accompanied by a large delegation of rooters.

Chester will play Salineville instead of Midland on Saturday, October 31.

DISTRICT RALLY HERE TONIGHT

Representatives of every church are expected to attend the Grant district Sunday school rally to be held this evening in the First Christian church. Rev. W. S. Hamilton, pastor of the New Cumberland Methodist Protestant church, will deliver the principal address.

Hancock county convention will be held in the First Presbyterian church here on Thursday and Friday, November 5-6. The committee in charge is arranging the program.

OFFICERS NAMED AT LODGE MEET

The election of Sir S. Raymond Snyder of Chambersburg, Pa., to the post of supreme commander and the selection of Trenton, N. J., as the site for the 1926 supreme conclave and convention were the high spots of the last session of the 42nd annual gathering of the Knights of Malta, held in the Wheeling Malta temple during the past four days. The convention adjourned late yesterday afternoon and a majority of the visitors left for their homes immediately.

WEIRTON BOY IS STRUCK BY AUTO

Anthony Kolanko, aged 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Kolanko, Weirton, was seriously injured early last evening when struck by an automobile in Weirton. The lad is in the Ohio Valley hospital at Steubenville while Weirton police are endeavoring to establish the identity of the driver of the car which struck him.

The boy was crossing the street when struck by the machine, said to have been going at a high rate of speed. The driver did not stop and pedestrians rushed to the assistance of the boy. X-ray pictures were taken and will be read today to determine whether or not his skull is fractured.

FEDERAL JUDGE MAKES RULING

State and city officers were given the stamp of approval by Federal Judge W. E. Baker, who, in ruling on the validity of the Roy Morris case of Weirton, decided that arrests may be made by either state or city officers, who in turn, may bring their cases into the federal court for trial.

The court, however, issued a warning to all federal officers that they cannot raid homes without first securing a proper warrant with which to do so, and that they also must have proof that violations exist before they made the raids.

His first ruling, however, means that federal and state officers working together may make a raid and that the state and city officers can bring the defendant into the federal court, where they can appear against them as witnesses and secure conviction in the event that the evidence is sufficient.

The case in question was one in which Senator Ollie Marshall had appeared for Roy Morrison of Weirton, his place having been searched upon a John Doe warrant by federal and state officers.

Senator Marshall cited the ruling of the supreme court in the Angello case and stated that it was improper to make arrests without having a proper warrant, claiming that the John Doe warrant was not proper. The ruling of the court, however, is proof that the John Doe warrant is good where used by state officers.

COUNTY OFFICE FILES CLOGGED

Laxity on the part of mercantile interests who sell merchandise on the partial payment plan, and then take a chattle mortgage on the goods is clogging the files of the office of County Recorder Paul Smith, it was disclosed today.

Over 10,000 chattle mortgages are said to be still on record that should be cancelled, and these are of years standing. It has been discovered that many firms after a partial payment invoice has been paid in full, no word is sent to the county recorder to cancel the chattle mortgage, and as a result there is a steady accumulation of these papers.

It frequently happens that when the records are being searched and a chattle mortgage is found against certain parties, credit rating is impaired, and then the information comes forth that the chattle mortgage has long since been paid.

"We have thousands of these old chattle mortgages on file that should be cancelled," Recorder Smith said today. "It is not a part of the business of this office to make inquiry whether or not a chattle mortgage has been paid, but it does appear to us that firms who make use of such instruments should notify this office to cancel the mortgage as soon as the claims are paid in full. Our files are clogged with mortgages that we feel have long served their purpose, and which should be taken from the files and returned.

"Furniture concerns, automobile dealers and other dealers who make use of cattle mortgages should always be prompt in cancelling the mortgages as soon as their claims are paid. This cancellation is due those against whom the mortgages have been filed, and it is only good business to cancel the mortgages.

"There is another phase to this situation, and that is this: when people have completed their partial payments in full, and who know they gave a chattle mortgage on the goods, they should go to such dealers and ask for the return of the cancelled mortgage. This cancellation will show on the records of the recorder's office, and the credit to those who gave the chattle mortgage is made clear. Otherwise the credit standing is clouded for the time being.

"There are so many chattle mortgages being filed these days that we are in sore need of room, and should the thousands of old chattle mortgages be ordered cancelled, we would be in very good shape."

The matter of asking dealers for the cancelled mortgage will result in the quick cancellation of many instruments, in the opinion of Recorder Smith. These mortgages are then returned to the people who gave them, and credit title is again made clear.

TWO MORE FARM THEFTS REPORTED

Two more farm robberies have been reported to Sheriff George Wright, one at the farm of H. B. Zimmerman on the Fairfield road in Salem township where 65 head of poultry were stolen, and valued at $100, and another at the farm of Mrs. L. M. Carlisle on the Lisbon-Salineville road, where 40 head of Rhode Island hens were stolen, valued at $75. These thieves are declared to be the same crowd that has been robbing other farm houses of produce, and then taking their stock to a "fence" in Youngstown and disposing of the loot.

Woman Seeks Divorce.

A petition for divorce has been filed in common pleas court by Anna Montgomery, through her counsel Crawford and Cochran of East Liverpool against her husband Joseph Montgomery, residing five miles back in the country from Shadyside, Belmont county. The plaintiff claims that for six years her husband has failed to provide for her.

Non-Support Charged.

Clarence Smith, formerly residing at Ross Meadows, is in the county jail awaiting trial in probate court on a charge of non-support. Recently Smith was taken before Judge James G. Moore on a contempt charge, it being shown the court above that the defendant was then $1,100 back in his payments under a previous order of court growing out of a divorce action filed against Smith by his wife.

Woman Seeks Divorce.

Declaring that she was married at East Liverpool Nov. 23, 1915, May Furnival, through her counsel, Lones, Hill & Davidson of East Liverpool, has filed an action for divorce in common pleas court against her husband, Joseph C. Furnival. Gross neglect of duty is charged.

Action Filed.

An action has been filed in common pleas court by Willis Whinnery of Winona against E. H. Campbell of Salem, wherein the plaintiff claims $230 due him as commission on the sale of cattle valued at $2,300 and due January 14, 1920, and other claims for $50.

Case Settled.

A $35 appeal case growing out of the sale of a radio set, and which was heard by a jury in common pleas No. 2 Thursday was taken from the jury by Judge Walter D. Long and the court instructed the jury to render a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, W. F. Main and against H. M. Hartman.

MERCHANTS PLAN BIG CELEBRATION

Committees have been appointed and preliminary programs are being outlined for the annual Lisbon Merchants Mardi Gras which will be held in Lisbon the afternoon of Oct. 30 and also that night.

During the afternoon a street fair will be featured. Needle craft, pastry and farm products will be featured in all stores, and prizes will be awarded winners for the No. 1 and No. 2 awards.

In the evening there will be a street parade in which several bands will take part. Prizes will be awarded in a costume contest.

The Whitehill 10-piece orchestra from East Liverpool will play during a dance at the Rolloway, following which a number of prizes will be awarded on costumes.

The Merchants Mardi Gras has been a feature in Lisbon for a number of years. Last year, however, the event was combined with the Armistice day celebration, but this year the two events will be separated.

A meeting of the American Legion post has been called to discuss plans for the Armistice day celebration.

Middleton Trustee Denies Reports of Road Fund Transfer

J. A. Rudibaugh, Clarkson, president of the Middleton township board of trustees, today denied the published report that the township seeks to transfer $5,000 collected through the two-mill road levy for the Calcutta-Clarkson road to the new Cope Hollow route of the Youngstown-East Liverpool road.

The fund was set aside when the Sprucevale route was designated for the Youngstown-East Liverpool intercounty highway. Since then the state highway department has designated the Cope Hollow route.

Rudibaugh asserted that it was the intention of the trustees to use this money on the road for which it was originally intended. It will provide an improved highway from Clarkson to a point near the Clarkson Presbyterian church, about one fourth of a mile south of the village.

To Show Sacred Film.

The Reformed church of Lisbon will present the film the Passion Play at the Lisbon opera house Sunday evening. This film was to have been shown in Lisbon Sunday evening, Aug. 329th, but it did not arrive in time. The musical program will be in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bowman of Lisbon.

The morning service at this church Sunday will be in charge of the Rev. Dr. Horning of St. Joseph, Mo., district secretary of the board of Home Missions of the Reformed church.

Motor Truck Stripped.

A motor truck owned by Clayton M. Armstrong, residing on the Lisbon-Highlandtown road was stripped of tires, battery, tools and other movable parts, according to a report made to Sheriff George Wright. The windshield of a touring car was taken from the car at the same time the truck was "stripped."

Marriage Licenses.

Edward Kemp of Philadelphia, Pa., and Thelma Buckley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Buckley of Wellsville, rural delivery, have been granted a marriage license. They were married at the parsonage of the Lisbon United Presbyterian church by the Rev. J. M. Cameron.

The same minister performed the marriage of Robert T. Plant, a chemist residing at Niles and Eleanor Bowen of Salem, but a former resident of Niles.

George W. Williams, a machinist of Salem and Pearl Nusbaum, a nurse, also of Salem, but formerly residing at Van Wert, have been granted a marriage license. They are to be married by the Rev. Collier of Salem.

Leetonia

Leetonia is to have a lecture course this winter under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers' association. The course consists of four numbers, as follows: November 5, the Brown-Mencley company, composed entirely of men; November 27, a lecture by Judge George Allen; February 10, the Rocky Mountain quartet, a novelty singing and instrumental company; March 25, the Glenn Wells company, who will put on a two or three-act play, with a musical prelude of duets, soprano and baritone solos.

Tuesday evening the Leetonia Kiwanis club held a meeting at Perry grange hall, west of Leetonia. Dinner was served by the ladies of the Perry grange. The agricultural committe, consisting of S. H. Sitler, F. W. Flodding and Walter Peet, had charge of the program, which consisted of an address by Mr. Thompson, editor of the Farm and Dairy Journal, who gave an interesting talk. County Commissioner Conrad Berg presented the county bond road issue. The program was further augmented with special music by several members of the Perry grange.

Tuesday evening, October 27, the domestic science class of the high school will serve the dinner to the Kiwanis club at the Northside school building, with the program in charge of the educational committee, of which Wilbur S. Mellinger is chairman.

An Encouraging Sign of the Times

Reports recently made by the state of Ohio show that the assets of savings and loan organizations are not only greater than ever before, but are steadily and rapidly growing.

The growth of these institutions indicates that more and more people are being sold on the idea of saving money and investing their savings in the most profitable and safest investment known—the home.

Be An Author:

Our Fountain Pens can be used to write stories now appearing in the Saturday Evening Post, Literary Digest, Atlantic Monthly and the Review-Tribune. All you have to have is one of these pens, an idea and know how to write.

Invalids!

Modern science and invention have done wonders during the last decade in their efforts to make the daily life of the bedridden happier and more comfortable. Druggists naturally are headquarters for sickroom supplies. Why not look over our assortment if you have an invalid at your home.

A Dog And His Flea!

Every respectable, serious-minded dog should support a flea. Some dogs support whole colonies. Many very small dogs seem to devote their entire energy to collecting fleas. Skip Flea (a powder) is very, VERY discouraging to fleas and if sprinkled on a pup or dog tends to make them go away from where they're at.

Cenol!

A blood tonic for insects and bugs of all sorts. Makes them exceedingly ambitious to get away and strike out for themselves. Don't feed this to a pet roach or you'll soon lose him.

Beyond Us

Why anyone with one freckle or a hundred wants to get rid of it or them is not understandable at all; yet many do. So for 96c we will give you what is called FLYTE which allows you to tune out from them.

We Buy New Suspender Buttons!

An odd looking chap with a trick moustache saunters in one of our stores last week and after we'd sat around with him for about eight hours, losing a lot of sleep and getting in bad with the family, he goes away leaving us with a new idea on this business of advertising.

From now on this weekly spasm of writing an ad for Carnahan's over at the Review-Tribune is going to be a pleasure instead of a bore. I'm going to quit this idea of trying to build a cultured, erudite ad and am just going to talk like I do at home. This stranger showed me that if I had the right prices, the right goods, a real willingness to serve, how I told about it made no difference whatever. So instead of taking a day off to write this copy for The Review-Tribune, I'm going to tear off an hour — on wrapping paper too. Oh yes, he said we had to have interesting stores and even a smile on our faces. He further said that the smile should be of the kindly sort, come from a contented heart and not just plastered on for the occasion.

I've looked the prices, the stores, the goods, the smiles all over and I reckon we measure up, so from now on, once a week, on Friday, you can tune in on this page and listen to my concert.

JOHN CARNAHAN.

Shorty Says:-

I'm the inventor of what is NOW known as the pill! As a side issue, I do press agenting. Carnahans' have hired me for their stores and each week I'm supposed to say nice and pleasant things about them.

I don't know Jack so very well yet but so far he gives me a pain! I found him yesterday sobbing over a penholder and an ink bottle, and when I wanted to know wot tell was the matter, he says:

"Just think of all the wonderful things I'm going to make that pen and ink say from now on in these ads! And before today I never appreciated what a nervous thing an ink bottle was!"

Now, wasn't that a heluva condition for a grown-up druggist to get in? I hope he cools off soon for this town sure is lonesome for me especially since Jack won't let me keep my dog. Say there's barely enuf room on this page for me letalone my dog, so between the dog's howls and Jack's sobs, I'm sufferin' plenty, what I mean!

Extra Specials for Saturday

Our average everyday prices are always the lowest. Bargain tables inside our stores will show some real deep cut prices for Saturday only which we do not have the space to tell about here.

Four Famous Movements

An earnest world gives stellar credit to Ingersoll, Ford, Jazz and Rhualo tables. Prices Ingersoll $1.75 to $10.00; Ford $25 to $650 according to Vintage Jazz 5c on up and Rhualo tablets 25c.

Face!

It sounds dumb mabbe but the wise MAN ought to be just as interested in the skin of HIS face as the WOMAN is about hers. A clean, bright skin attracts Men, so why not use the same stuff to make the WOMAN turn around when you're struttin' your stuff?

Police and Fountain News!

Drinks and cops are not supposed to meet. But to keep 'em apart is sure some feat. For the drinks we're selling are not the kind that all you readers have in mind.

The sort we sell, while they have their kick, don't kick you sick like a kick from a bric. They cool your tummy, soothe your mind—Dag gone it, folks, they're the ONLY Kind!

SUES CITY FOR FEE OF $300

Attorney Boyd Files Action in Justice's Court.

An action to recover $300, attorney's fee, against the city of Wellsville, was filed in the court of Justice John Riley, Main street, yesterday afternoon by Attorney Charles Boyd, fromer city solicitor and aid to ex-Solicitor George D. Ingram during the street car fare controversy.

Mayor Barnes was served with a subpoena yesterday afternoon. The case is scheduled to be heard before Justice Riley on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, October 27.

In a bill submitted to city council recently Attorney Boyd asked a fee of $500 for services he rendered the city in not only the car fare case but the Davidson case, the latter ending in the state supreme court.

The bill was returned to council at Tuesday's meeting because of the lack of funds with which to pay it.

Attorney Boyd's action against the city, however, was for only $300, instead of $500.

REV. ZACKMAN HOLDS REVIVAL

Revival meetings are still in progress in the First Evangelical church here, in charge of Rev. E. L. Zackman, pastor.

He delivered a sermon at last night's services on the subject, "For There Is No Difference", from Romans 3:22.

He pointed out that "people will wonder if there is no difference between a temperance man and a drunkard or glutton, or a truthful man and a liar; but of course all these traits are commendable as far as morality is concerned but keeping the law as far as possible will never save anyone. The law of God is our school master, or our looking glass, to reflect our true condition. Lots of so-called moral people are trying to justify themselves by keeping the law. In God's sight, sin is sin, regardless of the quantity". He gave a number of narrative examples of the points he stressed.

C. & P. BOWLERS START SEASON

C. & P. Shops of Wellsville have started their bowling league, composed of the following teams:

Duck league—Engine house, Smith shop, Boiler shop and Store room.

On Monday night, the Engine house duck team took over the Smith shop in three games. Thursday night the Boiler shop ten pin team defeated the Engine house by taking three straight games.

F. Brown, of the Engine house, rolled the high score, 197. R. Pearch, of the Boiler shop, had high average, with 169⅓ pins.

This evening the Machine shop and the Master Mechanic's office will lock horns in a ten pin game, to start at 7:30. John Dugan, captain of the Master Mechanic's office team, has got some of the best bowlers in town on his roster and he figures his team will cut a wide swath, but O. S. Dick, leading the Machinists, expects to dispute his claims with an all-star outfit.

CHARLES FLOTO FUNERAL SUNDAY

Funeral services for Charles Floto, well known Wellsville resident who died yesterday morning in Mercy hospital, Pittsburgh, following an illness of pneumonia, will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of a son, John Floto, 926 Main street. The services will be in charge of Rev. R. W. Ustick, pastor of the First United Presbyterian church.

The body will be taken on Monday to Steubenville for burial. It may be viewed at any time prior to the services at the Floto home in Main street.

HIGH GRIDDERS AT LEETONIA

Face Hard Struggle With Seasoned Rivals.

A Wellsville high school grid squad far different from the one that led the last Orange and Black football pilgrimage to Leetonia a few years ago, will return to the north county town tomorrow for the annual battle.

Football fans still recall the scholastic combine that shook up the Leetonians for a 32-2 victory, when the latter eleven was nearing its peak in football prowess, but, contemplating tomorrow's engagement, see anything but a rosy outlook.

A team, which, save for two or three veterans, was practically a green eleven at the outset of the season, will compare its strength on the gridiron with a more or less seasoned Leetonia team.

Leetonia has lost Morbito, its great plunging fullback, the Altomares, End Sammon, one of the best in the country last year, Tackle Kunkle and Guard Guerrier.

But the reserves that have been called in to fill these holes are almost veterans themselves. Only the backfield shows greatly the effects of graduation. But here is Nicolette at quarterback, of last year's team, although Dean and Billet, halves, and Price, full, are newcomers, and, on season's performance, can not be ranked with the Altomares or Morbito.

However, the line shows strength. Every one of the seven regular forwards has passed the rookie stage. Clifford and Mowery hold down the ends; M. Price and Beltempo the tackles; A. Altomare and Ginther, guards, and Bianco, center.

This outfit walloped Salineville a week ago, 21 to 7. The fact that the Salineville eleven could score raises hopes of the Orange and Black.

EARL HILL HOST AT CLASS MEET

Earl Hill was host to members of the Eveready Sunday school class of the First Methodist Protestant church last evening at his home in Clark avenue. The class is taught by Mrs. Minnie Kiggans.

Games and contests were diversions following the regular business session. Prizes were awarded to Norman Householder and Hilbert Hudson, and the consolation to Norman Parr.

WOMEN'S CLASS TO HOLD PARTY

Arrangements are being completed for the Hallowe'en entertainment and parcel post sale to be held by the Loyal Women's class of the First Christian church on Friday, October 30, in the church.

There will be a program of contests, games, readings and music. Refreshments will be served. A slight admission will be charged.

Verdict for D. A. Forbes

A jury in common pleas court at Lisbon has rendered a verdict for $100 and interest, since March 11, 1924, in favor of D. A. Forbes, against Alex Johnson.

The action was for $101.57 for money claimed due to Forbes and collections on old accounts by Johnson, who declared that all agreements had been abided by.

Man Acts as His Own Doctor When He Chops Finger

HAZELTON, Pa.—Persons have been known to witness their own operations after having been treated with local anesthetics but it remained for Ralph Viano to perform his own operation and thus save physicians fees and enable him to weather the effects of the anthracite coal mine suspension.

Ralph was chopping the head from one of his chickens and almost lacerated his finger. Rushing into the house with the lacerated member dangling, he called for a needle and fine thread and then sewed the frayed pieces of skin. He feels no ill effects from the wound.

Highs Tackle Lisbon In First Contest of County Campaign

Four Regulars and a Reserve Out of Tomorrow's Tilt; Affecting Principally the Backfield; County Seaters, Largely a Veteran Combine, Expected to Show Plenty of Speed and Probably Passing Attack.

East Liverpool high school griders tomorrow begin their offensive on the Columbiana county sector, playing at Lisbon, with the physical aspects of the squad geting worse with such celerity that Coach O. V. Boone, looking forward, not only to the Lisbon tilt but the game with Salem on the following Saturday, has visions of a Blue nad White lineup resembling very much the well known sieve.

No less than four members of the squad will be hors de combat when the team lines up tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock on the county seat gridiron.

McKim, guard, and P. Shaffer, quarter, injured recently; R. Shaffer, halfback, hurt in Saturday's game; Kinsey, guard, ill with influenza; and Todd, on the injured list are the quintet who will not don togs for the battle with the Lisbonites.

Todd is the latest addition to the hospital roster. During scrimmage session Wednesday evening he fractured a bone in one of his hands and it is quite possible that he will be cut for a couple of weeks, anyway.

And that's not all.

Next week the quintet will become a septet when Guard Banks and Tackle Bough join the crowd. Both, according to Coach Boone, came out second best in a tussle with school work and they start their football loaf next week.

Todd's absence will not be felt so keenly, inasmuch as Dick Larkins will be on the job. But if Larkins should happen to be forced out of the game, then Boone will be up against it.

Boone will have two good ends on the job, in Perry and Elmer English, as well as a couple of hefty tackles, Bough and Hanes. The one guard post will be well taken care of by Banks, but the other must be tendered either J. Hall or Irwin, both recruits this year. And then there's Larkins at center.

Captain Paul English, as usual, will furnish the big punch in the backfield corps, with Reibel and Allison at halves. Either McCoy or Heddleston will take the quarter post.

The Blue and White will be pitted against a light, but exceptionally fast Lisbon team. Speed, unquestionably, will be shot at the locals in large quantities, with Hum, Neigh and Cornelli as the offensive stars. These three lads have made up three-fourths of the Lisbon eleven's backfield for something like three or four years, and they're getting to know their football pretty well. It would not be surprising, either, to see a strong aerial attack launched against the Ceramic City combine.

STATE EXPECTS TOUGH BATTLE

COLUMBUS, Oct. 23.—With a place in the 1925 Big Ten football sun at stake, each day serves to strengthen the conviction that Saturday's game here in the Ohio stadium between Ohio State and Iowa will be one of the outstanding duels of the season.

Iowa's win over Illinois last Saturday convinced Ohio State followers of at least three things: that the Hawkeyes are just as powerful as earlier reports made out, that they have a fighting combination that never gives up, and that in Kutsch, to say nothing of some of the veterans in the backfield, they have a player who will bear constant watching.

Again it will be a partially revamped Buckeye eleven which will start the game. Bill Jenkins, veteran tackle, who last Saturday missed his first game in two seasons, apparently is destined for the shelf for some weeks longer because of his leg injury. His place was ably filled last week in the Columbia game by Uriwil, who, by the weay, rails from Iowa. Uridil is much lighter and only a sophomore, but his aggressiveness helps to amend for his inexperience.

Elsewhere on the line, John Nichols, the other tackle, is still not in the best of shape. Klein, center, who was hurt on the first play of the Columbia game, is expected to be available again, along with Ullery who replaced him and who was hurt on the second play of the fray.

Makeup of the backfield is a bit uncertain. Last Saturday's combination, something of an emergency quarter, with the veterans Bill Hunt and "Windy" Wendler out of it, functioned pretty well. Wendler probably will be fit to play again but whether he breaks into the lineup is not so certain.

WEST VIRGINIA RIVALS CLASH

Both Mountaineers and Methodists are Confident.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 23.—Scarcity of "bear stories" on the eve of the annual West Virginia-West Virginia Wesleyan gridiron battle is a sure sign that both Mountaineers and Methodists are going to have the full strength of their squads available for the clash. If either team had any gloom to spread the public would soon be advised of the facts. The dearth of pessimistic propaganda means that Wesleyan is making no secret of the fact that it expects to win this year, while the Mountaineers are confident that they will be able to turn the Methodists back again. Everything points to a thrilling skirmish when the two elevens lineup in the stadium here Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Eight of the eleven men named in Wesleyan's probable lineup are out-of state students. The three West Virginia products expected to start are Everett Brinkman of Wheeling, Meek of Buckhannon and Bullington of Charleston. Brinkman is listed at left end and Meek and Bullington at the tackles.

Captain "Red" King, Methodist fullback, is from Apollo, Pa. "Chick" Weihl, quarterback, is from Marietta, O.; "Buck" Kraus is from Akron, O., and the other fullback, "Brownie" Corcoran, a native of Mount Vernon, O.

The center, Scheib, played at Arthur Hill high, Saginaw, Mich., before martriculating at Wesleyan last fall, and the guards, Moore and Kemerer, did their prep work at Pennsylvania schools—Moore at Connellsville high and Kemerer at Duquesne. Dick Alvis, sturdy right end, claims East Liverpool, O., as his home town. All of the probable starters, except Bullington, were letter men at Wesleyan last year and played against West Virginia. When it is taken into consideration that veterans of the ability of Raschella, Garrity, Dietrich, DeLong, Trainer, Reiter and others will be on the bench at the kickoff some idea may be had of Wesleyan's strength.

Georgia Tech's victory over the always formidable Penn State team and its general makeup indicate that the southern team may still carry the name "Golden Tornado." Above, the coach and two leading stars of the Georgia Tech eleven.

CHICAGO-PENN. EAST'S BIG GAME

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Chicago's invasion of the East, to meet Pennsylvania, is the high spot of tomorrow's football schedule.

Red and Blue supporters are confident that the eleven which sprang a big surprise last week by defeating Yale, will be too much for Chicago but Coach Lou Young has been quoted as declaring he expects the western eleven to furnish the toughest spot on Penn's schedule.

Yale journeys to Providence tomorrow to help Brown break in its new stadium. Rumors have filtered through that Brown will have other new things to show the Eli, notably some plays that are expected to bring about another Yale defeat.

Harvard is facing no pink tea in taking on Dartmouth at Cambridge. Dartmouth hasn't been scored against this year and had rolled up 199 points in crushing all opposition the Crimson supporters, none too happy after after last week's unexpected defeat by Holy Cross, are apprehensive of what may be in store for their eleven tomorrow.

Other big games in the East on Tomorrow's schedule are the Princeton-Colgate. Army-St. Louis and Columbia-Williams clashes.

PIRATES PART WITH PLAYERS

Bigbee, Moore and Culloton Traded in Deal.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 23.—Two heroes of the recent world series, Carson Bigbee and Eddie Moore, infielders, in addition to Bernard Culloton, pitcher, will be sent to the San Francisco Seals under terms of a deal which brings two Pacific Coast players to the Pittsburgh Pirates, it was reported here today.

Hal Rhyne and Paul Warner, youthful sluggers of the Seals, join the Pirates next season, the world champions having paid the San Francisco club $85,000 for their contracts, besides releasing three players to the Seals.

It was Bigbee's clout in the deciding game of the series with Washington that started the victorious rally in the late inning. He filled the utility role during the regular season, however, and got into the world series only as a pinch hitter.

"We're Rotten," Says Gloomy Gil; Maybe, Some Time, He'll Be Right

This is the fifth of a series of articles by Davis J. Walsh on teams of the east and middle west. The others will follow daily.

By Davis J. Walsh.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 23.—"We're rotten," said Mr. Dobie, without parley, preamble or debate.

One of these times, some team is going to beat Cornell by a score of 56 to 0 and Mr. Dobie will be substantiated in every respect. With good will toward all and favor toward none, the writer hopes this condition of affairs will transpire with all due haste. He has become a bit wearied of Mr. Dobie's phobia, so to speak.

As a matter of fundamental fact, Cornell is neither good nor goshawful. It is just like a young fellow trying to get along.

Of the eleven men who start a football game up this way, seven are sophomores. Mr. Dobie, with his customary eye for detail, is looking ahead. For the moment, he has one good tackle and that is almost enough. Give Mr. Dobie a tackle who knows his business on attack and you usually give him a shotgun with the muzzle pointed in the general direction of somewhere.

"I am sorroy I have a captain," Dobie has been quoted as saying. "Otherwise, I would have only ten men to pick."

This, to the writer, is so much malarky, in view of the fact that the captain in question is Kearney, rated as one of the best tackles in this section last year. They do say, however, that one Baird would have had Kearney's job this year if Kearney hadn't been captain of the outfit. You can give this story what it may be worth, or even less.

The significant fact is that Kearney has started all of the games to date with Hill is a running mate and Baird in reserve. They say that Evens, who has been hurt, is another good tackle.

All of those mentioned, with the exception of Kearney, are sophomores. Other second year men on the Varsity team are Carey, guard; Rapuno, center; Courtright, end and Gassner, Butterfield, Islay and Rosenberg, backs.

By and large, they make quite a football team and Cornell, with its usual shock absorbing schedule, should coast right along to the Pennsylvania game, where it will cease to coast quite abruptly and without further notice.

Dobie expects to lose to Pennsylvania this year, which is nothing unusual. He expects to lose to everybody and sometimes he is right. However, the chances are good at this moment that Cornell will not lose by three touchdowns as it did in 1924, in spite of the ineligibility of Molient, its star plunger.

Its ends, Eddy and Fennell, are experienced but not as good as the 1924 pair. The tackles are better. So are the guards, with Munns, the best man in the center of the 1924 line, still holding forth.

Affeld was a right good center last year, but the boys say he has finished second to Rapuno thus far this season. This either makes Rapuno a remarkable center or the boys remarkable fabricators.

The backfield punch is supplied by Wesser at quarterback with his kicking, running and passing. He was in the 1924 combination and is quite a worthy youth. Islay, Gassner, Carpenter, Fratt, Butterfield, Rosenberg, Hand, Robinhood, Sinclair, Trefts and others also take a whirl at the backfield game.

None of them are really good, none of them are really bad. Even Mr. Dobie would agree with this statement if he wasn't Mr. Dobie.

Laxity on the part of mercantile interests who sell merchandise on the partial payment plan, and then take a chattle mortgage on the goods is clogging the files of the office of County Recorder Paul Smith, it was disclosed today.

Over 10,000 chattle mortgages are said to be still on record that should be cancelled, and these are of years standing. It has been discovered that many firms after a partial payment invoice has been paid in full, no word is sent to the county recorder to cancel the chattle mortgage, and as a result there is a steady accumulation of these papers.

It frequently happens that when the records are being searched and a chattle mortgage is found against certain parties, credit rating is impaired, and then the information comes forth that the chattle mortgage has long since been paid.

"We have thousands of these old chattle mortgages on file that should be cancelled," Recorder Smith said today. "It is not a part of the business of this office to make inquiry whether or not a chattle mortgage has been paid, but it does appear to us that firms who make use of such instructments should notify this office to cancel the mortgage as soon as the claims are paid in full. Our files are clogged with mortgages that we feel have long served their purpose, and which should be taken from the files and returned.

"Furniture concerns, automobile dealers and other dealers who make use of cattle mortgages should always be prompt in cancelling the mortgages as soon as their claims are paid. This cancellation is due those against whom the mortgages have been filed, and it is only good business to cancel the mortgages.

"There is another phase to this situation, and that is this: when people have completed their partial payments in full, and who know they gave a chattle mortgage on the goods, they should go to such dealers and ask for the return of the cancelled mortgage. This cancellation will show on the records of the recorder's office, and the credit to those who gave the chattle mortgage is made clear. Otherwise the credit standing is clouded for the time being.

"There are so many chattle mortgages being filed these days that we are in sore need of room, and should the thousands of old chattle mortgages be ordered cancelled, we would be in very good shape."

The matter of asking dealers for the cancelled mortgage will result in the quick cancellation of many instruments, in the opinion of Recorder Smith. These mortgages are then returned to the people who gave them, and credit title is again made clear.

TWO MORE FARM THEFTS REPORTED

Two more farm robberies have been reported to Sheriff George Wright, one at the farm of H. B. Zimmerman on the Fairfield road in Salem township where 65 head of poultry were stolen, and valued at $100, and another at the farm of Mrs. L. M. Carlisle on the Lisbon-Salineville road, where 40 head of Rhode Island hens were stolen, valued at $75. These thieves are declared to be the same crowd that has been robbing other farm houses of produce, and then taking their stock to a "fence" in Youngstown and disposing of the loot.

Woman Seeks Divorce.

A petition for divorce has been filed in common pleas court by Anna Montgomery, through her counsel Crawford and Cochran of East Liverpool against her husband Joseph Montgomery, residing five miles back in the country from Shadyside, Belmont county. The plaintiff claims that for six years her husband has failed to provide for her.

Non-Support Charged.

Clarence Smith, formerly residing at Ross Meadows, is in the county jail awaiting trial in probate court on a charge of non-support. Recently Smith was taken before Judge James G. Moore on a contempt charge, it being shown the court above that the defendant was then $1,100 back in his payments under a previous order of court growing out of a divorce action filed against Smith by his wife.

Woman Seeks Divorce.

Declaring that she was married at East Liverpool Nov. 23, 1915, May Furnival, through her counsel, Lones, Hill & Davidson of East Liverpool, has filed an action for divorce in common pleas court against her husband, Joseph C. Furnival. Gross neglect of duty is charged.

Action Filed.

An action has been filed in common pleas court by Willis Whinnery of Winona against E. H. Campbell of Salem, wherein the plaintiff claims $230 due him as commission on the sale of cattle valued at $2,300 and due January 14, 1920, and other claims for $50.

Case Settled.

A $35 appeal case growing out of the sale of a radio set, and which was heard by a jury in common pleas No. 2 Thursday was taken from the jury by Judge Walter D. Long and the court instructed the jury to render a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, W. F. Main and against H. M. Hartman.

MERCHANTS PLAN BIG CELEBRATION

Committees have been appointed and preliminary programs are being outlined for the annual Lisbon Merchants Mardi Gras which will be held in Lisbon the afternoon of Oct. 30 and also that night.

During the afternoon a street fair will be featured. Needle craft, pastry and farm products will be featured in all stores, and prizes will be awarded winners for the No. 1 and No. 2 awards.

In the evening there will be a street parade in which several bands will take part. Prizes will be awarded in a costume contest.

The Whitehill 10-piece orchestra from East Liverpool will play during a dance at the Rolloway, following which a number of prizes will be awarded on costumes.

The Merchants Mardi Gras has been a feature in Lisbon for a number of years. Last year, however, the event was combined with the Armistice day celebration, but this year the two events will be separated.

A meeting of the American Legion post has been called to discuss plans for the Armistice day celebration.

Middleton Trustee Denies Reports of Road Fund Transfer

J. A. Rudibaugh, Clarkson, president of the Middleton township board of trustees, today denied the published report that the township seeks to transfer $5,000 collected through the two-mill road levy for the Calcutta-Clarkson road to the new Cope Hollow route of the Youngstown-East Liverpool road.

The fund was set aside when the Sprucevale route was designated for the Youngstown-East Liverpool intercounty highway. Since then the state highway denartment has designated the Cope Hollow route.

Rudibaugh asserted that it was the intention of the trustees to use this money on the road for which it was originally intended. It will provide an improved highway from Clarkson to a point near the Clarkson Presbyterian church, about one fourth of a mile south of the village.

To Show Sacred Film.

The Reformed church of Lisbon will present the film the Passion Play at the Lisbon opera house Sunday evening. This film was to have been shown in Lisbon Sunday evening, Aug. 329th, but it did not arrive in time. The musical program will be in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bowman of Lisbon.

The morning service at this church Sunday will be in charge of the Rev. Dr. Horning of St. Joseph, Mo., district secretary of the board of Home Missions of the Reformed church.

Motor Truck Stripped.

A motor truck owned by Clayton M. Armstrong, residing on the Lisbon-Highlandtown road was stripped of tires, battery, tools and other movable parts, according to a report made to Sheriff George Wright. The windshield of a touring car was taken from the car at the same time the truck was "stripped."

Marriage Licenses.

Edward Kemp of Philadelphia, Pa., and Thelma Buckley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Buckley of Wellsville, rural delivery, have been granted a marriage license. They were married at the parsonage of the Lisbon United Presbyterian church by the Rev. J. M. Cameron.

The same minister performed the marriage of Robert T. Plant, a chemist residing at Niles and Eleanor Bowen of Salem, but a former resident of Niles.

George W. Williams, a machinist of Salem and Pearl Nusbaum, a nurse, also of Salem, but formerly residing at Van Wert, have been granted a marriage license. They are to be married by the Rev. Collier of Salem.

Leetonia

Leetonia is to have a lecture course this winter under the ausnices of the Parent-Teachers' association. The course consists of four numbers, as follows: November 5, the Brown-Menley company, composed entirely of men; November 27, a lecture by Judge George Allen; February 10, the Rocky Mountain quartet, a novelty singing and instrumental company; March 25, the Glenn Wells company, who will put on a two or three-act play, with a musical prelude of duets, soprano and baritone solos.

Tuesday evening the Leetonia Kiwanis club held a meeting at Perry grange hall, west of Leetonia. Dinner was served by the ladies of the Perry grange. The agricultural committe, consisting of S. H. Sitler, F. W. Flodding and Walter Peet, had charge of the program, which consisted of an address by Mr. Thompson, editor of the Farm and Dairy Journal, who gave an interesting talk. County Commissioner Conrad Berg presented the county bond road issue. The program was further augmented with special music by several members of the Perry grange.

An Encouraging Sign of the Times

Reports recently made by the state of Ohio show that the assets of savings and loan organizations are not only greater than ever before, but are steadily and rapidly growing.

The growth of these institutions indicates that more and more people are being sold on the idea of saving money and investing their savings in the most profitable and safest investment known—the home.

Be An Author:
Our Fountain Pens can be used to write stories now appearing in the Saturday Evening Post, Literary Digest, Atlantic Monthly and the Review-Tribune. All you have to have is one of these pens, an idea and know how to write.

Invalids!
Modern science and invention have done wonders during the last decade in their efforts to make the daily life of the bedridden happier and more comfortable. Druggists naturally are headquarters for sickroom supplies. Why not look over our assortment if you have an invalid at your home.

A Dog And His Flea!
Every respectable, serious-minded dog should support a flea. Some dogs support whole colonies. Many very small dogs seem to devote their entire energy to collecting fleas. Skip Flea (a powder) is very, VERY discouraging to fleas and if sprinkled on a pup or dog tends to make them go away from where they're at.

Cenol!
A blood tonic for insects and bugs of all sorts. Makes them exceedingly ambitious to get away and strike out for themselves. Don't feed this to a pet roach or you'll soon lose him.

Beyond Us
Why anyone with one freckle or a hundred wants to get rid of it or them is not understandable at all; yet many do. So for 96c we will give you what is called FLYTE which allows you to tune out from them.

We Buy New Suspender Buttons!

An odd looking chap with a trick moustache saunters in one of our stores last week and after we'd sat around with him for about eight hours, losing a lot of sleep and getting in bad with the family, he goes away leaving us with a new idea on this business of advertising.

From now on this weekly spasm of writing an ad for Carnahan's over at the Review-Tribune is going to be a pleasure instead of a bore. I'm going to quit this idea of trying to build a cultured, erudite ad and am just going to talk like I do at home. This stranger showed me that if I had the right prices, the right goods, a real willingness to serve, how I told about it made no difference whatever. So instead of taking a day off to write this copy for The Review-Tribune, I'm going to tear off an hour — on wrapping paper too. Oh yes, he said we had to have interesting stores and even a smile on our faces. He further said that the smile should be of the kindly sort, come from a contented heart and not just plastered on for the occasion.

I've looked the prices, the stores, the goods, the smiles all over and I reckon we measure up, so from now on, once a week, on Friday, you can tune in on this page and listen to my concert.

JOHN CARNAHAN.

Shorty Says:—

I'm the inventor of what is NOW known as the pill! As a side issue, I do press agenting. Carnahans' have hired me for their stores and each week I'm supposed to say nice and pleasant things about them.

I don't know Jack so very well yet but so far he gives me a pain! I found him yesterday sobbing over a penholder and an ink bottle, and when I wanted to know wot tell was the matter, he says:

"Just think of all the wonderful things I'm going to make that pen and ink say from now on in these ads! And before today I never appreciated what a mervous thing an ink bottle was."

Now, wasn't that a heluva condition for a grown-up druggist to get in? I hope he cools off soon for this town sure is lonesome for me especially since Jack won't let me keep my dog. Say there's barely enuf room on this page for me letalone my dog, so between the dog's howls and Jack's sobs, I'm sufferin' plenty, what I mean!

Extra Specials for Saturday
Our average everyday prices are always the lowest. Bargain tables inside our stores will show some real deep cut prices for Saturday only which we do not have the space to tell about here.

Four Famous Movements
An earnest world gives stellar credit to Ingersoll, Ford, Jazz and Rhualo tables. Prices Ingersoll $1.75 to $10.00; Ford $25 to $650 according to Vintage Jazz 5c on up and Rhualo tablets 25c.

Face!
It sounds dumb mabbe but the wise MAN ought to be just as interested in the skin of HIS face as the WOMAN is about hers. A clean, bright skin attracts Men, so why not use the same stuff to make the WOMAN turn around when you're struttin' your stuff?

Police and Fountain News!
Drinks and cops are not supposed to meet. But to keep 'em apart is sure some feat. For the drinks we're selling are not the kind that all you readers have in mind.

The sort we sell, while they have their kick, don't kick you sick like a kick from a bric. They cool your tummy, soothe your mind—Dag gone it, folks, they're the ONLY Kind!

CUM IN!

Jury of Generals Assembled for Mitchell Court-Martial

Fort Wayne to Honor Man Who Planted First Nursery in West.

Washington.—The chamber of commerce at Fort Wayne, Ind., has instructed a committee to locate, mark and make accessible to the public the grave of Johnny Appleseed. This action on the part of the business men of Fort Wayne arouses public interest again in a man whom Secretary Sherman once described as "one of the most striking figures this republic has ever produced."

In 1847 a representative from Ohio, on the floor of the house of representatives, announced the death of "an old man who has done more for the West than any other man of his era." He alluded to John Chapman, popularly and affectionately known as Johnny Appleseed, who planted orchards and nurseries in the wilderness of Ohio and Indiana in advance of civilization.

Meager knowledge of Johnny Appleseed rests chiefly on tradition and legend. He was born in Springfield, Mass., in 1775, the year the embattled farmers stood by the rude bridge and "fired the shot heard round the world." Johnny's half-sister, who went West long after he did, said that when he was a boy he was fond of nature; he loved the flowers and the birds and the animals, and on summer nights he would lie on his back for hours gazing up into the starry heavens.

Disappointed in Love.

Why John Chapman left his native state to wander in the Western wilderness is one of the mysteries of his life. It has been a fertile but futile subject of speculation for generations among poets, novelists and historians. A tradition says it was disappointed love which drove him from his neighbors and friends and relatives in the Old Bay state; and this belief has the very faint support of the fact that Chapman never married.

He appeared as a wanderer in the valley of the Potomac in 1799. The following summer he was in western Pennsylvania. One day in the fall of 1800 a woman living on the banks of the Ohio river near Steubenville saw a crazy-looking craft floating down the stream. It consisted of two canoes lashed together, heavily loaded with bags and piloted by a barefooted, oddly dressed man wearing a broad-brimmed hat.

It was John Chapman with a cargo of apple seeds which he had gathered from the cider presses of Pennsylvania. He told the woman he was on his way into the wilderness to plant nurseries in advance of the pioneers. "My mission in life," he told her, "is to have apple trees ready for the settlers when they come."

Physically Johnny Appleseed was a man of medium height and spare build. The generosity and sincerity of the blameless soul within were reflected in his soft blue eyes. Had it not been for his clownish garments he would have been a handsome man; but it was his conviction that man should not clothe himself for show but only to cover his nakedness. He was not an ignorant or illiterate man; his conversation bore the marks of the good training and education he had received in his youth. He was of a meditative and deeply religious turn of mind, professing himself a disciple of Emmanuel Swedenborg, whose teachings he had somewhat, perhaps unconsciously, modified to suit his own convictions. His two missions in life were to make converts to his religion and to plant apple trees in the wilderness.

First Nursery in Ohio.

His first nursery, so far as known, was in a narrow valley along the Ohio, opposite what is now Wellsburg, W. Va. Later he penetrated the interior of Ohio, and for years his chief field of operations was along the Muskingum and its tributaries. He went westward as far as eastern Indiana as civilization moved in that direction. It is estimated that this eccentric man set out more than one hundred nurseries in the forest. Many of the finest orchards in the early days of Ohio and Indiana were composed of trees bought from Johnny Appleseed, the patron saint of American orchards.

Equipped with an ax, a hatchet and a Virginia hoe, he would seek out a protected spot among the trees near a stream; there he would dig up the soil until it was thoroughly pulverized and plant several thousand apple, peach and pear seeds. Then, after building a brush fence around the infant nursery to keep away deer and other grazing animals, the pioneer orchardist would continue his journey until he found another suitable place for a nursery.

Settlers Find Fruit Trees.

When the settlers arrived from the East they found fruit trees waiting for them, to be bought for practically nothing. A "fippenny bit," which was worth about one-sixteenth of a Spanish dollar, was the customary price for a tree. But if the pioneer had no money, if he could not afford the fippenny bit, he got his trees anyway, either on credit or in exchange for a few old clothes which Johnny Appleseed was only too glad to get. Fortunately, there is still in existence a piece of paper containing some of Johnny Appleseed's writing. It reads as follows: "Due John Oliver one hundred and fifty trees when he goes for them to some of my nurseries on Mohican waters. John Chapman."

The trail is marked for its entire length by posts made of willow trees, sunk deep into the ground. Nearly every post has sprouted out and grown into a large tree. Every now and then along the route native characters and English words denote distances from various camps and villages. The important cannery towns of Togiak and Nushagak are situated along the marked trail.

The long willow guide highway was built something after the poll tax system. Each summer any native traveling along the route was expected to set as many willow posts as his time might permit. Often for small offenses natives were fined to set willow posts.

Today the willow lined trail serves during summer for a mail route and a stage line follows its circuitous wandering. But in mid-winter when the snow lies deep the dog sledges are always certain of the location by the silver coated willow branches, and the leader dogs instinctively know that to follow the tree lined trail means a sure and swift end of the journey.

Oldest Republic in World Without Taxes

Paris.—One country which is not worried by the tax question is Andorra, the oldest and smallest republic in the world. It lies deep in the heart of the Pyrenees between the French and Spanish claims of that range.

Besides knowing no taxes it knows nothing about bathtubs, automobiles, radios, jazz bands, "complexes" and wars. It maintains an "army" of only six soldiers, one for each village, "in case of aggression."

The ledgers of the French ministry of finance each year charge Andorra 960 (about $50) as a levy originally laid by Louis le Debonnaire. Each year before the mule trails close for the winter, the French collector goes on his annual visit to Andorra to demand 960 francs.

The councillors deliberate seriously as to whether they shall make the contribution, and then, with staged reluctance, hand over a heavy and worn goatskin sack.

Legend has it that the sack does contain 960 francs—in lead coins and plugged francs, all worthless money which has found its way from France into the realms of the tiny republic. All of which may explain France's reluctance to accept that mysterious goatskin bag.

Michigan Breeds Herd of Pure Albino Deer

Detroit, Mich.—On Grand Island, a game refuge in Lake Superior, is a herd of partial and pure albino deer—the result of breeding from Albinos originally taken by capture. Men have previously bred albinism into various animals, as the white rats and mice, and domestic rabbits, but this experiment constitutes the first attempt at such selective breedings with any of the large mammals.

That which has been accomplished on Grand Island, and with comparative ease, is difficult of accomplishment in a state of nature where the albino is cruelly conspicuous and speedily hunted down by man or the hunting beasts.

There have been occasional reports of albino deer in Oregon. Always the white coat proves the animal's undoing. There is no rest until it is slain.

Drain Old Bog to Find Prehistoric Man's Relics

Saskatoon, Sask.—Fossil hunters of the Royal Ontario museum digging in an ancient bog near Dundurn, 25 miles south of here, for some trace of North American prehistoric man, have erected a diaphragm pump on an elevated platform beside the swamp.

Through a hose the water is drawn off each day. An unknown species of antelope, a quantity of buffalo bones and Indian relics have been found. It was believed the pool served as a watering place for man and beast thousands of years ago and that in the lower strata of its sand will be found the imprint of the unknown North American prehistoric man.

Student Loans Safe

Washington.—Loans granted to students on a character basis and for purposes of study are reported by the Harmon foundation to be good pay. More than 40 per cent of the $28,885 loaned to students during the year 1922-23 has been paid, though according to agreement only 29 per cent was due on February 1, 1925. The foundation reports that not a single account is likely to default.

Highs Tackle Lisbon In First Contest of County Campaign

Four Regulars and a Reserve Out of Tomorrow's Tilt; Affecting Principally the Backfield; County Seaters, Largely a Veteran Combine, Expected to Show Plenty of Speed and Probably Passing Attack.

East Liverpool high school griders tomorrow begin their offensive on the Columbiana county sector, playing at Lisbon, with the physical aspects of the squad geting worse with such celerity that Coach O. V. Boone, looking forward, not only to the Lisbon tilt but the game with Salem on the following Saturday, has visions of a Blue nad White lineup resembling very much the well known sieve.

No less than four members of the squad will be hors de combat when the team lines up tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock on the county seat gridiron.

McKim, guard, and P. Shaffer, quarter, injured recently; R. Shaffer, halfback, hurt in Saturday's game; Kinsey, guard, ill with influenza; and Todd, on the injured list are the quintet who will not don togs for the battle with the Lisbonites.

Todd is the latest addition to the hospital roster. During scrimmage session Wednesday evening he fractured a bone in one of his hands and it is quite possible that he will be cut for a couple of weeks, anyway.

And that's not all.

Next week the quintet will become septet when Guard Banks and Tackle Bough join the crowd. Both, according to Coach Boone, came out second best in a tussle with school work and they start their football loaf next week.

Todd's absence will not be felt so keenly, inasmuch as Dick Larkins will be on the job. But if Larkins should happen to be forced out of the game, then Boone will be up against it.

Boone will have two good ends on the job, in Perry and Elmer English, as well as a couple of hefty tackles, Bough and Hanes. The one guard post will be well taken care of by Banks, but the other must be tendered either J. Hall or Irwin, both recruits this year. And then there's Larkins at center.

Captain Paul English, as usual, will furnish the big punch in the backfield corps, with Reibel and Allison at halves. Either McCoy or Heddleston will take the quarter post.

The Blue and White will be pitted against a light, but exceptionally fast Lisbon team. Speed, unquestionably, will be shot at the locals in large quantities, with Hum, Neigh and Cornelli as the offensive stars. These three lads have made up three-fourths of the Lisbon eleven's backfield for something like three or four years, and they're getting to know their football pretty well. It would not be surprising, either, to see a strong aerial attack launched against the Ceramic City combine.

STATE EXPECTS TOUGH BATTLE

COLUMBUS, Oct. 23.—With a place in the 1925 Big Ten football sun at stake, each day serves to strengthen the conviction that Saturday's game here in the Ohio stadium between Ohio State and Iowa will be one of the outstanding duels of the season.

Iowa's win over Illinois last Saturday convinced Ohio State followers of at least three things: that the Hawkeyes are just as powerful as earlier reports made out, that they have a fighting combination that never gives up, and that in Kutsch, to say nothing of some of the veterans in the backfield, they have a player who will bear constant watching.

Again it will be a partially revamped Buckeye eleven which will start the game. Bill Jenkins, veteran tackle, who last Saturday missed his first game in two seasons, apparently is destined for the shelf for some weeks longer because of his leg injury. His place was ably filled last week in the Columbia game by Uriwil, who, by the weay, rails from Iowa. Uridil is much lighter and only a sophomore, but his aggressiveness helps to amend for his inexperience.

Elsewhere on the line, John Nichols, the other tackle, is still not in the best of shape. Klein, center, who was hurt on the first play of the Columbia game, is expected to be available again, along with Ullery who replaced him and who was hurt on the second play of the fray.

Makeup of the backfield is a bit uncertain. Last Saturday's combination, something of an emergency quarter, with the veterans Bill Hunt and "Windy" Wendler out of it, functioned pretty well. Wendler probably will be fit to play again but whether he breaks into the lineup is not so certain.

WEST VIRGINIA RIVALS CLASH

Both Mountaineers and Methodists are Confident.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Oct. 23.—Scarcity of "bear stories" on the eve of the annual West Virginia-West Virginia Wesleyan gridiron battle is a sure sign that both Mountaineers and Methodists are going to have the full strength of their squads available for the clash. If either team had any gloom to spread the public would soon be advised of the facts. The dearth of pessimistic propaganda means that Wesleyan is making no secret of the fact that it expects to win this year, while the Mountaineers are confident that they will be able to turn the Methodists back again. Everything points to a thrilling skirmish when the two elevens lineup in the stadium here Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Eight of the eleven men named in Wesleyan's probable lineup are out-of state students. The three West Virginia products expected to start are Everett Brinkman of Wheeling, Meek of Buckhannon and Bullington of Charleston. Brinkman is listed at left end and Meek and Bullington at the tackles.

Captain "Ree" King, Methodist fullback, is from Apollo, Pa. "Chick" Weihl, quarterback, is from Marietta, O.; "Buck" Kraus is from Akron, O., and the other fullback, "Brownie" Corcoran, a native of Mount Vernon, O.

The center, Scheib, played at Arthur Hill high, Saginaw, Mich., before martriculating at Wesleyan last fall, and the guards, Moore and Kemerer, did their prep work at Pennsylvania schools—Moore at Connellsville high and Kemerer at Duquesne. Dick Alvis, sturdy right end, claims East Liverpool, O., as his home town. All of the probable starters, except Bullington, were letter men at Wesleyan last year and played against West Virginia. When it is taken into consideration that veterans of the ability of Raschella, Garrity, Dietrich, DeLong, Trainer, Reiter and others will be on the bench at the kickoff some idea may be had of Wesleyan's strength.

Georgia Tech's victory over the always formidable Penn State team and its general makeup indicate that the southern team may still carry the name "Golden Tornado." Above, the coach and two leading stars of the Georgia Tech eleven.

CHICAGO-PENN. EAST'S BIG GAME

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—Chicago's invasion of the East, to meet Pennsylvania, is the high spot of tomorrow's football schedule.

Red and Blue supporters are confident that the eleven which sprang a big surprise last week by defeating Yale, will be too much for Chicago but Coach Lou Young has been quoted as declaring he expects the western eleven to furnish the toughest spot on Penn's schedule.

Yale journeys to Providence tomorrow to help Brown break in its new stadium. Rumors have filtered through that Brown will have other new things to show the Eli, notably some plays that are expected to bring about another Yale defeat.

Harvard is facing no pink tea in taking on Dartmouth at Cambridge. Dartmouth hasn't been scored against this year and had rolled up 199 points in crushing all opposition the Crimson supporters, none too happy after after last week's unexpected defeat by Holy Cross, are apprehensive of what may be in store for their eleven tomorrow.

Other big games in the East on Tomorrow's schedule are the Princeton-Colgate. Army-St. Louis and Columbia-Williams clashes.

PIRATES PART WITH PLAYERS

Bigbee, Moore and Culloton Traded in Deal.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 23.—Two heroes of the recent world series, Carson Bigbee and Eddie Moore, infielders, in addition to Bernard Culloton, pitcher, will be sent to the San Francisco Seals under terms of a deal which brings two Pacific Coast players to the Pittsburgh Pirates, it was reported here today.

Hal Rhyne and Paul Warner, youthful sluggers of the Seals, join the Pirates next season, the world champions having paid the San Francisco club $85,000 for their contracts, besides releasing three players to the Seals.

It was Bigbee's clout in the deciding game of the series with Washington that started the victorious rally in the late inning. He filled the utility role during the regular season, however, and got into the world series only as a pinch hitter.

READ THE CLASSIFIEDS.

This is the fifth of a series of articles by Davis J. Walsh on teams of the east and middle west. The others will follow daily.

By Davis J. Walsh.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 23.—"We're rotten," said Mr. Dobie, without parley, preamble or debate.

One of these times, some team is going to beat Cornell by a score of 56 to 0 and Mr. Dobie will be substantiated in every respect. With good will toward all and favor toward none, the writer hopes this condition of affairs will transpire with all due haste. He has become a bit wearied of Mr. Dobie's phobia, so to speak.

As a matter of fundamental fact, Cornell is neither good nor goshawful. It is just like a young fellow trying to get along.

Of the eleven men who start a football game up this way, seven are sophomores. Mr. Dobie, with his customary eye for detail, is looking ahead. For the moment, he has one good tackle and that is almost enough. Give Mr. Dobie a tackle who knows his business on attack and you usually give him a shotgun with the muzzle pointed in the general direction of somewhere.

"I am sorroy I have a captain," Dobie has been quoted as saying. "Otherwise, I would have only ten men to pick."

This, to the writer, is so much malarky, in view of the fact that the captain in question is Kearney, rated as one of the best tackles in this section last year. They do say, however, that one Baird would have had Kearney's job this year if Kearney hadn't been captain of the outfit. You can give this story what it may be worth, or even less.

The significant fact is that Kearney has started all of the games to date with Hill is a running mate and Baird in reserve. They say that Evens, who has been hurt, is another good tackle.

All of those mentioned, with the exception of Kearney, are sophomores. Other second year men on the Varsity team are Carey, guard; Rapuno, center; Courtright, end and Gassner, Butterfield, Islay and Rosenberg, backs.

By and large, they make quite a football team and Cornell, with its usual shock absorbing schedule, should coast right along to the Pennsylvania game, where it will cease to coast quite abruptly and without further notice.

Dobie expects to lose to Pennsylvania this year, which is nothing unusual. He expects to lose to everybody and sometimes he is right. However, the chances are good at this moment that Cornell will not lose by three touchdowns as it did in 1924, in spite of the ineligibility of Molient, its star plunger.

Its ends, Eddy and Fennell, are experienced but not as good as the 1924 pair. The tackles are better. So are the guards, with Munns, the best man in the center of the 1924 line, still holding forth.

Affeld was a right good center last year, but the boys say he has finished second to Rapuno thus far this season. This either makes Rapuno a remarkable center or the boys remarkable fabricators.

The backfield punch is supplied by Wesser at quarterback with his kicking, running and passing. He was in the 1924 combination and is quite a worthy youth. Islay, Gassner, Carpenter, Fratt, Butterfield, Rosenberg, Hand, Robinhood, Sinclair, Trefts and others also take a whirl at the backfield game.

None of them are really good, none of them are really bad. Even Mr. Dobie would agree with this statement if he wasn't Mr. Dobie.

"Still Strikes" Now Popular in Paris; Many Cases Cited

PARIS—"Still strikes" are becoming very popular in Paris.

Only recently the "Allo girls" sat still at their switchboards and let their call-lights burn brightly for a period of two hours. Telephone clients were helpless. On the same day the telegraph operators and messenger boys let the dispatches pile up on their desks and cared little for the people anxiously awaiting important news. The employes wanted more pay and this is the French was of demonstrating.

Next were the bakers, announcing they would close their shops for two hours. Like the others, this was not a strike, but a gentle intimation of dissatisfaction in regard to their hours.

The butchers don't like their slaughterage tax which the wholesale dealers make them pay and have announced their intentions of passing it on to the consumers. These "still strikes" are much less dangerous than a deal of mudslinging and breaking of windows and perhaps do just as much good in the settlement of differences.

Soviet Government Takes Steps to Build Up Merchant Marine

MOSCOW—First steps in the program for building up a Soviet merchant marine were taken here with the appropriation of $10,000,000 to start construction of 31 steamers. Orders have already been given to the Leningrad Shipbuilding trust, the State Machinery trust and the yards in Nikolaev, Sebastopol and Odessa, to begin work upon the new vessels.

Eighteen of them will go into the State Merchant marine for service on the high seas, two will be assigned to the Naphtha syndicate, and 11 will be devoted to the Caspian fleet.

TO MARK GRAVE OF "APPLESEED"

Fort Wayne to Honor Man Who Planted First Nursery in West.

Washington.—The chamber of commerce at Fort Wayne, Ind., has instructed a committee to locate, mark and make accessible to the public the grave of Johnny Appleseed. This action on the part of the business men of Fort Wayne arouses public interest again in a man whom Secretary Sherman once described as "one of the most striking figures this republic has ever produced."

In 1847 a representative from Ohio, on the floor of the house of representatives, announced the death of "an old man who has done more for the West than any other man of his era." He alluded to John Chapman, popularly and affectionately known as Johnny Appleseed, who planted orchards and nurseries in the wilderness of Ohio and Indiana in advance of civilization.

Meager knowledge of Johnny Appleseed rests chiefly on tradition and legend. He was born in Springfield, Mass., in 1775, the year the embattled farmers stood by the rude bridge and "fired the shot heard round the world." Johnny's half-sister, who went West long after he did, said that when he was a boy he was fond of nature; he loved the flowers and the birds and the animals, and on summer nights he would lie on his back for hours gazing up into the starry heavens.

Disappointed in Love.

Why John Chapman left his native state to wander in the Western wilderness is one of the mysteries of his life. It has been a fertile but futile subject of speculation for generations among poets, novelists and historians. A tradition says it was disappointed love which drove him from his neighbors and friends and relatives in the Old Bay state; and this belief has the very faint support of the fact that Chapman never married.

He appeared as a wanderer in the valley of the Potomac in 1799. The following summer he was in western Pennsylvania. One day in the fall of 1800 a woman living on the banks of the Ohio river near Steubenville saw a crazy-looking craft floating down the stream. It consisted of two canoes lashed together, heavily loaded with bags and piloted by a barefooted, oddly dressed man wearing a broad-brimmed hat.

It was John Chapman with a cargo of apple seeds which he had gathered from the cider presses of Pennsylvania. He told the woman he was on his way into the wilderness to plant nurseries in advance of the pioneers. "My mission in life," he told her, "is to have apple trees ready for the settlers when they come."

Physically Johnny Appleseed was a man of medium height and spare build. The generosity and sincerity of the blameless soul within were reflected in his soft blue eyes. Had it not been for his clownish garments he would have been a handsome man; but it was his conviction that man should not clothe himself for show but only to cover his nakedness. He was not an ignorant or illiterate man; his conversation bore the marks of the good reading and education he had received in his youth. He was of a meditative and deeply religious turn of mind, professing himself a disciple of Emmanuel Swedenborg, whose teachings he had somewhat, perhaps unconsciously, modified to suit his own convictions. His two missions in life were to make converts to his religion and to plant apple trees in the wilderness.

First Nursery in Ohio.

His first nursery, so far as known, was in a narrow valley along the Ohio, opposite what is now Wellsburg W. Va. Later he penetrated the interior of Ohio, and for years his chief field of operations was along the Muskingum and its tributaries. He went westward as far as eastern Indiana as civilization moved in that direction. It is estimated that this eccentric man set out more than one hundred nurseries in the forest. Many of the finest orchards in the early days of Ohio and Indiana were composed of trees bought from Johnny Appleseed, the patron saint of American orchards.

Equipped with an ax, a hatchet and a Virginia hoe, he would seek out a protected spot among the trees near a stream; there he would dig up the soil until it was thoroughly pulverized and plant several thousand apple, peach and pear seeds. Then, after building a brush fence around the infant nursery to keep away deer and other grazing animals, the pioneer orchardist would continue his journey until he found another suitable place for a nursery.

Settlers Find Fruit Trees.

When the settlers arrived from the East they found fruit trees waiting for them, to be bought for practically nothing. A "fippenny bit," which was worth about one-sixteenth of a Spanish dollar, was the customary price for a tree. But if the pioneer had no money, if he could not afford the fippenny bit, he got his trees anyway, either on credit or in exchange for a few old clothes which Johnny Appleseed was only too glad to get. Fortunately, there is still in existence a piece of paper containing some of Johnny Appleseed's writing. It reads as follows: "Due John Oliver one hundred and fifty trees when he goes for them to some of my nurseries on Mohican waters. John Chapman."

The trail is marked for its entire length by posts made of willow trees, sunk deep into the ground. Nearly every post has sprouted out and grown into a large tree. Every now and then along the route native characters and English words denote distances from various camps and villages. The important cannery towns of Togiak and Nushagak are situated along the marked trail.

The long willow guide highway was built something after the poll tax system. Each summer any native traveling along the route was expected to set as many willow posts as his time might permit. Often for small offenses natives were fined to set willow posts.

Today the willow lined trail serves during summer for a mail route and a stage line follows its circuitous wandering. But in mid-winter when the snow lies deep the dog sledges are always certain of the location by the silver coated willow branches, and the leader dogs instinctively know that to follow the tree lined trail means a sure and swift end of the journey.

Oldest Republic in World Without Taxes

Paris.—One country which is not worried by the tax question is Andorra, the oldest and smallest republic in the world. It lies deep in the heart of the Pyrenees between the French and Spanish claims of that range.

Besides knowing no taxes it knows nothing about bathtubs, automobiles, radios, jazz bands, "complexes" and wars. It maintains an "army" of only six soldiers, one for each village, "in case of aggression."

The ledgers of the French ministry of finance each year charge Andorra 9000 (about $50) as a levy originally laid by Louis le Debonnaire. Each year before the mule trails close for the winter, the French collector goes on his annual visit to Andorra to demand 960 francs.

The councillors deliberate seriously as to whether they shall make the contribution, and then, with staged reluctance, hand over a heavy and worn goatskin sack.

Legend has it that the sack does contain 960 francs—in lead coins and plugged francs, all worthless money which has found its way from France into the realms of the tiny republic. All of which may explain France's reluctance to accept that mysterious goatskin bag.

Michigan Breeds Herd of Pure Albino Deer

Detroit, Mich.—On Grand Island, a game refuge in Lake Superior, is a herd of partial and pure albino deer—the result of breeding from Albinos originally taken by capture. Men have previously bred albinism into various animals, as the white rats and mice, and domestic rabbits, but this experiment constitutes the first attempt at such selective breedings with any of the large mammals.

That which has been accomplished on Grand Island, and with comparative ease, is difficult of accomplishment in a state of nature where the albino is cruelly conspicuous and speedily hunted down by man or the hunting beasts.

There have been occasional reports of albino deer in Oregon. Always the white coat proves the animal's undoing. There is no rest until it is slain.

Drain Old Bog to Find Prehistoric Man's Relics

Saskatoon, Sask.—Fossil hunters of the Royal Ontario museum digging in an ancient bog near Dundurn, 25 miles south of here, for some trace of North American prehistoric man, have erected a diaphragm pump on an elevated platform beside the swamp.

Through a hose the water is drawn off each day. An unknown species of antelope, a quantity of buffalo bones and Indian relics have been found. It was believed the pool served as a watering place for man and beast thousands of years ago and that in the lower strata of its sand will be found the imprint of the unknown North American prehistoric man.

Student Loans Safe

Washington.—Loans granted to students on a character basis and for purposes of study are reported by the Harmon foundation to be good pay. More than 40 per cent of the $26,385 loaned to students during the year 1922-23 has been paid, though according to agreement only 29 per cent was due on February 1, 1925. The foundation reports that not a single account is likely to default.

"EQUINOCTIAL" STORM A MYTH, SAYS OBSERVER

EXPLAINS BELIEF

WASHINGTON.—In the old school days you learned about "equinotical storms" at this time of the year? They are a myth and have no standing in meteorology, according to a statement today by the American Nature association. This will shock thousands who have carried from school days some hazy information about "equinoctial storms,' such as caught the Shennandoah. They are line squalls.

"No maximum of storm frequency found, according to statistics, either in this country or in Europe, close to the date of either equinox," according to the American Nature association, which publishes an extended statement on the point in Nature Magazine, by C. F. Talman, of the United States Weather Bureau.

"Of course, in the long run many storms do occur about these dates, just as they occur at all other times," the writer points out, "but there is no scientific reason for supposing their occurrence can be connected in any way with the sun's passage over what the schoolboy described as a 'menagerie lion running around the earth.'"

An "equinotical" is looked for in the United States particularly in the Autumn. The Autumnal equinox occurs during the season of West India hurricanes, and it occasionolly happens that storms of this character sweep up our eastern seaboard within a week or two of the date in question, extending their influence far inland. These events have probably helped to foster the widespread belief in an Autumnal equinoctial storm.

"The Shenandoah was caught in a line squall," the statement continues. "A balloon or aeroplane would not have been exposed to similar strain and would probably have weathered the gale.

"In fact, part of the wrecked airship, containing some of the gas bags, was wafted to earth twelve miles from the scene of the disaster, carrying several members of the crew to a safe landing.

"The squal that caused this tragedy of the air takes its place in the catalog of historic storms. It brought to general knowledge the fact, previously little realized except by weathermen and airmen, that storms can wreak their fury by blowing vertically as well as horizontally. It also naturalized the term 'line-squall' in the popular vocabulary.

"Violent upward and downward movements of the air prevail in all squalls and thunderstorms. This fact has been known for many years, but it has only recently assumed practical importance. Formerly only the birds and occasional balloonist were whirled aloft or dashed downward by vertical gales, but today such gales threatend the lives of an army of aeronauts.

"Squalls, like tornadoes, are of such brief duration and generally of such limited area that they defy prediction by means of the ordinary machinery of weather forecasting.

Big Wind in 1839.

"As to storms, the 'Big Wind in Ireland,' January 6-7, 1839, according to contemporary newspaper accounts, was one of the great weather disasters of modern times.

"The 'Great Storm' of 1793 is supposed to have been the most severe tempest that ever visited the British isles. It cost the lives of more than 8,000 seamen, including some 1,500 men of the Royal Navy.

"The Barbados Hurricane of 1780 was probably the most destructive hurricane that has occurred in the West Indies.

PREMIER KATO REAL FIGHTER, JAPAN LEARNS

Prime Minister Proves Raging Lion When Aroused.

FOES SURPRISED

Fights for Tax Reforms; Prince Regent Supports Him.

TOKIO—Japanese politicians and observers of Japanese politics are beginning to suspect that, beneath the benign exterior of Viscount Takakira Kato, the prime minister, there lurks the spirit of a valiant fighter.

Several leaders of opposition political parties have had occasion very recently to observe that Premier Kato is a lamb—up to a certain point. Beyond that point he is a raging lion. And withal, they have learned, he is not to be sneezed at as a political tactician.

It became evident several months ago, when Gen. Baron Giichi Tanaka resigned from the army to become leader of the Seiyukai party, that the end of the coalition government, composed of the Kenseikai, Seiyukai and Kakushin club and headed by Premier Kato, was in sight. It was recognized that Gen. Tanaka had political ambitions that would make continued cooperation between his party and the Kenseikai, of which the premier is the leader, very difficult.

What the ambitious opposition leaders fondly hoped—and expected—would happen was that the coalition cabinet would collapse, Premier Kato would pass from office and a new government composed of stalwarts of the opposition would come into being. On July 31 a part of this came to pass when the coalition cabinet resigned after an tempestuous discussion of taxation policies. The rest of the program, like the "best laid plans o' mice and men," went decidedly "agley." Viscount Kato is still prime minister of Japan and it would be very difficult to foretell when his tenure of office will end.

When the dispute over Premier Kato's taxation reform proposals arose in the cabinet, the prime minister patiently endeavored through several red-hot cabinet sessions, to persuade his Seiyukai colleagues to accept his point of view. It was when he realized that this was impossible that the lamb-like premier turned lion. He forced the issue, long impending, by demanding that the recalcitrant Seiyukai ministers resign.

The Seiyukai ministers and their party leaders wer astonished. They had not expected temerity or such decisive action from the premier. They angrily refused to tender the demanded resignations.

This refusal, under the Japanese system, compelled Premier Kato to offer to the prince regent the resignation o fthe entire cabinet. This he promptly did and almost as promptly the prince regent reappointed Viscount Kato to the premiership. Kato appointed three members of his own party to fill the portfolios previously held by the Seiyukai and resumed business at the same old stand with an all Kenseikai ministry.

It was good political tactics on the part of Premier Kato to force the issue as he did. By so doing he was able to place the Seiyukai party in the position of opposing taxation reforms and economies which undoubtedly are popular with the country. All informed observers admit that he outmaneuvered Gen. Tanaka, the Seiyukai chieftain.

The tactical battle did not end, however, with the reconstruction of the cabinet. In breaking with the Seiyukai, Premier Kato lost what was ostensibly a working majority in the lower house of the diet. To offset this, he immediately began negotiations for an alliance with the Kenkyukai, the strongest party in the house of peers. These negotiations were fruitful and several of the leading members of the Kenkyukai accepted appointments as parliamentary vice-ministers in the Kato cabinet. Thus the Kato ministry virtually dominates the house of peers which, despite certain rather innocuous measures passed by the last diet, is still a powerful factor in Japanese legislative circles.

Aged Colored Woman Awarded Pension By U. S. Government

After the Civil war the heroine of this tale moved to Lawrenceburg, Indiana, where she married. In 1892 her husband died. She then moved to Dayton, Ohio, and married Private William H. Atkinson, Company A, 9th regiment, U. S. A., Negro infantry. He died in 1901 and she married a Spanish War veteran seven years later. He died in 1924.

Mrs. Atkinson applied for a pension as the widow of Private Atkinson, after it was discovered that her husband had neglected the little formality of divorcing a wife in Florida before marrying her.

One in Every 78 Owns Machine in England; Statistics Computed

LONDON — England now has one automobile to every 78 inhabitants, according to the latest statistics, compared to one for every 11 inhabitants in the United States. This number, however, does not include commercial and public vehicles, which bring the total to over 1,500,000 motor vehicles.

"Critica" to Open New Newspaper Plant in City of Buenos Ayres

BUENOS AYRES — Critica, one of the leading South American newspapers and having the largest circulation of any newspaper south of the Mason-Dixon line, has purchased extensive new quarters on the Avenido Mayo, one of the principal streets of Buenos Ayres. The new property is now being remodelled to meet the needs of Critica and will be occupied by the newspaper next spring.

New Hoe presses and a new electrotyping plant, with new modern machinery throughout, are being installed. When the plant is completed it will be one of the best equipped and most modern newspaper plants in the world. Senor Natalia Botana will continue as director of Critica and Enrique Noriega will continue as business manager, in the new quarters.

"Still Strikes" Now Popular in Paris; Many Cases Cited

PARIS—"Still strikes" are becoming very popular in Paris.

Only recently the "Allo girls" sat still at their switchboards and let their call-lights burn brightly for a period of two hours. Telephone clients were helpless. On the same day the telegraph operators and messenger boys let the dispatches pile up on their desks and cared little for the people anxiously awaiting important news. The employes wanted more pay and this is the French was of demonstrating.

Next were the bakers, announcing they would close their shops for two hours. Like the others, this was not a strike, but a gentle intimation of dissatisfaction in regard to their hours.

The butchers don't like their slaughterage tax which the wholesale dealers make them pay and have announced their intentions of passing it on to the consumers. These "still strikes" are much less dangerous than a deal of mudslinging and breaking of windows and perhaps do just as much good in the settlement of differences.

Soviet Government Takes Steps to Build Up Merchant Marine

MOSCOW—First steps in the program for building up a Soviet merchant marine were taken here with the appropriation of $10,000,000 to start construction of 31 steamers. Orders have already been given to the Leningrad Shipbuilding trust, the State Machinery trust and the yards in Nikolaev, Sebastopol and Odessa, to begin work upon the new vessels.

Eighteen of them will go into the State Merchant marine for service on the high seas, two will be assigned to the Naphtha syndicate, and 11 will be devoted to the Caspian fleet.

SURRENDER

The Story Of A Girl Who Dared

By Edgar Poe Norris

CHAPTER 76.

Always the weakness of a woman is her heart. Amoura Ainsley, reading Tommy Loughley's letter, had an irrepressible desire to see him. The note was brief enough:

"I'm leaving Chicago tomorrow for an automobile trip east, and I'm plotting my course through Westland in the hope that I shall be able to see you. I imagine, and hope, that you have recovered from your amazing experience. I endeavored to see you after I learned of your release, but you had gone. Sincerely, Tommy."

In spite of herself, by one of those inexplicable impulses, out of that inertia produced by a heart bereft and fatigued, she felt a strange, listless attraction toward Tommy Loughley. She wanted to see him, to see the glint in his eyes. She assuredly did not love him; the idea that she might have become his wife seemed to her fantastic. Yet, the thought of seeing this young man, toward whom she felt so indifferent, did give her a kind of satisfaction which she involuntarily enjoyed.

The thought of Tommy naturally brought Vey Ardle to mind, for in her memory-box the shapes of the two lay together. Why hadn't Vey written her? She tried to tell herself that she didn't care. That last evening of theirs. . . . . She wondered how Vey felt, remembering that he had left her at five o'clock in temper because she had tolerated Dulcays' exagerated attentions, when he read the details that same day, or the next, of the kidnaping? And no word from him since then—from the one who had told her so thrillingly: "I don't know your name, or anything about you, but I do know that I love you."

"You look tired, Amoura, dear," said the elder woman, looking up from a volume of Henley's poems.

"I'm not, mother. Tommy Loughley, a young man with whom I became good friends in Chicago, is driving through Westland—tomorrow, I suppose. I'd like to have him come to dinner."

"Very well." Mrs. Ainsley regarded her daughter doubtfully. "What sort of young man is he?" She was thinking of Johnson.

Amoura, discerning her mother's mind, smiled. "Oh, he's very nice. I met him at Cicely Swiftson's house party." She wondered what her mother would say if she was told, "He proposed to me the first time we met."

The mistress of the house, who had done no entertaining since Amoura's disappearance, was pleased at the prospect of seeing someone besides her own family at the dinner table. "Tell Hinton today what you want served. I'd like to suggest canard a la Pertinset. Your father likes it, and I'm sure Hinton can obtain some nice ducks.'

Amoura, eyes sparkling, said: "Let's have a litle French dinner. It'll surprise Tommy to know that there is such a good French cook in the provinces. In Chicago they have the idea, I guess, that down here we feed on corn pone and salt bacon. Chicago is a barbaric Babylon, you know, but they look upon us as quite uncivilized."

Mrs. Ainsley's mind was not upon her daughter's small talk. She was wondering about this young man from Chicago. Was he in love with Amoura? Intuitively, she was afraid. Amoura, with Philip Weinrich lost, might be foolish enough to marry any young man who asked her. Mrs. Ainsley was worried.

"We can have, besides canard a la Pertinset, pommes de terre a la creme, chouficur au beurre noir, salade beaucaire, peches au vin. . . . Don't things sound wonderfully good to eat in French? Duck, creamed potatoes, cauliflower, celery salad, peaches in wine—in English they're so commonplace."

Mrs. Ainsley pretended to be chiefly occupied with her book, but she was watching Amoura furtively. Was her daughter gayly concealing a broken heart?

"I'm going down the street and see what I can get to wear. I haven't a decent gown to my name."

"Someone was saying that Venier's has some new importations," her mother confided.

"Probably copies made for all the department stores in the land, but I have to have something."

The joy of buying, of commanding sales people and of smiling disdainfully at the few models with which Venier's attempted to be "Parisian," plunged Amoura into a buying orgy. When she returned to Ainsley house late in the afternoon, the chauffeur followed her through the portal laden with boxes.

Her mother witnessed the opening of the packages by Della. There was a reproduction of a Jean Patou creation, a gown of heavy, deep red crepe, with a line given by a wrapped girdle over which the bodice bloused slightly.

"You always look well in red," Mrs. Ainsley commented. It heightens your color, which is none too good, as you must know."

There was another gown, looking like the work of Lanvin, gleaming gold and light brown providing a background for the complexion that was "none too good."

The frocks, the pick of Veiner's collection, were a delight to the eye. One had all its movement massed in front, and a plain back; the material was green brocade, embroidered discreetly with green and strass stones. Another frock was a black crepe bordered with patterned gold, wifth green collar and belt.

Besides the gowns and frocks there were two hats, two pairs of pumps in tones appropriate to the gowns, and a lounging robe.

"I simply must have a new coat. Venier's haven't a thing I'd wear," Amoura commented.

"A rather colorful assortment," Mrs. Ainsley decided, looking over the contents of the packages again. "Just the very thing for your work in Stone street."

Amoura looked up, puzzled. "Mother, you don't believe I'm serious about working down there. I'm going to show you."

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

"EQUINOCTIAL" STORM A MYTH, SAYS OBSERVER

EXPLAINS BELIEF

WASHINGTON.—In the old school days you learned about "equinotical storms" at this time of the year? They are a myth and have no standing in meteorology, according to a statement today by the American Nature association. This will shock thousands who have carried from school days some hazy information about "equinoctial storms,' such as caught the Shennandoah. They are line squalls.

"No maximum of storm frequency found, according to statistics, either in this country or in Europe, close to the date of either equinox," according to the American Nature association, which publishes an extended statement on the point in Nature Magazine, by C. F. Talman, of the United States Weather Bureau.

"Of course, in the long run many storms do occur about these dates, just as they occur at all other times," the writer points out, "but there is no scientific reason for supposing their occurrence can be connected in any way with the sun's passage over what the schoolboy described as a 'menagerie lion running around the earth.'"

An "equinotical" is looked for in the United States particularly in the Autumn. The Autumnal equinox occurs during the season of West India hurricanes, and it occasionolly happens that storms of this character sweep up our eastern seaboard within a week or two of the date in question, extending their influence far inland. These events have probably helped to foster the widespread belief in an Autumnal equinoctial storm.

"The Shenandoah was caught in a line squall," the statement continues. "A balloon or aeroplane would not have been exposed to simliar strain and would probably have weathered the gale.

"In fact, part of the wrecked airship, containing some of the gas bags, was wafted to earth twelve miles from the scene of the disaster, carrying several members of the crew to a safe landing.

"The squal that caused this tragedy of the air takes its place in the catalog of historic storms. It brought to general knowledge the fact, previously little realized except by weathermen and airmen, that storms can wreak their fury by blowing vertically as well as horizontally. It also naturalized the term 'line-squall' in the popular vocabulary.

"Violent upward and downward movements of the air prevail in all squalls and thunderstorms. This fact has been known for many years, but it has only recently assumed practical importance. Formerly only the birds and occasional balloonist were whirled aloft or dashed downward by vertical gales, but today such gales threatend the lives of an army of aeronauts.

"Squalls, like tornadoes, are of such brief duration and generally of such limited area that they defy prediction by means of the ordinary machinery of weather forecasting.

Big Wind in 1839.

"As to storms, the 'Big Wind in Ireland,' January 6-7, 1839, according to contemporary newspaper accounts, was one of the great weather disasters of modern times.

"The 'Great Storm' of 1793 is supposed to have been the most severe tempest that ever visited the British isles. It cost the lives of more than 8,000 seamen, including some 1,500 men of the Roval Navy.

"The Barbados Hurricane of 1780 was probably the most destructive hurricane that has occurred in the West Indies.

PREMIER KATO REAL FIGHTER, JAPAN LEARNS

Prime Minister Proves Raging Lion When Aroused.

FOES SURPRISED

Fights for Tax Reforms; Prince Regent Supports Him.

TOKIO—Japanese politicians and observers of Japanese politics are beginning to suspect that, beneath the benign exterior of Viscount Takakira Kato, the prime minister, there lurks the spirit of a valiant fighter.

Several leaders of opposition political parties have had occasion very recently to observe that Premier Kato is a lamb—up to a certain point. Beyond that point he is a raging lion. And withal, they have learned, he is not to be sneezed at as a political tactician.

It became evident several months ago, when Gen. Baron Giichi Tanaka resigned from the army to become leader of the Seiyukai party, that the end of the coalition government, composed of the Kenseikai, Seiyukai and Kakushin club and headed by Premier Kato, was in sight. It was recognized that Gen. Tanaka had political ambitions that would make continued cooperation between his party and the Kenseikai, of which the premier is the leader, very difficult.

What the ambitious opposition leaders fondly hoped—and expected — would happen was that the coalition cabinet would collapse, Premier Kato would pass from office and a new government composed of stalwarts of the opposition would come into being. On July 31 a part of this came to pass when the coalition cabinet resigned after an tempestuous discussion of taxation policies. The rest of the program, like the "best laid plans o' mice and men," went decidedly "agley." Viscount Kato is still prime minister of Japan and it would be very difficult to foretell when his tenure of office will end.

When the dispute over Premier Kato's taxation reform proposals arose in the cabinet, the prime minister patiently endeavored through several red-hot cabinet sessions, to persuade his Seiyukai colleagues to accept his point of view. It was when he realized that this was impossible that the lamb-like premier turned lion. He forced the issue, long impending, by demanding that the recalcitrant Seiyukai ministers resign.

The Seiyukai ministers and their party leaders wer astonished. They had not expected temerity or such decisive action from the premier. They angrily refused to tender the demanded resignations.

This refusal, under the Japanese system, compelled Premier Kato to offer to the prince regent the resignation o fthe entire cabinet. This he promptly did and almost as promptly the prince regent reappointed Viscount Kato to the premiership. Kato appointed three members of his own party to fill the portfolios previously held by the Seiyukai and resumed business at the same old stand with an all Kenseikai ministry.

It was good political tactics on the part of Premier Kato to force the issue as he did. By so doing he was able to place the Seiyukai party in the position of opposing taxation reforms and economies which undoubtedly are popular with the country. All informed observers admit that he outmaneuvered Gen. Tanaka, the Seiyukai chieftain.

The tactical battle did not end, however, with the reconstruction of the cabinet. In breaking with the Seiyukai, Premier Kato lost what was ostensibly a working majority in the lower house of the diet. To offset this, he immediately began negotiations for an alliance with the Kenkyukai, the strongest party in the house of peers. These negotiations were fruitful and several of the leading members of the Kenkyukai accepted appointments as parliamentary vice-ministers in the Kato cabinet. Thus the Kato ministry virtually dominates the house of peers which, despite certain rather innocuous measures passed by the last diet, is still a powerful factor in Japanese legislative circles.

Aged Colored Woman Awarded Pension By U. S. Government

TIN TOWN, Montgomery county, O. —After years of poverty and struggle, a beautiful sunset glow is illuminating the last days of an old negro "mammy" here.

The old negress has just received a government check for $2,572.17 for back pensions at $30 for nearly 25 years.

After the Civil war the heroine of this tale moved to Lawrenceburg, Indiana, where she married. In 1892 her husband died. She then moved to Dayton, Ohio, and married Private William H. Atkinson, Company A, 9th regiment, U. S. A., Negro infantry. He died in 1901 and she married a Spanish War veteran seven years later. He died in 1924.

Mrs. Atkinson applied for a pension as the widow of Private Atkinson, after it was discovered that her husband had neglected the little formality of divorcing a wife in Florida before marrying her.

One in Every 78 Owns Machine in England; Statistics Computed

LONDON — England now has one automobile to every 78 inhabitants, according to the latest statistics, compared to one for every 11 inhabitants in the United States. This number, however, does not include commercial and public vehicles, which bring the total to over 1,500,000 motor vehicles.

"Critica" to Open New Newspaper Plant in City of Buenos Ayres

BUENOS AYRES — Critica, one of the leading South American newspapers and having the largest circulation of any newspaper south of the Mason-Dixon line, has purchased extensive new quarters on the Avenido Mayo, one of the principal streets of Buenos Ayres. The new property is now being remodelled to meet the needs of Critica and will be occupied by the newspaper next spring.

New Hoe presses and a new electrotyping plant, with new modern machinery throughout, are being installed. When the plant is completed it will be one of the best equipped and most modern newspaper plants in the world. Senor Natalia Botana will continue as director of Critica and Enrique Noriega will continue as business manager, in the new quarters.

SHOWS THAT WINDS BLOW UP AND DOWN

Accident to Shenandoah Due to Vertical Blast.

Washington.—That winds blow up and down as well as horizontally was forcibly brought home to many people for the first time by the destruction of the Shenandoah. Far from being unusual, such "vertical winds" lie at the heart of some of our best-known weather phenomena, according to a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Every flash of lightning that you see, or that you hear as thunder, and every pellet of hail that falls is probably due to a 'vertical wind,'" says the bulletin. "These are the fruits of rather violent upward and downward blasts. If you consider as well the gentler rising and falling currents—the 'vertical breezes,' let us say—you must take pretty much the whole field of weather for your sphere.

Important Weather Factor.

"Practically every surface wind, whatever be its direction or speed, is moving along to replace air which has risen. Clouds, too, are built by rising air. The elusive little circles on weather maps that denote 'lows' and 'highs' are in final analysis the representation of upward and downward air currents. Where cold air from the upper regions flows down it compresses the surface atmosphere and produces a 'high'; where the air, because of heat, is rising, it relieves the pressure and forms a 'low.' Most weather phenomena are due to the interplay of forces between 'highs' and 'lows,' which bring in their train changes in wind, temperature and humidity.

"The most spectacular of the effects of 'vertical' winds are thunderstorms. As the tracer bullet marks the flight of projectiles for a marksman, so the great, towering 'thunder head' marks the upward rush of the invisible wind. Often these thunder clouds may be seen growing before one's eye. Seldom is the growth slow and orderly. More often it is violent, and the upsurging clouds appear to boil madly. Thunderstorms are usually local affairs and the wind that has rushed upward must come quickly earthward again to restore the atmospheric balance. In the rear of thunderstorms, therefore, strong downward currents are usually encountered. It was such an upward and then downward rush of air, apparently, that played an important part in the destruction of the Shenandoah.

Where Lightning Comes From

"Until comparatively recently the origin of the tremendous charges of electricity in a thunderstorm baffled science. Now it is pretty generally believed that they are caused by the upward gusts of air—that these are in truth the dynamos of the sky. The building up of the electrical charges is supposed to be brought about by the gusts blasting raindrops to pieces, the smaller fragments carrying negative charges upward while the large droplets with positive charges remain behind. Hostile forces are established and when the strain becomes too great it is relieved by a lightning flash. When the negatively charged upper cloud floats away before the strain is relieved the flash is to the earth.

"'Vertical winds' are also credited with the production of hail, and their onionlike structure bears out the theory. Raindrops carried upward by the less violent gusts, according to this hypothesis, are frozen in the cold upper air. Sinking in the boiling cloud, they acquire more moisture on the lower levels and are again carried to the freezing region. On the number of skyward trips made before they escape from the boiling cloud and fall earthward depends the size of the hailstones."

NEW HIGH SCHOOL FOR MIDLAND

Contracts were let this week for the new $350,000 Midland high school building.

All the contracts were let for the building with the exception of the auditorium. The board of education holds the option to accept the bids on the auditorium within 90 days. This gives time to put over the extra bond issue necessary to raise money enough to complete this part of the school building.

Lowest bidders received the contract in every case according to T. A. Holland, president of the board, with the total bid let, including heating and ventilating, amounted to $219,000, making $31,000 less to raise on the bond issue for the auditorium than had been expected.

SURRENDER

The Story Of A Girl Who Dared

By Edgar Doe Norris

CHAPTER 78.

Always the weakness of a woman is her heart. Amoura Ainsley, reading Tommy Loughley's letter, had an irrepressible desire to see him. The note was brief enough:

"I'm leaving Chicago tomorrow for an automobile trip east, and I'm plotting my course through Westland in the hope that I shall be able to see you. I imagine, and hope, that you have recovered from your amazing experience. I endeavored to see you after I learned of your release, but you had gone. Sincerely, Tommy."

In spite of herself, by one of those inexplicable impulses, out of that inerta produced by a heart bereft and fatigued, she felt a strange, listless attraction toward Tommy Loughley. She wanted to see him, to see the glint in his eyes. She assuredly did not love him; the idea that she might have become his wife seemed to her fantastic. Yet, the thought of seeing this young man, toward whom she felt so indifferent, did give her a kind of satisfaction which she involuntarily enjoyed.

The thought of Tommy naturally brought Vey Ardle to mind, for in her memory-box the shapes of the two lay together. Why hadn't Vey written her? She tried to tell herself that she didn't care. That last evening of theirs. . . . She wondered how Vey felt, remembering that he had left her at five o'clock in temper because she had tolerated Dulcays' exagerated attentions, when he read the details that same day, or the next, of the kidnaping? And no word from him since then—from the one who had told her so thrillingly: "I don't know your name, or anything about you, but I do know that I love you."

"You look tired, Amoura, dear," said the elder woman, looking up from a volume of Henley's poems.

"I'm not, mother. Tommy Loughley, a young man with whom I became good friends in Chicago, is driving through Westland—tomorrow, I suppose. I'd like to have him come to dinner."

"Very well." Mrs. Ainsley regarded her daughter doubtfully. "What sort of young man is he?" She was thinking of Johnson.

Amoura, discerning her mother's mind, smiled. "Oh, he's very nice. I met him at Cicely Swiftson's house party." She wondered what her mother would say if she was told, "He proposed to me the first time we met."

The mistress of the house, who had done no entertaining since Amoura's disappearance, was pleased at the prospect of seeing someone besides her own family at the dinner table. "Tell Hinton today what you want served. I'd like to suggest canard a la Pertinset. Your father likes it, and I'm sure Hinton can obtain some nice ducks.'

Amoura, eyes sparkling, said: "Let's have a litle French dinner. It'll surprise Tommy to know that there is such a good French cook in the provinces. In Chicago they have the idea, I guess, that down here we feed on corn pone and salt bacon. Chicago is a barbaric Babylon, you know, but they look upon us as quite uncivilized."

Mrs. Ainsley's mind was not upon her daughter's small talk. She was wondering about this young man from Chicago. Was he in love with Amoura? Intuitively, she was afraid. Amoura, with Philip Weinrich lost, might be foolish enough to marry any young man who asked her. Mrs. Ainsley was worried.

"We can have, besides canard a la Pertinset, pommes de terre a la creme, chouflcur au beurre noir, salade beaucaire, peches au vin. . . . Don't things sound wonderfully good to eat in French? Duck, creamed potatoes, cauliflower, celery salad, peaches in wine—in English they're so commonplace."

Mrs. Ainsley pretended to be chiefly occupied with her book, but she was watching Amoura furtively. Was her daughter gayly concealing a broken heart?

"I'm going down the street and see what I can get to wear. I haven't a decent gown to my name."

"Someone was saying that Venier's has some new importations," her mother confided.

"Probably copies made for all the department stores in the land, but I have to have something."

The joy of buying, of commanding sales people and of smiling disdainfully at the few models with which Venier's attempted to be "Parisian," plunged Amoura into a buying orgy. When she returned to Ainsley house late in the afternoon, the chauffeur followed her through the portal laden with boxes.

Her mother witnessed the opening of the packages by Della. There was a reproduction of a Jean Patou creation, a gown of heavy, deep red crepe, with a line given by a wrapped girdle over which the bodice bloused slightly.

"You always look well in red," Mrs. Ainsley commented. It heightens your color, which is none too good, as you must know."

There was another gown, looking like the work of Lanvin, gleaming gold and light brown providing a background for the complexion that was "none too good."

The frocks, the pick of Venier's collection, were a delight to the eye. One had all its movement massed in front, and a plain back; the material was green brocade, embroidered discreetly with green and strass stones. Another frock was a black crepe bordered with patterned gold, wifth green collar and belt.

Besides the gowns and frocks there were two hats, two pairs of pumps in tones appropriate to the gowns, and a lounging robe.

"I simply must have a new coat. Venier's haven't a thing I'd wear," Amoura commented.

"A rather colorful assortment," Mrs. Ainsley decided, looking over the contents of the packages again. "Just the very thing for your work in Stone street."

Amoura looked up, puzzled. "Mother, you don't believe I'm serious about working down there. I'm going to show you."

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

Montmartre Stages Art Exhibit Exceeding Pace Set by Paris

PARIS—Leave it to Montmartre to do something different. Paris has its Decorative Arts Exposition, so the Republique de Montmartre has inaugurated its "Hastily Decorated Art Exposition." The entire show is a burlesque on its more serious brother, and the buildings hav been planned to ape the other in as many details as possible. There is the Asparagus Pavilion, the Salt and Pepper Pavilion, as well as those of oil and vinegar.

The Tourists' Pavilion is topped with a four-sided tower, on each of which is mounted a clock, no two faces of which are keeping the same time.

GANG BATTLES THEN AND NOW

New York.—Two men emerged from an uptown cafe at an early morning hour and hastened down the avenue. Seeing them and sensing a holdup, a policeman commanded them to halt. Instead of obeying they broke into a run with the officer in pursuit. Again he called to them to halt and sent a warning bullet after them. The two paused in their flight and returned his fire, and a bullet struck him in the leg and laid him low. Nevertheless, he picked himself up and continued the chase.

A brother officer, hearing the shots, joined in the pursuit. He, too, was fired upon, bullet passing through the sleeve of his coat. The two ruffians escaped into a neighboring tenement. It was then learned that they had held up the cafe and a score of patrons.

It is a common experience for a policeman to look upon the bright face of danger for, to quote Cicero, "What a day will bring forth is uncertain," and conditions now are particularly strenuous. Until a few years ago a policeman seldom thought of his gun. It was a bold man indeed who would "pull a gun on a cop" and as a rule only a desperate criminal would dare do such a thing unless he were cornered. In recent years gun-toters have become more reckless, consequently a policeman keeps his service revolver cleaned and well oiled and ready for action, and he devotes more time to target practice in the department shooting gallery. He wants to be able to meet trouble if it comes his way.

Overrun by Toughs.

"When I joined the force," said a gray-haired veteran, "the city was far from being a paradise. We had Hell's Kitchen and there were certain parts of Ninth and Tenth avenues that were not exactly genteel. These neighborhoods were overrun by tough gangs which delighted in making a cop's life miserable. You had to be a pretty tough fellow yourself to hold down your post, and it was common for cops to be sent to the hospital by these hoodlums. Yet, as I recall it, they seldom used guns in their fights and encounters with cops.

"Usually they fought with their fists and it was considered a most serious breach of etiquette to draw a gun. They would not hesitate to attack you with fists, bricks and stones, and they delighted in toppling a chimney on top of you. In those days, you see, physical strength was the prime requisite of a gangster and the gang leader was a fellow who was the best rough-and-tumble fighter in the neighborhood.

"If you were a rooky cop the captain would look you over, and if you were a big strapping fellow he would assign you to one of the tough spots in the precinct. If you expected to retain that post, you would have to let the gang know right at the start that you intended to be 'boss.' This was in effect a challenge. When they saw they could not intimidate you and you would not stand for any of their nonsense, they would declare war against you, and would resort to every means to discourage you.

"When Jeff Buckley, who was killed several years ago by the negro Bode, was a rooky policeman he was assigned to cover a tough post. The neighborhood was infested by a gang of rowdies who were making life miserable for everybody. They had their 'hangout' in an old stable and when Jeff notified them that they would have to mend their ways they only scoffed. Entering the stable he informed them bluntly they would have to change their camp. There were six of them present, all big powerful fellows.

"If you didn't have that gun and club with you," sneered one of the gangsters, "you wouldn't dare come in here."

He Showed Them.

Buckley was incensed at the slur. "I'll tell you what I'll do," he said. "I'll fight every man of you one right after the other." The challenge was accepted. Though not above the average height, he was one of the strongest men in the department and an excellent boxer. Stripping off his coat, he was ready for the fray. His first antagonist was the most burly of the lot. Him he whipped in short order, and the others fell easy victims to the terrific hammering which he administered to them. When the brief battle was over they were a sorry lot, with black eyes and swollen jaws.

"In the old gas-house district there were some tough gangsters. They would hold mixed-ale parties which would last for days, and when they were on these prolonged debauches they would get to fighting among themselves and the police would be summoned to quell the fray. We used to go into these mixed-ale flats cautiously with our backs against the wall, for if they caught you unaware they would crown you with a chair or anything that came handy. But bad as they were they would not resort to gun or knife. To use such weapons was unethical and their code of warfare forbade it. They gloried in their physical prowess. Though it might be fair to bounce a club on a cop's dome, a revolver was intended for weaklings only."

HANDS OUT $25,000 FOR RARE STAMPS

Collector Now Boasts Best Revenue Specimens.

New York.—In preparation for the international stamp exhibition in this city in October, 1926, many of the leading philatelists in the country are making efforts to complete their collections by the addition of rare specimens.

This effort toward the greatest possible perfection whereby the owners may carry off some of the coveted medals has already led to the sale of several old collections and stamp dealers predict that several more deals of this nature will be made soon.

Edward Stern, head of the Economist Stamp company, announced that he had purchased the well-known collection of United States revenue stamps owned for many years by W. S. White. The White collection has long been known as one of the best in America.

Its outstanding feature was the assortment of unperforated pairs and blocks and the extremely rare second, third and fifth issues with the head of Washington inverted. The value of the collection is placed at approximately $25,000. Mr. Stern has been making a specialty of revenue issues for some time and now boasts that it is the most complete in the world.

One of the biggest prizes in the White collection is a fine copy of the three cents, green and black, of the fifth revenue-stamp issue, having the Washington head inverted. Only five copies of this error are known, worth $2,250 each. There is a fine copy of the inverted head error of the 15 cents of the third issue, valued at $1,000, and a similar error of the 20 cents, second issue, valued at $425.

There is also a block of fifty of the one-cent playing card stamp, the perforated variety, valued at $500, the largest block known.

SHOWS THAT WINDS BLOW UP AND DOWN

Accident to Shenandoah Due to Vertical Blast.

Washington.—That winds blow up and down as well as horizontally was forcibly brought home to many people for the first time by the destruction of the Shenandoah. Far from being unusual, such "vertical winds" lie at the heart of some of our best-known weather phenomena, according to a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Every flash of lightning that you see, or that you hear as thunder, and every pellet of hail that falls is probably due to a 'vertical wind,'" says the bulletin. "These are the fruits of rather violent upward and downward blasts. If you consider as well the gentler rising and falling currents—the 'vertical breezes,' let us say—you must take pretty much the whole field of weather for your sphere.

Important Weather Factor.

"Practically every surface wind, whatever be its direction or speed, is moving along to replace air which has risen. Clouds, too, are built by rising air. The elusive little circles on weather maps that denote 'lows' and 'highs' are in final analysis the representation of upward and downward air currents. Where cold air from the upper regions flows down it compresses the surface atmosphere and produces a 'high'; where the air, because of heat, is rising, it relieves the pressure and forms a 'low.' Most weather phenomena are due to the interplay of forces between 'highs' and 'lows,' which bring in their train changes in wind, temperature and humidity.

"The most spectacular of the effects of 'vertical' winds are thunderstorms. As the tracer bullet marks the flight of projectiles for a marksman, so the great, towering 'thunder head' marks the upward rush of the invisible wind. Often these thunder clouds may be seen growing before one's eye. Seldom is the growth slow and orderly. More often it is violent, and the upsurging clouds appear to boil madly. Thunderstorms are usually local affairs and the wind that has rushed upward must come quickly earthward again to restore the atmospheric balance. In the rear of thunderstorms, therefore, strong downward currents are usually encountered. It was such an upward and then downward rush of air, apparently, that played an important part in the destruction of the Shenandoah.

Where Lightning Comes From

"Until comparatively recently the origin of the tremendous charges of electricity in a thunderstorm baffled science. Now it is pretty generally believed that they are caused by the upward gusts of air—that these are in truth the dynamos of the sky. The building up of the electrical charges is supposed to be brought about by the gusts blasting raindrops to pieces, the smaller fragments carrying negative charges upward while the large droplets with positive charges remain behind. Hostile forces are established and when the strain becomes too great it is relieved by a lightning flash. When the negatively charged upper cloud floats away before the strain is relieved the flash is to the earth.

"'Vertical winds' are also credited with the production of hail, and their onionlike structure bears out the theory. Raindrops carried upward by the less violent gusts, according to this hypothesis, are frozen in the cold upper air. Sinking in the boiling cloud, they acquire more moisture on the lower levels and are again carried to the freezing region. On the number of skyward trips made before they escape from the boiling cloud and fall earthward depends the size of the hailstones."

EAST END

NEW HIGH SCHOOL FOR MIDLAND

Contracts were let this week for the new $350,000 Midland high school building.

All the contracts were let for the building with the exception of the auditorium. The board of education holds the option to accept the bids on the auditorium within 90 days. This gives time to put over the extra bond issue necessary to raise money enough to complete this part of the school building.

Lowest bidders received the contract in every case according to T. A. Holland, president of the board, with the total bid let, including heating and ventilating, amounted to $219,000, making $31,000 less to raise on the bond issue for the auditorium than had been expected.

Many To Attend Dance.

Many from this section plan to attend the dance and masquerade party this evening at the Eagles hall, Broadway. The affair will be under the auspices of the employes of the Homer Laughlin China company.

"I'm Too Fat to be popular"—a pity

Montmartre Stages Art Exhibit Exceeding Pace Set by Paris

PARIS—Leave it to Montmartre to do something different. Paris has its Decorative Arts Exposition, so the Republique de Montmartre has inaugurated its "Hastily Decorated Art Exposition." The entire show is a burlesque on its more serious brother, and the buildings hav been planned to ape the other in as many details as possible. There is the Asparagus Pavilion, the Salt and Pepper Pavilion, as well as those of oil and vinegar.

The Tourists' Pavilion is topped with a four-sided tower, on each of which is mounted a clock, no two faces of which are keeping the same time.

GANG BATTLES THEN AND NOW

New York.—Two men emerged from an uptown cafe at an early morning hour and hastened down the avenue. Seeing them and sensing a holdup, a policeman commanded them to halt. Instead of obeying they broke into a run with the officer in pursuit. Again he called to them to halt and sent a warning bullet after them. The two paused in their flight and returned his fire, and a bullet struck him in the leg and laid him low. Nevertheless, he picked himself up and continued the chase.

A brother officer, hearing the shots, joined in the pursuit. He, too, was fired upon, bullet passing through the sleeve of his coat. The two ruffians escaped into a neighboring tenement. It was then learned that they had held up the cafe and a score of patrons.

It is a common experience for a policeman to look upon the bright face of danger for, to quote Cicero, "What a day will bring forth is uncertain," and conditions now are particularly strenuous. Until a few years ago a policeman seldom thought of his gun. It was a bold man indeed who would "pull a gun on a cop" and as a rule only a desperate criminal would dare do such a thing unless he were cornered. In recent years gun-toters have become more reckless, consequently a policeman keeps his service revolver cleaned and well oiled and ready for action, and he devotes more time to target practice in the department shooting gallery. He wants to be able to meet trouble if it comes his way.

Overrun by Toughs.

"When I joined the force," said a gray-haired veteran, "the city was far from being a paradise. We had Hell's Kitchen and there were certain parts of Ninth and Tenth avenues that were not exactly genteel. These neighborhoods were overrun by tough gangs which delighted in making a cop's life miserable. You had to be a pretty tough fellow yourself to hold down your post, and it was common for cops to be sent to the hospital by these hoodlums. Yet, as I recall it, they seldom used guns in their fights and encounters with cops.

"Usually they fought with their fists and it was considered a most serious breach of etiquette to draw a gun. They would not hesitate to attack you with fists, bricks and stones, and they delighted in toppling a chimney on top of you. In those days, you see, physical strength was the prime requisite of a gangster and the gang leader was a fellow who was the best rough-and-tumble fighter in the neighborhood.

"If you were a rooky cop the captain would look you over, and if you were a big strapping fellow he would assign you to one of the tough spots in the precinct. If you expected to retain that post, you would have to let the gang know right at the start that you intended to be 'boss.' This was in effect a challenge. When they saw they could not intimidate you and you would not stand for any of their nonsense, they would declare war against you, and would resort to every means to discourage you.

"When Jeff Buckley, who was killed several years ago by the negro Bode, was a rooky policeman he was assigned to cover a tough post. The neighborhood was infested by a gang of rowdies who were making life miserable for everybody. They had their 'hangout' in an old stable and when Jeff notified them that they would have to mend their ways they only scoffed. Entering the stable he informed them bluntly they would have to change their camp. There were six of them present, all big powerful fellows.

"If you didn't have that gun and club with you," sneered one of the gangsters, "you wouldn't dare come in here."

He Showed Them.

Buckley was incensed at the slur. "I'll tell you what I'll do," he said. "I'll fight every man of you one right after the other." The challenge was accepted. Though not above the average height, he was one of the strongest men in the department and an excellent boxer. Stripping off his coat, he was ready for the fray. His first antagonist was the most burly of the lot. Him he whipped in short order, and the others fell easy victims to the terrific hammering which he administered to them. When the brief battle was over they were a sorry lot, with black eyes and swollen jaws.

"In the old gas-house district there were some tough gangsters. They would hold mixed-ale parties which would last for days, and when they were on these prolonged debauches they would get to fighting among themselves and the police would be summoned to quell the fray. We used to go into these mixed-ale flats cautiously with our backs against the wall, for if they caught you unaware they would crown you with a chair or anything that came handy. But bad as they were they would not resort to gun or knife. To use such weapons was unethical and their code of warfare forbade it. They gloried in their physical prowess. Though it might be fair to bounce a club on a cop's dome, a revolver was intended for weaklings only."

HANDS OUT $25,000 FOR RARE STAMPS

Collector Now Boasts Best Revenue Specimens.

New York.—In preparation for the international stamp exhibition in this city in October, 1926, many of the leading philatelists in the country are making efforts to complete their collections by the addition of rare specimens.

This effort toward the greatest possible perfection whereby the owners may carry off some of the coveted medals has already led to the sale of several old collections and stamp dealers predict that several more deals of this nature will be made soon.

Edward Stern, head of the Economist Stamp company, announced that he had purchased the well-known collection of United States revenue stamps owned for many years by W. S. White. The White collection has long been known as one of the best in America.

Its outstanding feature was the assortment of unperforated pairs and blocks and the extremely rare second, third and fifth issues with the head of Washington inverted. The value of the collection is placed at approximately $25,000. Mr. Stern has been making a specialty of revenue issues for some time and now boasts that it is the most complete in the world.

One of the biggest prizes in the White collection is a fine copy of the three cents, green and black, of the fifth revenue-stamp issue, having the Washington head inverted. Only five copies of this error are known, worth $2,250 each. There is a fine copy of the inverted head error of the 15 cents of the third issue, valued at $1,000, and a similar error of the 20 cents, second issue, valued at $425.

There is also a block of fifty of the one-cent playing card stamp, the perforated variety, valued at $500, the largest block known.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE ANSWERED.

Poor Accomodations For Statesmen at Geneva Conference

LONDON—The people attending the meetings of the League of Nations at Geneva might be great statesmen, but they were certainly not lovers of fresh air, according to the British Medical Journal.

"The atmosphere," writes the Journal's Geneva correspondent, "both the assembly and the commmissions, was almost insufferable. The accommodation was entirely insufficient and the ventilation bad.

"The general crowding was a scandal. The commissions sat in salons, the windows of which, were never opened. If a current of air startled the assembled delegates, one might be sure that some furtive Anglo-Saxon had discovered a window which opened on the outer world, and equally sure that some less stealthy Latin would soon close it.

"Had some of the sessions been prolonged for another hour, the wisdom of fifty-four nations might have perished from asphyxia.'

Tri-state Poultry Exhibit Will be Held Dec. 28-Jan. 2

Dates for the third annual poultry exhibit under the auspices of the Tri-State Pet Stock and Poultry association have been set for December 28-January 2, inclusive, it was announced today.

Through the efforts of the agricultural committee of the Chamber of Commerce, of which J. T. Croxall is chairman, the association has been given the use of the second floor of the Broadway street car terminal for the show.

Last year the exhibit was held in the Harris-Buick company garage, West Fifth street, which was not available this year.

The poultry shows during the last two years have been regarded as highly successful. The first show netted a profit, which made up a deficit which occurred last year. Members of the association hope to have more than 1,000 birds on exhibition.

THRILLS MARK 'PONY EXPRESS'

The Sioux Indians took part in the greatest battle their tribe has fought for 40 years during the filming of James Cruze's new western epic for Paramount, "The Pony Express."

Not since the last battle of the last Indian war in the United States—the "Ghost Dance War" in Wyoming in 1886, have the Sioux been engaged in a battle or such magnitude.

A band of more than one thousand Sioux Indians was brought to Cheyenne, Wyo., from their reservation at Pine Ridge, North Dakota, for the purposes of this stupendous picture.

Decked out in fantastic war paint, wearing little else than loin cloths, and mounted bareback on spirited Indian ponies, they were given the order by Cruze to attack the town of Julesburg, Colorado.

In a minute they had swooped down on the town, circled it, firing arrows and old-fashioned muskets, driving off stock, and sustaining wounds from barricaded townspeople, firing from windows and doors.

Then in came the soldiers—1860 cavalry, recruited from companies of real soldiers at Fort D. A. Russell. More than 700 of them swooped down on the village, led by young Billy Cody, played by Johnny Fox, Jr., and the greatest Indian battle of this century too place. Foot by foot the Indians were driven out. The battle continued long after it was out of range of the camera. So realistic did the battle become on the outlying hills that Cruze had to send out special riders to call it off, for soldiers were still trying to round up red men, and red men were still running down and attacking isolated soldiers.

"The Pony Express," now showing at Ceramic, features Betty Compson, Ricardo Cortez, Ernest Torrence and Wallace Beery. The screen play is by Walter Woods, from an original story by himself and Henry James Forman.

YOUR SPARE TIME! What is it Worth?

What are you doing with it? The Real Estate profession is one that is being taught in Colleges, Y. M. C. A.'s, Y. W. C. A.'s and Business Colleges all over the country.

Hoopes & Watson, owners of Fisher Park, located on the Lincoln Highway, near the city line, are offering to the public, homesites that are fully improved and restricted — the kind of property that has never failed in the history of this country to increase in price—thereby making it a good investment for the investor and a beautiful homesite for the home builder.

One young man in East Liverpool, working on a part time basis, earned over $200.00 last month and this month will double that. A young lady's earnings to date are in excess of $300.00. You too, can earn this if you are willing to devote your spare time and attend our classes whereby you can obtain full data regarding Real Estate ethics.

Every evening, beginning at 7:30, classes in Real Estate will be held. You assume no obligation by attending. Come tonight at 7:30 and learn what you can do in your spare time, besides obtaining a knowledge that will put you in a position to be absolutely independent for life.

Poor Accomodations For Statesmen at Geneva Conference

LONDON—The people attending the meetings of the League of Nations at Geneva might be great statesmen, but they were certainly not lovers of fresh air, according to the British Medical Journal.

"The atmosphere," writes the Journal's Geneva correspondent, "both the assembly and the commmissions, was almost insufferable. The accommodation was entirely insufficient and the ventilation bad.

"The general crowding was a scandal. The commissions sat in salons, the windows of which, were never opened. If a current of air startled the assembled delegates, one might be sure that some furtive Anglo-Saxon had discovered a window which opened on the outer world, and equally sure that some less stealthy Latin would soon close it.

"Had some of the sessions been prolonged for another hour, the wisdom of fifty-four nations might have perished from asphyxia.'

Tri-state Poultry Exhibit Will be Held Dec. 28-Jan. 2

Dates for the third annual poultry exhibit under the auspices of the Tri-State Pet Stock and Poultry association have been set for December 28-January 2, inclusive, it was announced today.

Through the efforts of the agricultural committee of the Chamber of Commerce, of which J. T. Croxall is chairman, the association has been given the use of the second floor of the Broadway street car terminal for the show.

Last year the exhibit was held in the Harris-Buick company garage, West Fifth street, which was not available this year.

The poultry shows during the last two years have been regarded as highly successful. The first show netted a profit, which made up a deficit which occurred last year. Members of the association hope to have more than 1,000 birds on exhibition.

THRILLS MARK 'PONY EXPRESS'

The Sioux Indians took part in the greatest battle their tribe has fought for 40 years during the filming of James Cruze's new western epic for Paramount, "The Pony Express."

Not since the last battle of the last Indian war in the United States—the "Ghost Dance War" in Wyoming in 1890, have the Sioux been engaged in a battle or such magnitude.

A band of more than one thousand Sioux Indians was brought to Cheyenne, Wyo., from their reservation at Pine Ridge, North Dakota, for the purposes of this stupendous picture.

Decked out in fantastic war paint, wearing little else than loin cloths, and mounted bareback on spirited Indian ponies, they were given the order by Cruze to attack the town of Julesburg, Colorado.

In a minute they had swooped down on the town, circled it, firing arrows and old-fashioned muskets, driving off the stock, and sustaining wounds from the barricaded townspeople, firing from windows and doors.

Then in came the soldiers—1860 cavalry, recruited from companies of real soldiers at Fort D. A. Russell. More than 700 of them swooped down on the village, led by young Billy Cody, played by Johnny Fox, Jr., and the greatest Indian battle of this century too place. Foot by foot the Indians were driven out. The battle continued long after it was out of range of the camera. So realistic did the battle become on the outlying hills that Cruze had to send out special riders to call it off, for soldiers were still trying to round up red men, and red men were still running down and attacking isolated soldiers.

"The Pony Express," now showing at Ceramic, features Betty Compson, Ricardo Cortez, Ernest Torrence and Wallace Beery. The screen play is by Walter Woods, from an original story by himself and Henry James Forman.

Poor Accomodations For Statesmen at Geneva Conference

LONDON—The people attending the meetings of the League of Nations at Geneva might be great statesmen, but they were certainly not lovers of fresh air, according to the British Medical Journal.

"The atmosphere," writes the Journal's Geneva correspondent, "both the assembly and the commmjssions, was almost insufferable. The accommodation was entirely insufficient and the ventilation bad.

"The general crowding was a scandal. The commissions sat in salons, the windows of which, were never opened. If a current of air startled the assembled delegates, one might be sure that some furtive Anglo-Saxon had discovered a window which opened on the outer world, and equally sure that some less stealthy Latin would soon close it.

"Had some of the sessions been prolonged for another hour, the wisdom of fifty-four nations might have perished from asphyxia.'

Tri-state Poultry Exhibit Will be Held Dec. 28-Jan. 2

Dates for the third annual poultry exhibit under the auspices of the Tri-State Pet Stock and Poultry association have been set for December 28-January 2, inclusive, it was announced today.

Through the efforts of the agricultural committee of the Chamber of Commerce, of which J. T. Croxall is chairman, the association has been given the use of the second floor of the Broadway street car terminal for the show.

Last year the exhibit was held in the Harris-Buick company garage, West Fifth street, which was not available this year.

The poultry shows during the last two years have been regarded as highly successful. The first show netted a profit, which made up a deficit which occurred last year. Members of the association hope to have more than 1,000 birds on exhibition.

DENTIST NO LONGER MERE MOLAR PULLER

New Gas Mixture Deadens All Pain, Says London.

REVEAL ADVANCES

French Appliances Shown at International Exhibit.

LONDON.—The old fallacy that dentists are a fierce, cruel offshoot of mankind, and that they delight in hurting the unfortunates who have to submit themselves to dental science, is apparently doomed to oblivion.

The International Dental exhibition, just held here, shows for all time that the modern dentist is a man who would not think of hurting a fly, and whose only aim is to put his patients out of pain in the speediest and safest way possible.

Hundreds of new gadgets were on show at the exhibition, and 99 per cent of them have been invented with a view to elleviating that sense of terror generally displayed when on a visit to the dentist.

All Pain Deadened.

Some of the world's greatest dental surgeons delivered addresses, and practically every one of them gave illustrations in one way or another that dental science is now occupied in perfecting instruments and drugs which will make dentistry absolutely painless.

Experts have perfected a new mixture of laughing gas and oxygen which takes away all sensation of pain but leaves the patient absolutely conscious of all that is going on, with the result that he is perfectly normal mentally, but that a pin could be stuck into him and he would not feel it.

Tablets have been invented which are guaranteed to control all nervousness, fear, and pain. The idea is that the intending patient swallows a tablet the night before the dreaded day, another on the fateful morning of the extraction, and he walks into the dentist's parlor as brave as a lion, leaping lightly into the chair and requesting the dentist to "Take your time, I am in no hurry."

The exhibition also showed that the dentist of today is very much more than a molar puller. He has to know everything about X-ray, pyorrhea, electricity, ultra-violet rays, as well as have at his finger tips the knowledge of how to use anything between fifty to a hundred different instruments.

Lamp Kills Germs.

On view at the exhibition was a massive X-ray machine, complete, with innumerable coils, knobs and mirrors, priced at $1,700. There was also an up-to-date violet ray lamp, which shoots rays into the mouth and kills all germs in three minutes. This lamp is said to obviate the necessity of having all the teeth extracted when pyorrhea is developed, for it is claimed that it will kill the pyrohhea germs almost immediately. This efficient cure for the dread modern disease of the mouth is hearalded as a triumph for dentistry.

As usual there were many freak appliances and inventions on show, one of which was a new dental germicide with the impressive name of "Trichlorophenylmethyliodosalicyl."

"Dentisty is now as painless—almost—as it can be," Fred Butterfield, secretary of the exhibition, said. "The days when dental work was allied to the horror of cold blood and cold steel have passed away forever.

"Since the organization of dentists the great motive has been to remove all terror."

Britain's plan to have a through-mail service from the United Kingdom to England, Burma, Signapore and Australia is being developed by aiding unit air service in the proposed route.

30 Millions in Marks Puffed Into Air by Germans Last Year

BERLIN — Thirty billion marks worth of cigarettes and cigars have been puffed into the air by the Germans during the last year. Taking the population of Germany as 63,000,000, 293 cigarettes and 79 ciagrs have been consumed per head of the population. Figuring that only about 10 per cent o fthe total are smokers, one arrives at an average daily consumption of two cigars and 12 cigarettes per head.

It is understood that the consumption of cigarettes has considerably increased since women have gone in strongly for smoking.

You Don't Have to Pay a Penalty for Motor Luxury

Just ask yourself what it is you most desire in your car.

Roadability? Comfort? No car, no matter how many hundred extra pounds it is burdened with in the effort to obtain greater riding ease, equals the new Chrysler Six in these features due to the low center of gravity and the Chrysler type of rear spring mounting.

Freedom from mechanical attention? The Chrysler Six has a world wide reputation for noticably uninterrupted service.

All this the new Chrysler Six at the new low prices gives its owners at half the purchase price of cars presumably having comparable quality—yes, and at far, far less than the operating and maintenance cost of the more cumbersome cars.

We are eager to have you prove all the new Chrysler Six does. Then you'll see why no other car, at any price, affords what has come to be trade-marked in the public mind as "Chrysler Six performance."

CHRYSLER FOUR—Touring Car, $895; Club Coupe, $995; Coach, $1045; Sedan, $1095. Hydraulic four-wheel brakes on all Chrysler Four models at slight extra cost.

Bodies by Fisher on all Chrysler enclosed models. All models equipped with full balloon tires.

We are pleased to extend the convenience of time-payments. Ask about Chrysler's attractive plan. Chrysler dealers and superior Chrysler service everywhere.

All Chrysler models are protected against theft by the Fedco patented car numbering system, exclusive with Chrysler, which cannot be counterfeited and cannot be altered or removed without conclusive evidence of tampering.

HOW TO TRACE INTERFERENCE ON RADIO TOLD

First Make Sure Trouble is Not in Receiving Set.

EXAMINE SWITCH

Dr. J. H. Dellinger, U. S Expert, Offers Suggestions

(Editor's Note:—In the second article on radio interference, methods suggested by the United State Bureau of Standards for eliminating disturbances caused by electrical apparatus are described. The government is conducting an elaborate study of the interference question in the hope of improving radio reception).

WASHINGTON.—Of first importance to the radio amateur on suffering from interference obviously from electrical apparatus is a survey of the situation to determine the source of difficulties.

Begin by making certain the disturbance is not in the receiving set itself, is the advice of Dr. J. H. Dellinger, radio expert of the United States Bureau of Standards.

"Next open the electric switch at the house meter," the bureau scientist said. If the interfering noise is still heard in the radio set, the source is then known to be outside the house.

"It is then desirable to report the situation to the electric power company. Many of the companies have apparatus for the purpose of following up complaints of this kind.

How to Find Direction.

"Usually a sensitive receiving set with a coil antenna is used to determine the direction from which the interfering noise comes and this outfit is taken from place to place until the source is found.

"The location of such a source is often a very difficult and baffling undertaking. The trouble sometimes comes from a spark discharge over an insulator to ground or between a pair of wires, or it may be that the wire is touching some object such as a tree, pole or guy wire.

"Such a spark discharge is a loss of power to the operating company and a potential source of serious trouble, and for these reasons the company probably is more interested in finding and eliminating this type of leak than in finding the radio receiver's difficulty. Large leaks and sparks may often be observed at night, especially in hot weather. However, sparks that are too small to be noticed readily may cause serious interference with radio reception.'

Direct-current motors often cause trouble with radio reception when in operation near the receiving set, especially when the brushes on the motor are sparking badly. The sparking, officials said, should be reduced as much as possible by cleaning the commutator and proper setting of the brushes.

The remaining interference is sometimes overcome by placing two condensers (about two miscro arads each) in series across the power supply line and connecting their midpoint to a good ground system.

Find Rural Troubles.

Another source of interference, the Bureau of Standards found, is the ringing machine used in rural telephone exchanges. The elimination of this interference is especially important to farmers. Telephone engineers, it was pointed out, can eliminate or at least reduce this trouble by connecting a filter between the machine and the ringing keys.

Many cases of radio interference have been caused by electrical precipitations which are used to prevent smoke and noxious fumes or material from leaving a chimney.

The precipitator operates by establishing a highly-charged electric field inside the chimney of such a nature and direction that particles going up the chimney are charged and driven against the walls where they stick.

Precipitators cause interference for the reason that the high voltage used in their operation is obtained from a rectifier which produces sparks and generates radio-frequency alternating current as well as the direct current which the precipitator uses.

If the precipitator is so designed and arranged that the distance between the rectifier and the chimney is only a few feet or of the entire apparatus including all leads is housed in a metal building there is usually no trouble.

DENTIST NO LONGER MERE MOLAR PULLER

New Gas Mixture Deadens All Pain, Says London.

REVEAL ADVANCES

French Appliances Shown at International Exhibit.

LONDON.—The old fallacy that dentists are a fierce, cruel offshoot of mankind, and that they delight in hurting the unfortunates who have to submit themselves to dental science, is apparently doomed to oblivion.

The International Dental exhibition, just held here, shows for all time that the modern dentist is a man who would not think of hurting a fly, and whose only aim is to put his patients out of pain in the speediest and safest way possible.

Hundreds of new gadgets were on show at the exhibition, and 99 per cent of them have been invented with a view to elleviating that sense of terror generally displayed when on a visit to the dentist.

All Pain Deadened.

Some of the world's greatest dental surgeons delivered addresses, and practically every one of them gave illustrations in one way or another that dental science is now occupied in perfecting instruments and drugs which will make dentistry absolutely painless.

Experts have perfected a new mixture of laughing gas and oxygen which takes away all sensation of pain but leaves the patient absolutely conscious of all that is going on, with the result that he is perfectly normal mentally, but that a pin could be stuck into him and he would not feel it.

Tablets have been invented which are guaranteed to control all nervousness, fear, and pain. The idea is that the intending patient swallows a tablet the night before the dreaded day, another on the fateful morning of the extraction, and he walks into the dentist's parlor as brave as a lion, leaping lightly into the chair and requesting the dentist to "Take your time, I am in no hurry."

The exhibition also showed that the dentist of today is very much more than a molar puller. He has to know everything about X-ray, pyorrhea, electricity, ultra-violet rays, as well as have at his finger tips the knowledge of how to use anything between fifty to a hundred different instruments.

Lamp Kills Germs.

On view at the exhibition was a massive X-ray machine, complete, with innumerable coils, knobs and mirrors, priced at $1,700. There was also an up-to-date violet ray lamp, which shoots rays into the mouth and kills all germs in three minutes. This lamp is said to obviate the necessity of having all the teeth extracted when pyorrhea is developed, for it is claimed that it will kill the pyrohhea germs almost immediately. This efficient cure for the dread modern disease of the mouth is heralded as a triumph for dentistry.

As usual there were many freak appliances and inventions on show, one of which was a new dental germicide with the impressive name of "Trichlorophenylmethyliodosalicyl."

"Dentisty is now as painless—almost—as it can be," Fred Butterfield, secretary of the exhibition, said. "The days when dental work was allied to the horror of cold blood and cold steel have passed away forever.

"Since the organization of dentists the great motive has been to remove all terror."

Britain's plan to have a through-mail service from the United Kingdom to England, Burma, Signapore and Australia is being developed by aiding unit air service in the proposed route.

30 Millions in Marks Puffed Into Air by Germans Last Year

BERLIN — Thirty billion marks worth of cigarettes and cigars have been puffed into the air by the Germans during the last year. Taking the population of Germany as 63,000,000, 293 cigarettes and 79 ciagrs have been consumed per head of the population. Figuring that only about 10 per cent o fthe total are smokers, one arrives at an average daily consumption of two cigars and 12 cigarettes per head.

It is understood that the consumption of cigarettes has considerably increased since women have gone in strongly for smoking.

Just ask yourself what it is you most desire in your car.

Roadability? Comfort? No car, no matter how many hundred extra pounds it is burdened with in the effort to obtain greater riding ease, equals the new Chrysler Six in these features due to the low center of gravity and the Chrysler type of rear spring mounting.

Freedom from mechanical attention? The Chrysler Six has a world wide reputation for notably uninterrupted service.

All this the new Chrysler Six at the new low prices gives its owners at half the purchase price of cars presumably having comparable quality—yes, and at far, far less than the operating and maintenance cost of the more cumbersome cars.

We are eager to have you prove all the new Chrysler Six does. Then you'll see why no other car, at any price, affords what has come to be trade-marked in the public mind as "Chrysler Six performance."

Hardy Norse Sailors Aim to Show Ericson Discovered America

BERGEN, Norway—In an effort to prove that it is absolutely possible that Leif Ericson, the hardy Norseman, discovered America 500 years before Columbus, Captain Folgero and three companions plan to sail from here to America, starting next May in a real Viking ship, modeled after the one Ericson is supposed to have used.

The ship will be 40 feet long and 12 feet broad. It is proposed to start May 17. The course will be: Dover, Cape Finisterre, Madeira, Cape Hatteras, New York and Boston.

Later Captain Folgero hopes to continue the voyage by way of the Panama canal to San Francisco and Portland, Ore., where he will sell his ship and return to Norway on a modern steamer, having shown the world that it was quite possible for Leif Ericson to have crossed the Atlantic.

In the last three years the number of busses in Ceylon has jumped from 44 to 1,602.

Many cases of radio interference have been caused by electrical precipitations which are used to prevent smoke and noxious fumes or material from leaving a chimney.

The precipitator operates by establishing a highly-charged electric field inside the chimney of such a nature and direction that particles going up the chimney are charged and driven against the walls where they stick.

Precipitators cause interference for the reasom that the high voltage used in their operation is obtained from a rectifier which produces sparks and generates radio-frequency alternating current as well as the direct current which the precipitator uses.

If the precipitator is so designed and arranged that the distance between the rectifier and the chimney is only a few feet or of the entire apparatus including all leads is housed in a metal building there is usually no trouble.

NEW

AS THE FIRST AUTUMN DAYS—AND AS LOVELY

These Coats—displaying the very latest modes in Straight-lines and flares, fur trimmed or manishly plain—are direct from the larger cities, from which we receive a weekly shipment, keeping our stock up to the minute.

The winter costume must be elaborately fur-trimmed with flattering large fur collars, long stole panels, graceful godets, or huge cuffs, which are introduced to add distinctiveness to the fine fabrics.

Hardy Norse Sailors Aim to Show Ericson Discovered America

BERGEN, Norway—In an effort to prove that it is absolutely possible that Leif Ericson, the hardy Norseman, discovered America 500 years before Columbus, Captain Folgero and three companions plan to sail from here to America, starting next May in a real Viking ship, modeled after the one Ericson is supposed to have used.

The ship will be 40 feet long and 12 feet broad. It is proposed to start May 17. The course will be: Dover, Cape Finisterre, Madeira, Cape Hatteras, New York and Boston.

Later Captain Folgero hopes to continue the voyage by way of the Panama canal to San Francisco and Portland, Ore., where he will sell his ship and return to Norway on a modern steamer, having shown the world that it was quite possible for Leif Ericson to have crossed the Atlantic.

In the last three years the number of busses in Ceylon has jumped from 44 to 1,602.
